2d Biggest Wheat Crop In History Is Forecast

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Government Crop Reporting Board yesterday predicted that this year's wheat crop would be the second largest in history—only 30 million bushels less than 1947, all-time record harvest.

The June estimate was for 1337 million bushels. The all-time record was 1367 million. The figures are so close that one rain at the right time in the spring wheat belt might turn this year's crop from the second biggest to the biggest in history.

Winter wheat was estimated at 1037 million bushels as of June 1. Two years ago it was 1068 million. Many wheat experts say that this year's estimate is low—that the final figures will show that the wheat crop now being harvested in the southern part of the Great Plains is the biggest, acre for acre, ever harvested any place in the world.

The yield per acre is estimated at 18.6. In 1947, the year of the record harvest, the yield per acre was 18.7 bushels.

Two years ago, when the 1947 crop was nearing maturity, the world was thankful for the bounty. This year wheat men the world over are wondering what they are going to do with the grain.

The report also said that "early potatoes are in unusually good condition." Instead of good news, that means that the American taxpayer is going to have to dig deeper. Support of potato prices is costing the Government a million dollars every business day—about 240 million a year.

Nature was bountiful locally in the fruit area. The report stated that Maryland apple crop prospects were "average or above" on June 1.

"The Virginia apple crop," it went on, "is expected to be below average but may equal the production of last year. The light set of York and Winesap apples was due chiefly to unfavorable weather and poor pollination, although this is also the off-year for York production.

"In the Shenandoah Valley, growers report that freezing weather from April 15 to 20 caused very heavy damage to fruit buds.

The report states that the peach crop in Maryland would be one-third larger than last year, and in Virginia nearly two-thirds greater.

Contractor Digs Up $3000-an-Ounce Metal

Costa Mesa, Calif., June 10 (U.P.).—A contractor who already has found gold and uranium around the hole he dug for a swimming pool said today he had dug up a metal so rare it is worth more than $3000 an ounce.

The metal is gallium, and Wesley R. Collins says he already has about $5000 worth. It is so scarce, Collins said, that only 4 pounds of it was mined in the world last year.

West Hits Soviet Stalling; Russia Ahead on Berlin Deal

Reds Seem in No Haste For Any Settlement On Beleaguered City

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, June 10 (NYHT).—The blockade-lifting agreement is now working so greatly to the Russian advantage that the Soviets are in no hurry for any Berlin settlement, it appeared today.

The Soviet authorities have been able, since the Western counterblockade was lifted, to obtain delivery into their zone of more than 10 million marks worth of the goods they need from the West.

But the railway strike has completely cut off rail traffic into Berlin from the West since May 24, forcing the Western powers to continue the airlift full scale to supplement the few supplies brought into Berlin by truck and barge.

There is a growing suspicion that since the Russians are now perfectly free to purchase what they want in western Germany, it may be that the Soviet desire for formal trade agreements has dwindled considerably. They also appear to be in no hurry to settle the rail strike, as developments showed today.

Western officials here, acting under instructions from Paris this morning, invited the Russian economic experts to meet to try to solve the difficulties that have pre-

End of Conference Lacking Any Accord Seen Next Week

By Walter Kerr

Paris, June 10 (NYHT).—The three Western powers, acting in concert as they have since the opening of the Council of Foreign Ministers, turned heavy pressure today on the Soviet, insisting that it get down to business and stop wasting time in useless discussion of the German problem.

A Russian plan for preparation of a peace treaty was called a "criminal waste of time" by Dean Acheson, American Secretary of State, since the council had failed to agree on unification of the country.

Robert Schuman, French Foreign Minister, said it looked to him an attempt "to mask" Soviet unwillingness to discuss unification. Ernest Bevin, British Foreign Secretary, branded it a "tragic farce."

They told Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet Foreign Minister, they expected the whole conference to be over by the end of next week. When he said he would be busy Saturday and suggested the next meeting take place on Monday, they pinned him down to a Sunday session.

The council was working on the third topic of its four-item agenda — preparation of a peace treaty for Germany. The Russian delegate proposed a formula which the Western ministers said pre-

$41,000,000 More Sought For Jobless

President Truman increased by 41 million dollars yesterday his estimate of how much the Federal Government will need in the next 12 months for grants to States for unemployment compensation and employment service administration.

He asked Congress to appropriate it. A White House statement said the money is necessary "to provide for a heavier work load in 1950 than had been estimated previously."

Mr. Truman's budget, submitted to Congress in January, carried an item of 135 million dollars for this purpose. Unemployment has increased since then.

The Federal Security Agency, in response to an inquiry, said present spending under this program is at the rate of 140 million dollars a year.

This Federal money goes to the States to help pay salaries of workers who (1) administer unemployment compensation, and (2) try to find jobs for the unemployed.

Actual unemployment compensation payments come out of a special trust fund which now amounts to about $7,460,000,000.

The 41 million dollars was part of a total of $147,597,761 that Mr. Truman asked of Congress to supplement funds already requested for this and the next fiscal year.

He asked $92,175,407 for the 1950 fiscal year beginning July 1 and $55,422,354 for the current year.

The other 1950 requests included:

Bureau of Labor Statistics, $4,200,000 to accelerate its program for revising the Consumers' Price Index based on up-to-date income and expenditure patterns.

Meanwhile, the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO) charged again that the Administration is "hiding from the Nation the serious dangers of fast-growing recession" by "persistent understatement of the true volume of unemployment."

The union's statement estimated unemployment in May of this year at about 4,800,000, compared with the Census Bureau estimate of 3,300,000.

It said that recent "declines in industrial production and em-

Stock Decline Cuts Values Half Billion

New York, June 10 (U.P.).—Prices skidded again on the New York Stock Exchange today, wiping out around a half billion dollars in market valuations. Trading was quiet.

Today's sell-off brought the cumulative loss in prices since the latter part of May to around 3 billions of dollars. Although the liquidating movement was not as brisk as Monday's, when the market slipped to a new two-year low, the sell-off carried the general market average back to the level of May 27, 1947.

Chambers' Wife Supports His Testimony Of Their Close Relations With Hiss Family

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, N. Y., June 10.—Mrs. Whittaker Chambers today supported her husband's testimony that he saw Alger Hiss after January 1, 1937, as she gave a detailed account of close relations with the Hiss family.

A serious-looking, bespectacled mother of two children, she admitted difficulty in remembering addresses and dates as she testified in the Hiss perjury trial in which her husband is the chief prosecution witness.

But she stated that she and Chambers, and Hiss and his wife, Priscilla, were together on two major occasions long after the date on which Hiss says he last saw Chambers.

In the two counts against him, Hiss is accused of perjury in denying that while he was a State Department official in early 1938 he gave secret documents to Chambers for a Communist spy ring, or that he even saw Chambers after January 1, 1937.

Mrs. Chambers declared Mr. and Mrs. Hiss attended a wedding anniversary party at her home in Baltimore, about December, 1937.

Speaking in a low voice that was difficult to hear in the crowded Federal courthouse, she said she and Chambers—a confessed former courier for the espionage ring—also attended a New Year's party at the Hiss home in Washington on December 31, 1937.

She gave this date after changing her original testimony a short while earlier, in which she had the time of the New Year's party as December 31, 1936.

During her testimony, however, she gave a description of the interior of the house at 3415 Volta pl. nw., where the party was held. According to earlier evidence in the case, the Hisses lived in the Volta st. home starting in December of 1937.

Thin-faced and 48, an amateur artist and former magazine employe, Mrs. Chambers was clad in a tailored black hat and gray suit as she appeared on the witness stand. Across the courtroom observing her closely, were Alger Hiss, whom she said she knew as "Hilly," and his wife, "Pross." They, Mrs. Chambers said, had called her "Liza" and her husband "Carl."

During her acquaintance with the Hisses, which started in 1934, she said the two families saw a lot of each other. They visited at each other's homes, frequently ate together, she declared, and exchanged gifts, although the Chamberses were generally on the receiving end of such exchanges.

All through this period Chamberses was an active member of the Communist underground, and, he says, Alger Hiss was also. Hiss has flatly denied this and Chambers' other charges, declaring the Chamberses, whom he knew under another name, were a couple he and Mrs. Hiss befriended in the belief Chambers was a free-lance writer.

Chambers has previously appeared on the stand here to testify against Hiss, and Mrs. Chambers is one of numerous witnesses being called by the prosecution to corroborate his story.

Under questioning by Prosecutor Thomas F. Murphy, Mrs. Chambers briefly recounted her background, which included high school education in New Haven, Conn., and about one year as secretary of Local 25, International Ladies Garment Workers Union in Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Later, she said, she was advertising manager of World Tomor-

David Niles' Help in Visa Case Cited at Coplon Trial

Neighbor's Account Of Arlingtonians' Parties and Life In Nude Disclosed

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

David Niles was pictured yesterday in an FBI investigative report as having intervened—when he was a presidential aide—in behalf of a man who had as a "pal" a suspected Soviet espionage agent.

The man was the husband of a woman with whom Niles was once in love, an informant told the FBI.

Niles was "very friendly" with the couple, it was claimed.

The husband was Philip Levy, an exporter, and the case involved his effort to get to Mexico in 1945.

An FBI report on Levy's alleged association with suspected Soviet agents was presented yesterday at the Judith Coplon espionage trial in District Court.

It was one of the longest of the 34 secret FBI reports to be introduced at the trial—61 pages, single-spaced.

A mass of information, tingling and sensational, went into the trial record yesterday from the most secret files of the FBI.

Detailed accounts on an Arlington couple under suspicion were reported by a next-door neighbor.

The neighbor said the couple entertained high-ranking Army and Navy officers at shuttered-window, all-night parties during the war, to milk them for information.

The couple ran around the house in the nude and the man also walked out on the porch to get his newspaper in the same unclothed condition, the neighbor reported to the FBI.

The name of the observing neighbor was also read—the first time such a thing has happened in the trial.

The FBI reports describing these activities are those back of the 34 "data slips" the prosecution charges were in Miss Coplon's purse when she was arrested in New York March 4 in the company of Valentin Gubitchev, then a Soviet United Nations engineer.

She is charged with taking and copying Government secrets to aid Russia while she was employed as a Department of Justice political analyst.

On one of the data slips revealed yesterday and dated September 5, 1946, a man and wife employed then on the secret Russian desk of the War Department

Hoffman Is Backed But So Are Aid Cuts

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Marshall Plan cuts ranging all the way from 5 to 25 per cent are being discussed in the Senate Appropriations Committee, but members almost unanimously want Administrator Paul Hoffman to stay on.

The notable exception is Senate Appropriations Chairman Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.).

In public hearings yesterday, McKellar accused Hoffman of trying to "bring pressure" on Congress by threatening to resign if the program is substantially cut.

"I think it would be a very good thing if you did resign," McKellar told Hoffman.

"I think it would be the best thing in the world for the people of the United States and also for the people of Europe."

Hoffman said no "threat" was implied in his statement that he wouldn't want the responsibility of administering an ECA program cut below four billion dollars.

Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) protested McKellar's remarks. He said it would be a "great calamity" if Hoffman resigned before the four-year Marshall Plan program has been completed.

Later, other ranking Democratic and Republican members of the committee praised Hoffman and said the last thing they wanted was for him to step out. But they continued to talk about cuts.

Caught at the whip end of an economy drive, ECA as well as forthcoming armed forces appropriations have become the targets of Senate efforts to show a substantial net saving below the President's budget. ECA cuts discussed range from 200 million to one billion, but most of the talk centers on a 10 per cent cut of 400 million.

But some leading advocates of economy made it plain they didn't want ECA cut to the point Hoffman would feel he "couldn't do the job."

One of the biggest reductions in ECA funds was proposed by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.),

U. S. in Doubt On Owner of Bet Evidence

By Benjamin C. Bradlee
Post Reporter

The Government admitted in District Court yesterday that it cannot establish ownership of all the evidence seized in the March 25 raid on the Bladensburg headquarters of indicted gambler William (Snags) Lewis.

More than $26,000 in cash, numbers slips, adding machines and gambling paraphernalia were confiscated and constitute the backbone of the Government's case against Lewis and 13 others arrested there.

The admission came during an argument before Judge Edward M. Curran on a motion by the defendants to return the seized property. When Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz agreed to return the property if each defendant would come forward to identify what he owned, defense lawyers leaped to their feet to ask if the Government did not already know which defendant owned which seized property.

Hitz admitted that in many of the cases the Government could not tell exactly who owned what.

Although the defense did not immediately withdraw the motion to return the evidence, such a plan was being discussed. If the Government could not confront each defendant with alleged gambling evidence taken from him, much of its case would disappear.

Hitz said much of the evidence whose ownership is in doubt consisted of boxes of numbers slips, which were lying around in the house, and adding machines, the serial numbers on two of which have been filed off.

Earlier in arguments on a motion to quash the search warrant used in the raid on Lewis' headquarters, the address on the Government warrant was shown to be in considerable error. The warrant was made out to "S. Stanton, 4310 46th ave., Colmar Manor, Md.," commonly known as 47th and Upshur sts.

Evidence produced yesterday proved that there is no such ad-

Capital Transit Sale Awaits SEC Approval

By S. Oliver Goodman
Post Reporter

A Florida group of nine individuals, headed by a 37-year-old financier, will acquire stock control of Capital Transit Co. if the Securities and Exchange Commission approves.

This was revealed yesterday in an announcement by the SEC that North American Co., largest single stockholder in Capital Transit, had sought SEC permission to sell its block of 109,458 shares. The block amounts to 45.61 per cent of the 240,000 outstanding shares of Capital Transit stock.

North American, a holding company, said it has arranged the deal with nine persons for an aggregate consideration of $2,189,160 or $20 a share. The purchasers are headed by Louis E. Wolfson, 37-year-old former University of Georgia football star who has a passion for anonymity.

Assets of Capital Transit Co. were placed at $65,703,546 as of December 31, 1949, in its balance sheet.

Chairman James H. Flanagan of the District Public Utilities Commission said he hoped the SEC would hold a public hearing on the stock transfer and that if one were not announced shortly the PUC would formally request it be convened. He explained the commission is interested in the ability of the purchasers to continue present levels of service.

U. S. Indicts Tucker, Seven Associates

Chicago, June 10 (AP).—Preston T. Tucker, would-be mass producer of rear-engine autos, was indicted on Federal charges today. Seven of his associates, one a former convict, also were accused.

The charges were mail fraud, violating regulations of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and conspiracy.

Tucker answered the Federal grand jury with a statement declaring "I don't intend to take it lying down." He said he'll ask the Senate to investigate.

The grand jury's 31-count indictment came after 54 days of viewing documents and listening to testimony about the organization, financing and operation of the Tucker Corp. The body began its investigation February 12, and reported today to Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

Although Tucker was reported in Michigan, his son-in-law, R. N. Parsons, distributed the statement here and said the 46-year-old corporation founder prepared it.

It said the Tucker Corp. has

Atom Worker Testifies He Joined Reds

By Arthur Edson
Associated Press Reporter

A wartime worker in a West Coast atomic laboratory testified yesterday that he became a Communist after he was taken to a party meeting by an atomic scientist.

The worker, Robert Davis, told the House Un-American Activities Committee that the scientist was Giovanni Rossi Lomanitz.

At one period during the war they both were employed at the important University of California radiation laboratory in Berkeley.

Davis said that Lomanitz asked him to go to a meeting, that he went with him to two or three, and that at one of the meetings Davis joined the party. Mrs. Davis joined, too, he said.

The price of a Communist card in capitalistic terms: 50 cents.

Lomanitz also was a witness before the committee yesterday, but he preceded Davis to the stand.

The slender, 28-year-old Lomanitz now is an associate physics professor at Fisk University in Nashville, Tenn.

On grounds that he might incriminate himself, he refused to say whether he ever had joined the party, or whether he had ever asked anyone else to join.

But, said Lomanitz:

"Under no conditions have I been disloyal to the United States Government."

He said that in his opinion membership in the Communist Party doesn't necessarily mean that one is disloyal. And never, he insisted, has he given anyone restricted information.

Lomanitz said he was a physicist

Vicious Jaguar Menaces Belgian Ship Passengers

Las Palmas, Canary Islands, June 10 (U.P.).—The captain of the Belgian ship Christian Sheid today radioed an appeal for rifle sharpshooters to meet the ship here and kill an escaped jaguar which has become the snarling master of the vessel.

The fierce jungle cat, one of a number of wild animals being shipped from Brazil to the Brussels Zoo, broke out of his cage last night and has since had the undisputed run of the ship's passageways.

The radio message said that terrified passengers had been locked in their cabins as the jaguar roared up and down the ship in an apparent search for food.

The excitement keyed up the other caged animals, who contributed a din of howls, shrieks and barks to add to the nervousness of the passengers.

Collection of Austrian Art Expected to Be Shown Here

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Washington is expected to be host to a collection of Austrian art treasures that will rival in popularity the show of German old masters here in 1948.

The Austrian cabinet has approved the loan of the collection of paintings and other art objects, many formerly the property of the imperial Hapsburg family, it was learned yesterday.

It is assumed that the show will have its American premiere at the National Gallery of Art, although David E. Finley, gallery director, cautiously said it would be "premature" to comment at this time and that arrangements would have to be made on both sides.

During the five-week exhibit of approximately 200 German-owned old masters at the National Gallery, in March and April, 1948, 964,970 persons crowded in to see them.

The Austrian treasures, after being exhibited in Paris, Brussels, Zurich, The Hague, Stockholm and Copenhagen, opened May 12 in London.

The show, which remains in London until August, includes 200 paintings and sculptures; illuminated manuscripts, tapestries, ivories and other objects, on display at the Tate Gallery. In addition to this loan from the Kunsthistorisches Museum, a spectacular exhibit of armor from the Austrian national collection of armor in the Neue Burg, Vienna, is being shown at the Tower of London.

Groups of paintings by Titian,

Tintoretto, Velasquez, Rembrandt and Van Dyck are included in the loan exhibit.

Strikes Will Delay Openings Of Freeway and Underpass

The District's program for easing Washington's traffic load has been set back by the double strike in the area construction industry.

As a result of the 10-day carpenters' strike and 9-day laborers' walkout, plans for opening the Whitehurst Freeway (K Street Overpass) on July 1 have been indefinitely postponed, according to S. R. Harrison, District engineer of streets.

The $3,200,000 express route was authorized to clear up the Georgetown-Key Bridge traffic bottleneck. Work on the span has been shut down completely, Harrison said yesterday, pending settlement of the strike.

Harrison also disclosed yesterday that the walkout has probably shattered the hopes of District officials to open the new Dupont Circle underpass before Christmas. Opening of the underpass would not only ease the traffic situation at this point, but also reopen the area for shopping.

The $3,950,000 underpass is presently 69 per cent completed, but because of the work stoppage by the carpenters and laborers, has seen little recent progress. Only stone and tileworkers are on the job.

Work on the new Highway (14th Street) Bridge is progressing, according to Harrison, because the job at present calls for steelworkers. The South Capitol st. Bridge also is progressing because the contractor settled with the strikers.

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, District Engineer Commissioner, yesterday conferred with leaders of the striking unions and the Washington Building Trades Council, in a move to get enough carpenters and laborers back to work on two construction jobs as a public safety measure. The workers would be used to shore up the excavations at the southwest corner of 16th and K sts. nw. and at the site of the Accused Officers Tell Board They Were on Call in Court

Officers James Roche and Angelo Bonaccorsy were in Municipal Court on call for more than four hours on May 12, when their absence from court forced dismissal of a case in which they were the chief witnesses, the two policemen told a police trial board yesterday.

Charges of absenting themselves from the court without notifying the police liaison officer or the prosecuting attorney were heard by the trial board.

The officers testified they appeared in court at 9:40 a. m. to testify against Gerald Barnes, 33, whom they had arrested four months before on a charge of selling whisky without a license, and remained in the area until 2:14 p. m.

They said they had heard the court clerk call the Barnes case, but had been informed that the case would not be tried for several hours. The case against Barnes, described as "iron-clad" by the corporation counsel's office, was dismissed "for want of prosecution" when the officers failed to answer two calls for them, according to testimony by the prosecutor, Philip Brophy.

Through their lawyer, Charles E. Ford, the officers gave this answer to the charges: Brophy was assigned to prosecute the case at the last minute, unknown to them; Brophy made no effort to locate the officers; Brophy made no objection to Barnes' motion to dismiss the case; and they had been informed the Barnes case would be delayed for several hours.

The officers testified that they left Municipal Court for a total of 40 minutes. During this time they made two efforts to see Ford, who had told them to inform him whenever the Barnes case came to trial, they said. Roche spent 25 minutes talking to an assistant United States attorney on another case.

The officers said that Ford was defending them in connection with the belief expressed by Superin-

Machines to Restore Man's Life Revealed

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Atlantic City, N. J., June 10. Development of two companion machines literally to snatch "dead" patients back to life was revealed here today by a noted heart surgeon.

Products of the medical research laboratories of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, they are designed primarily for operating room use, Dr. Claude S. Beck explained.

The first machine, a mechanical respirator, "breathes" pure oxygen into the expired patient's lungs in rhythm simulating that of normal breathing.

The second apparatus, a pair of suction cups manually operated by the surgeon, is used to restore pumping action of the heart and blood circulation. To do this, the surgeon must cut through the chest wall fast and get to the heart.

Quick Action Required

Recommending that the devices become standard equipment at all hospitals, Dr. Beck said, however, they are valueless unless surgeons or anesthetists are prepared to use them "at a moment's notice."

"The surgeon must be prepared to literally spring into action," he told a section on surgery, in closing day session of the ninety-eighth annual convention of the American Medical Association here.

"It's tragic to see how easy it is to get the heart to beat again, only to find that the brain is dead," he declared.

Must Be Started Immediately

"Since life is continued oxygenation, any patient with a good heart and a good pair of lungs can be resuscitated after the heart has stopped beating," he said.

He pointed out the drastic procedure must be started immediately, since the brain deteriorates beyond repair within three to five minutes after its supply of oxygenated blood cuts off.

Dr. Beck reported two humans were restored to life after their hearts had gone into fibrillation, a pre-death spasm in which the heart muscles flutter but the organ has ceased pumping. "Many more" patients, he reported, have been revived from a "stand-still" heart.

Buddies Greet Truman at Little Rock

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Little Rock, June 10.—President Truman landed here at 5:01 p. m. (EDT) today and stepped into a welter of Arkansas heat and Thirty-fifth Division enthusiasm.

After a 3½ hour trip from Washington in his personal airplane, the Independence, he was greeted at the Little Rock airport by a delegation of State and city notables and an honor guard of infantry from his old division. After reviewing the honor guard he drove into town down a double lane of cheering spectators to the City Auditorium for his official greeting by the division association.

There, because the meeting had been advertised as an executive affair, only about 200 men and women awaited him in the 3000-seat auditorium. This situation, very similar to that at the division's Omaha reunion last year, was explained by Joe Nickell of Topeka, Kans., association president, as due to "some mechanical difficulty, which prevented the doors being opened earlier."

Hundreds Mill Outside

At any rate, while Mr. Truman was on the platform of the air conditioned auditorium, hundreds of the 35th veterans of both wars milled about the hot streets and the lobby of the Marion Hotel to cheer him lustily when he emerged.

After a short rest in his hotel suite, the President attended a reception by the veterans of Battery D., 129th Field Artillery, the 35th division outfit he commanded in World War I. Tonight he was guest of honor at a division ball.

Introduced as "the first combat veteran in the White House since Teddy Roosevelt," Mr. Truman spoke briefly of his satisfaction at his welcome and said:

"I'm only here in my capacity as a member of the thirty-fifth division. Tomorrow I will revert to the capacity of President of the United States and I'm afraid you'll have to listen whether you want to or not.

"I deeply appreciate the welcome everybody has given us here this afternoon."

Tomorrow Mr. Truman will make what the White House has described as a "major" speech at the dedication of a war memorial stadium here.

Officials on Platform

On the platform with the President and Nickell was Gov. Sidney McMath of Arkansas, who read a message from Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Chief of Staff of the Army, and Little Rock's mayor, Sam Wassell, who welcomed the reunion. Others who spoke briefly were Defense Secretary Louis Johnson and Maj. Gen. Butler B. Miltonberger, former regimental commander in the thirty-fifth in the World War II and former chief of the National Guard Bureau at Washington.

The President's sister, Miss Mary Jane Truman, was here from Independence, Mo., and had a seat on the platform.

While Mr. Truman listened to the talks and waited his turn, he twirled the gold-headed ebony cane given him by veterans of his battery during the inaugural ceremonies last January.

After the Battery D breakfast tomorrow, the President will review a parade of the division and its veterans and possibly lead it part of the way on foot as he had so often done in the past.

AMA Explains Absence Of U. S. Plan Backers

Atlantic City, N. J., June 10 (AP).—No proponent of national compulsory health insurance was invited to the American Medical Association convention, an AMA officer said today, "because it would be like the Pope bringing in the Devil's Advocate to the Vatican."

Dr. George Lull of Chicago, AMA secretary, said the Committee for the Nation's Health asked to put up an exhibit and supply a speaker on compulsory insurance.

"It seemed so absurd to us, we just didn't reply," Lull said.

Lull said the AMA "did not consider inviting a member of Government to speak."

130 Drivers of Produce Trucks Strike; Few Stores Affected

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Two locals of the AFL Teamsters Union struck yesterday against eight union Terminal Market produce houses at 5th st. and Florida ave. ne., in a demand for a pay increase of 14 cents an hour.

Spokesmen for Truck Drivers Local 639 and Warehouse Employes Local 730, said 130 men participated in the walkout. However, Joseph B. Danzansky, attorney for the employers, declared the wholesalers were continuing normal deliveries, aided by supervisory help and nonstriking workers.

The strike began early in the morning, after last-minute mediation efforts failed Thursday. The 1948 contract between the employers and locals ran out June 1.

Union officials said the pay is 80 cents an hour for a 54-hour week, or $43.20 in take-home pay. The unions first asked $1.10 an hour, but reduced their demand this week to a 48-hour week without a cut in take-home pay. This would amount to around 14 cents more an hour, they said.

Danzansky declared the strikers received a guaranteed minimum of $45.75 to 48.80 for a 54-hour week. The employers offered to continue this contract for another year. They argue that only a few of the city's 75 wholesale fruit and produce concerns are unionized, so that the unionized firms suffer in competition for business.

One wholesaler, Max Shapiro, Inc., signed with the unions on the new terms. The others asserted Shapiro's deliveries are primarily to Giant stores, on a schedule, while the others must deliver to many clients at their customers' convenience.

80 P. C. Unaffected

The strike will have little effect on the local produce market. Eighty per cent of vegetables and fruits sold in this area are distributed by the big grocery chains, which buy through their own facilities. Some 75 wholesalers service the smaller retailers.

The eight struck concerns are W. Chas. Heitmuller Co., F. B. Crove, Berry's Fruit Produce Co., George D. Deoudes Co., N. J. Ward Co., Nathan Gordon, Robert L. Anderson and Lergh Lawrence Co.

Early in the day, two men whom the police identified as strikers, were arrested at the Union Terminal Market for fighting with each other. They were charged with being drunk and disorderly, and each was held on $100 bond for Municipal Court today. They are Willie Douglas, 38, of 1020 5th st. ne., and Odell Robinson, 21, of 3736 E st. ne.

Meanwhile, on another food front, 100 sales-drivers, also affiliated with the Teamsters Union, were on strike for the eighth day yesterday against four pie-making bakeries. Some 200 pie bakers were also out of work as a result of the walkout, and the bakeries, which normally produce 15,000 pies a day, were making no pies.

Humphrey Charges T-H Law Has Bred 'Chaos' in Industry

By The Associated Press

A charge that the Taft-Hartley law bred "chaos" in industrial relations was made by Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) yesterday as the Senate debated the question of repealing the act.

Humphrey said the act has failed to prevent national emergencies, and also has brought "direct and detailed" Government intervention in collective bargaining.

At one point in his speech, Humphrey aroused the wrath of Senator Taft (R., Ohio) by referring to Gerard D. Reilly, former member of the National Labor Relations Board, as a "propagandist for the Taft-Hartley Act."

Taft hotly accused Humphrey of "impugning the honor" of Reilly.

The bill under discussion, an Administration measure, would repeal the T-H Act and replace it with a modified version of the old Wagner Act.

Speaks 4½ Hours

Humphrey spoke for 4 hours and 32 minutes. At the end of yesterday's session he told reporters he was only half through his speech and will deliver the rest next Monday or Tuesday.

After Humphrey, a few more speeches remain before the Senate gets around to voting on amendments to the Administration bill.

Humphrey, 38-year-old freshman Senator who defeated the Republican Joe Ball in last November's election, told the Senate the American labor movement has "done more to rid this country of Commies than all the Government agencies combined."

He said the "greatest bulwark against any subversive element—Communist or Fascist—is the free trade union movement in America."

Communists, he said, have not been effectively controlled by the T-H Law.

Late in the afternoon he referred to Reilly as "that well paid propagandist for the Taft-Hartley law."

Humphrey said that as late as 1946 Reilly had praised the Wagner Act, and that a year later he became "the author" of the Taft-Hartley law.

Taft Resents Implication

Taft, his face flushed, jumped up and shouted:

"I deeply resent the implication that he (Reilly) was in some way purchased for propaganda."

Pounding his desk, Taft vigorously defended Reilly. He said Reilly had served for six years as solicitor for the Labor Department, had been a member of the NLRB, and that the President offered to reappoint him to the board.

"But once he got on that board and saw how it was run, he changed his mind about the Wagner Act," Taft said.

Humphrey replied that he was not questioning Reilly's motives, but insisted that he does regard Reilly as a propagandist for the present law.

At that point, Taft asked "who wrote the Administration" bill now before the Senate.

'Buyers Strike' Causes GE to Furlough 350

Trenton, N. J., June 10 (U.P.)—The General Electric washing machine plant notified 350 employes they would be laid off in a week because of a "buyers strike."

This was the second such cutback this year. Early in May, 450 workers were laid off. The plant has been employing about 1000 persons since the war.

Charles Sergeant, works manager, said production might increase if the public realized that no further price-cutting was possible at present wage and material costs.

Underground Copper Operation To Suspend

New York, June 10 (AP).—Consolidated Coppermines Corp. said today all underground operations at its Kimberly, Nev., copper mines will be suspended at the end of this month, reducing copper production by half.

Open pit operations near Kimberly will continue on a five-day week instead of the former six-day schedule.

"The spread between costs and the present market price of copper is so great that it has been found necessary to abandon underground mining," said Chester D. Tripp, president.

The cutback will affect more than 400 workers.

U. S. Business Outlook 'Rosy,' Snyder Says

College Camp, Wis., June 10 (U.P.).—Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder tonight criticized talk of a recession and said the United States is in an exceptionally strong financial position with a rosy business outlook "amply" justified.

He used the occasion of a Boy Scout planning conference to make a statement on the economic picture. Recent Government reports have emphasized slumps in employment, industrial production and personal income.

Noting that some businessmen insist a recession is under way, and therefore they can't afford to contribute to groups like the Boy Scouts, Snyder said in a prepared speech that "such arguments must be challenged."

"The facts show that we are going through a necessary and healthy business readjustment as we return to normal buyers' markets and free competition," he said. "These are the conditions which, in the past, have provided the foundation of our historic economic progress."

He said that people who talk "recession" are overlooking the fact "that business is continuing to operate at close to record levels after three years of unprecedented output."

Latest figures show, he continued, that the major economic "thermometers" are remaining very close to last year's levels or even topping them.

For instance, he said, employment in April was only 1 per cent below last year's figure, which was a record for the month. Industrial production was down "only 5 per cent." Retail sales, on the other hand, were 3 per cent higher in April than in April last year.

Pennsy to Lay Off 15,000 Men Monday in Coal Mine Tie-up

Philadelphia, June 10 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Railroad announced today that 15,000 men will be laid off next Monday as a result of the work stoppage of John L. Lewis' coal miners and general current decline in business.

A statement by the Nation's largest railroad said that as a result of Lewis' directive, "with consequent decreased demand for rail transportation as well as the general current decline in the railroad's traffic, it will be necessary to curtail operations effective that date at shops, freight-car repair yards and engine houses over the system."

The shutdown will be for an indefinite period.

Arlington Announces Details Of $40,000 Teacher Pay Raise

Details of a $40,000 Arlington teachers salary increase were announced yesterday by the county school department.

The maximum salary of teachers with prior experience was jumped from $4000 ot $4200, with the minimum pay of $2400 unchanged.

For teachers with master degrees, the old salary range of $2600 to $4200 was raised to $2700 to $4500.

Only one change was made in the annual rate of increase of the new salary scales: the annual jump remains at $100 except in the second year, when it now will be $200 instead of $100.

The $40,000 salary increase for teachers is part of the $2,950,000 Arlington school budget for 1949-50. A larger increase had been planned by the School Board, but the board's budget was reduced $126,000 by the County Board.

In another new scale provision, teachers may receive between $100 and $300 more than the new levels in certain cases when they have completed graduate work beyond the master degree stage, or in cases of "superior accomplishment."

British Labor Asks More Socialization

Rail Strike In Britain Is Spreading

By Stephen White

London, June 10 (NYHT).—Britain's Sunday railway strikes, which have tied up Northeastern Railway Service each Sunday for three weeks, threatened tonight to spread and possibly to become a general railway strike.

The discontent among the workers reflects a basic disapproval of the manner in which the nationalized railway system is managed.

Prime Minister Clement Attlee hurried back from the Labor Party conference at Blackpool to take part tonight in a cabinet conference on the situation. No announcement was made.

The dispute is over new schedules which force a small number of railwaymen to remain an occasional night away from home. But a larger dispute, over wages, also exists, and the railway executive, which runs the railways, has broken off negotiations until the Sunday strikes are settled. This situation, rather than the relatively trivial matter of operating rules, could ultimately lead Britain into a full scale, all-week railway strike.

Locomotive men brought the southern region into the strikes for the first time by voting to stay out this Sunday. Engineers at this depot have not been affected by the new operating rules. Dock strikes are continuing at Liverpool and Avonmouth.

Blackpool, England, June 10 (AP). Britain's ruling Labor Party concluded its annual conference today with shouted approval of a platform calling for "more socialism!" It also witnessed a brief Irish demonstration.

Laborite leaders forged at least surface unity in five days of discussions here, but there still were rumblings of discontent.

The leaders prepared to dig in for a twin battle—against the Conservatives in the general election next year and against the party's own tendency to split up.

Irish Republic demonstrators threw the closing session into an uproar with shouts and a shower of leaflets. These charged that the Labor Party "indorses the mutilation of the Irish nation and gives permanent power to an antidemocratic Tory junta in Belfast."

Laborite platform proposals were left in the hands of the party's executive committee for final drafting. They call for state ownership of most life insurance, cement making, sugar refining, water supplies, meat wholesaling and minerals.

Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison said the party's platform might be modified "in the light of economic conditions that may obtain" at election time. That was the nearest any party leader came to admitting either a fear of depression or the possibility of having to make a quick change in tactics.

But they acknowledged that vital exports are dropping. Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, repeated his familiar statement that more work, more efficiency and a bigger effort were needed for recovery.

The only date Morrison gave for the election was "some time before August, 1950."

He described the forthcoming contest with Winston Churchill's Conservatives as the "battle of our lives."

Sex Maniac Kills Student, Attacks Co-ed

Boulder, Colo., June 10 (U.P.).—The blugeoned body of Colorado University Sophomore Roy G. Spore, jr., 19, was found in an icy mountain creek today, 150 feet below the spot where a sex maniac slugged his co-ed companion last night.

The girl, Doris Ann Weaver, 18, was under treatment for a scalp wound.

She was struck as she sat with Spore in a secluded nook in a popular "lover's lane" just off the campus. Spore turned on the girl's assailant and, despite a cast on his injured leg tried to resist the attacker.

The girl said she heard Spore cry out "don't hit me! Don't hit me!" as she fled.

Co-ed Theresa Foster, 18, of Greeley, was raped and slain near the cottage November 9.

Joe Sam Walker, 32, of Boulder, was convicted of second degree murder only a month ago for her death. He maintained that a "short, blond youth" killed the girl after knocking him out on another lover's lane.

Man Shot in Neck Dies in Bethesda

William Buster Smith, 25, 1875 Savannah st. se., died yesterday at Bethesda Naval Hospital following a bullet wound he received in his neck early last Sunday. Police said Smith and a half dozen others attending a birthday party in the 400 block of L st. nw. were ejected because of an argument and continued the fracas in the street.

One of the combatants, according to police, was Ester Freeman, 23, of 427 L st. nw. The officers said he obtained a .38-caliber pistol from his home and fired it. He is held for an inquest scheduled for 11:30 a. m. Monday at the District Morgue.

Farmer Strangles Self When Pinned by Tractor

Red Creek, N. Y., June 10 (AP).—A farmer pinned by an overturned tractor strangled himself with twigs to end his agony, a coroner's physician has reported.

James Jenkins, 52, was caught yesterday beneath the machine when it tipped over backward while hauling a mower up a steep hill in an orchard. The tractor seat crushed his abdomen.

Dr. Charles Single, acting as a Wayne County coroner's physician, said Jenkins apparently grasped twigs from a nearby bush, wrapped them around his throat and strangled himself.

Senate Group Approves McCloy to Succeed Clay

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday gave unanimous approval to the nomination of John J. McCloy to be the United States High Commissioner for Germany.

McCloy was named by President Truman to succeed Gen. Lucius Clay.

Other nominations approved: William C. Foster to be deputy administrator of the Economic Cooperation Administration; Milton Katz of Massachusetts to succeed Foster as deputy United States special representative in Europe.

Equal School Law Signed in Oklahoma

Oklahoma City, June 10 (AP).—A new State law authorizing Negroes to attend white colleges and universities in Oklahoma under certain conditions was signed today by Gov. Roy J. Turner.

It directs colleges to admit Negroes where desired courses are not offered at Langston University, the State's only school of higher education for Negroes. The new law requires attendance in separate classrooms or at hours different from those of white students. State laws had provided for separate schools.

Byrnes Fetes 23 Students in Spartanburg

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Spartanburg, S. C., June 10.—For 23 young South Carolinians, today was a red capital letter day in life.

They spent it at the home of former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, just outside Spartanburg, getting acquainted with the man who is financing their college education.

The youths, part of a contingent of 30 selected for four-year scholarships, received personal invitations from Byrnes for the informal affair, which featured a luncheon and a talk by Dr. Henry Nelson Snyder, president emeritus of Wofford College. Seven of the youths, most of them on an educational tour of Washington, were unable to attend the fete.

The scholars, most of them 17 or 18 years old, were the first large group to receive $500 scholarships for each of their four years of college from the James F. Byrnes Foundation. Foundation funds are from sales of Byrnes' book, "Speaking Frankly."

In announcing establishment of the foundation, Byrnes had specified that eligibility for the scholarships would be based on scholastic rating and need. As another condition, he said recipients must have lost either one or both of their parents. Byrnes' father died several weeks before he was born and he went to work while still in his teens to support himself and his mother.

Gillette Assails Naming of Switzer As 'Direct Affront'

By the United Press

Senator Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa) yesterday accused President Truman of a "direct affront" in nominating Carroll Switzer to be Federal district judge for southern Iowa.

The White House submitted the Switzer nomination to the Senate Thursday. Gillette said in a statement yesterday it was a "great and unpleasant surprise."

He said he had nothing against Switzer but had recommended William F. Riley, Des Moines, or Ed Halbach of Clinton, on the basis of polling county bar associations in the district.

"I am unable to understand, however, the course that this matter has taken and I find such course unexplainable on any other hypothesis than it is and was intended to be a direct affront to me," Gillette said.

He said he would have another statement early next week.

12 Physicians Win Georgia Hospital Row

Milledgeville, Ga., June 10 (AP).—Twelve doctors at Georgia's Hospital for the Insane today won on their own terms a scrap with the State administration.

They agreed to resume their positions Saturday, when the resignations of State Welfare Director Jack Forrester and Deputy Director T. A. Dechman are effective.

The doctors refused a $100-a-month salary raise, ordered by Forrester in an effort to recruit new staff members following their dismissal Monday.

Refuse Because of Aides

The doctors told Gov. Herman Talmadge they could not accept a salary increase "when all of our nurses, attendants and other employes scarcely receive a living wage."

The doctors tendered resignations Monday, protesting Dechman's administration. They said they'd remain only if Talmadge fired Forrester and Dechman. Talmadge refused to fire the two officials, but backed Forrester in his dismissal of the doctors, despite the criticism of his top political advisers.

Last night, Forrester and Dechman resigned, saying they were acting in a final effort to restore medical care to the 10,000 patients. They said they had failed in every effort to obtain an adequate number of new doctors.

Resumes Control

Dr. Thomas G. Peacock, superintendent of the hospital until Dechman was placed in charge last month, goes back in with control over both the medical and business divisions.

Salaries for doctors at the hospital ranged from $407 per month for staff members to $7100 annually for the superintendent, plus housing and food allowances, before Forrester instituted raises.

Talmadge said he probably would announced Forrester's successor Monday.

Pilot Parachutes From Fastest Jet After Collision

Los Angeles, June 10 (U.P.).—An Air Force pilot parachuted today from the world's fastest jet airplane—the F-86 Sabre—after it apparently collided with another jet plane, killing the second plane's pilot.

Capt. Richard Gene Barr, 29, was the first pilot ever to parachute out of the F-86, which holds the world's speed record of 670.981 miles an hour.

The two planes were maneuvering more than 20,000 feet above Antelope Valley, about 40 miles north of here, when they apparently collided.

Captain Barr, suffering from shock, could recall only that he suddenly found himself in the air after what felt like either an explosion or a crash. He said he grabbed for his ripcord and floated to the ground where rescuers found him.

Wreckage of the two planes was found a few miles apart in the Tehachapi Mountains near Gorman.

The body of the second pilot was found a few hundred yards from his wrecked plane.

He was identified as Capt. William A. Higgins, 28, of the 94th Fighter Squadron, March Field, whose home was at Edgemont, Calif.

Boy Scouts Reduce Ages For Entrance

New York, June 10 (AP).—The Boy Scouts of America today announced a one-year reduction in the entrance ages for its programs of Cub Scouting, Boy Scouting and Senior Scouting, effective September 1.

Dr. Arthur A. Schuck, chief Scout executive, said the change was authorized by the national executive board after a three-year study in which leaders and parents were polled.

After September 1, boys may enter Cub Scouting at 8 instead of 9, Boy Scouting at 11 instead of 12, and Explorers at 14 instead of 15.

Schuck said the program now known as Senior Scouting will become "Exploring" with its scope including land, sea and air activities as well as life exploration.

Units specializing in seamanship or in aviation will be known as Explorer ships or Explorer squadrons respectively.

Government To Rule World Urged at Rally

New York, June 10 (AP).—A world government—with power to enforce its decisions—was urged last night at a rally of 10,000 persons at Madison Square Garden.

The rally was sponsored by the United World Federalists.

Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas said the system of world government should be built around the United Nations with room in it for both American and Russian theories.

The Federation, he said, "must be neither an instrument of free enterprise to crush or thwart socialism, nor the instrument of socialism to destroy western capitalism."

Present methods of trying to insure peace, he said, "are old and shopworn," and in the past have always ended in war.

He said the world government should in no way be formed as a defensive or aggressive alliance against any countries.

Senator Tobey (R., N. H.) proposed a change in the charter of the U. N. to give it power to settle international disputes and enforce its decisions.

He said this was the only way to eliminate the U. N. veto power and "balky attitude of Russia," which he termed the "outstanding threat to world peace."

Other speakers included Cord Meyer, jr., UWF president, Carlos P. Romula, Philippine delegate to the U. N.; Representative Jacob K. Javits (R., N. Y.) and A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Foy Kohler to Direct Voice of America

Moscow, June 10 (AP).—The United States Embassy said today its Charge d'Affaires, Foy Kohler, is leaving soon for home to take over direction of the Voice of America.

The embassy also said Brig. Gen. Russell E. Randall, air attache, and Rear Admiral Leslie Stevens, naval attache, are leaving for Washington for new assignments.

Hungary Ousts Foreign Chief In Shakeup

Budapest, Hungary, June 10 (U.P.).—The government today announced its new cabinet, enlarged from 15 to 18 ministers. Laszlo Rajk, Foreign Minister in the old cabinet, was not in the new one.

(The ouster of Rajk strongly indicates that a purge of "Nationalist" elements is under way in the Hungarian Communist Politburo, informed sources said tonight in London.

(Rajk's sin is believed to be the same as that of Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia. Both apparently followed too strong a Nationalist policy for a satellite state.)

Istvan Dobi, Prime Minister, and Matyas Rakosi, his deputy, were renamed. There were six new members. Besides Rajk, two other ministers failed of reappointment.

All but 5 of the 17 men and 1 woman are Communists, affiliated with the Hungarian Workers Party.

There was no indication of the fate of Rajk. He was not even present among the members of Parliament who convened here on Wednesday. As head of the Interior Ministry, Rajk was a superpolice chief and directed the purges of 1947 and the first half of 1948.

Rajk's post went to Gyula Kallay, head of the party press.

Hungarian Official Killed In Escape, Paper Says

Vienna, Austria, June 10 (U.P.).—The chief of personnel in Hungary's Ministry of Interior, Colonel Oszo, was shot dead as he attempted to escape across the border into Austria, it was reported today.

The Socialist newspaper, Arbeiter Zeitung, said Oszo, when he left the Interior Ministry, carried away with him "the complete files on the Hungarian espionage service."

The secret files were not found on Oszo when Hungarian police caught up with him at the Austro-Hungary border and the Hungarian Communist government "has launched a hectic search for them," the newspaper said.

The Austrian Ministry of Interior spokesman said the paper's report "appeared to be correct."

Arbeiter Zeitung asserted Hungary has just finished a 234-mile "fortification" line along its border with Austria.

The report said the line consisted of a more than 6-feet-high double-wire entanglement with automatic alarm system, land mines, searchlights and 87 guard towers.

Berkeley, Calif., June 10 (U.P.).—Northern California experienced its second and third earthquake shocks in 24 hours today, following a moderate temblor that set downtown San Francisco office buildings swaying last night.

Israel Bars Arabs' Return Pending Pact

Lausanne, Switzerland, June 10 (AP).—An Israel delegation spokesman at the deadlocked Palestine peace parleys said today no Arab war refugees can return to the Jewish state until Israel's territorial and security demands are satisfied.

"We could not afford to accept thousands of fifth columnists while the Arab states are preparing a new round of war against Israel," he said. About 80,000 Arabs are homeless as the result of the Palestine war.

"I do not say we will never take the refugees back," the spokesman said, "but we will never take them until we have a real peace settlement."

Bug Expert Jailed For Museum Theft Of 160 Beetles

London, June 10 (U.P.).—Elphinstone Forest Gilmour's devotion to bugs got him three months in jail today.

Gilmour, a member of the Royal Society of Entomologists, was convicted of stealing 160 beetles from the Natural History Museum.

He could not resist writing an article for an entomologists' magazine claiming he had the only specimen in the world of a rare beetle. Museum officials, who thought they had the specimen, checked up. They found Gilmour was right but that the beetle was theirs.

Next time Gilmour left the museum 55 beetles were found hidden in his clothing. A search of his home revealed more than 5000 museum beetles.

His landlady said that though he had been married only a few months he used to sit up "half the night" with his beetles.

Catholic Body Backs Regime, Prague Says

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 10 (U.P.).—The official Czech News Agency said tonight that pro-government Catholic priests and laymen set up a Catholic action group today in support of the Communist regime.

The meeting was held despite the warning May 28 by Catholic Archbishop Josef Beran that Catholics who joined any such group, independent of the Vatican, would suffer church punishment.

It was announced that special "social education" teachers would be installed by the government in all Czechoslovak theological schools soon, in order to bring religious instruction into line with "the ideals of a people's democracy."

Bearded Red Stuffed Shirts Blamed for Silk Shirt Scandal

Moscow, June 10 (U.P.).—There's nothing wrong with those $24 artificial silk shirts put out by the Leningrad "Red Banner" knitted apparel and stocking factory, its director holds.

He says they simply were not made to withstand the scratching of the beard-stubble of men who are too lazy to shave every day.

The Leningrad Pravda made the shirt scandal the subject of an article today. The newspaper said that numerous persons complained the collars came apart after a couple of days.

Shirt No. 508, as it is called, should be worn only by men who keep themselves close shaven, the director replied.

"Artificial silk cannot resist the friction caused by unshaven beards," he explained.

If that was the case, Pravda's writer asked sarcastically, why was it that the cuffs came off, too?

Six U. S. Airmen Die In Accident at Sea

Tokyo, June 10 (AP).—Six United States airmen and a Japanese died yesterday when their 63-foot rescue boat caught fire off the east coast of Japan, the Air Force reported today.

Corpl. Albert N. Duffield, jr., Willow Grove, Pa., was the only survivor. He said flames cut off access to emergency equipment and the whole crew abandoned ship in a rough sea.

Duffield managed to swim 6 miles to shore. Names of victims were withheld.

supposed that there was a Germany with which to conclude a settlement. They turned it down on many counts; first, because there are two Germanies and not one; second, because old differences of opinion still exist; third, because it contained the vague Soviet phrase that the occupation troops should be withdrawn one year after the conclusion of a treaty.

Acheson, Schuman and Bevin were quick to point out that Vishinsky had done nothing at this conference to further the unification of Germany or Berlin and in sarcastic terms they wondered whether he was not just indulging in old-fashioned propaganda.

Bevin called it "the same old stuff" and said he was getting tired of this "over-abundance of ego and over-abundance of virtue which the Russians attribute to themselves" when they talk of a German peace settlement.

Troop Reduction Urged

If, said Acheson, they really want to ease the occupation burden of the German people, they can reduce the number of their troops. He pointed out the Soviet kept 340,000 soldiers to police half the area and half the population; the three Western powers watch with 275,000 men. To speak of evacuation one year after a treaty, he added, meant nothing unless there was some hope for a treaty.

The council, he said, should not waste one day of this conference "whose days are numbered."

Vishinsky gave no explanation why he would not be able to meet Saturday. It is possible he simply wanted to wait for the outcome of negotiations in Berlin, where the four Allied commanders have been asked by the council to solve their trade and transport problems by Monday.

The rejected Russian proposal called on the four powers to present drafts of a German treaty within three months, the four drafts providing for evacuation one year after a treaty. It also said consideration of the procedure to be followed in preparing the treaty should be completed here in Paris.

Russia Ahead In Berlin Deal

vanted the full lifting of the Berlin blockade.

Late tonight the Soviets confirmed the invitation, which failed to set a date for the meeting. Their only comment was that they would "answer in due course." The vagueness of this answer disturbed American officials here, who thought it was either a stall, or that the Russians had not as yet received instructions on policy.

It seems unlikely that a four-power meeting could be held before Sunday. Since the headline for completion of negotiations in Berlin is Monday, this development also bodes ill for the success of the meeting here.

These events heightened the general pessimism that anything could be accomplished at this level. Most of the points of disagreement have already been thoroughly discussed in talks that recently ended in a complete stalemate.

General Gloom Increases

The receipt today of a sharp letter from the Russians, bluntly rejecting American charges that the blockade-lifting was not being carried out in good faith, added to the general gloom.

The letter from Gen. Alexander Kvaschnin, Russian transport chief, also flatly turned down a request from Lawrence Wilkinson, economic adviser to the American military government, that the 40 trains for west Berlin now stranded in the Soviet occupation zone, be brought into the city via the Soviet sector, which is free from the current transport strike.

The struck elevated railways are Russian-controlled. The Western powers have served notice to the Russians that settlement of the strike would have to take place before the West would put into effect the interzonal agreement now under discussion.

But Kvaschnin reiterated today that rail service would not start until the west sector police had been removed from the elevated railway stations in west Berlin. The Western powers insist on keeping the police in the stations, because rioting and at least two deaths occurred the last time the Russians tried to bring in strike-breakers.

here were named as suspects in "giving out info to the NKVD."

They were identified as William Hermann Eckart Johnson and his wife, Annette F. Johnson.

The report bringing in Niles' name was dated November 23, 1948.

It described Philip Levy, subject of the report, as a Latvian-born, naturalized American who attended Harvard University on a Newsboys Union scholarship and received A. B. and M. A. degrees, the latter in 1915.

Levy, according to the report, first taught school in Boston, but since 1921 has been in the export business, with a residence in South Orange, N. J., and business office in New York.

"Because of possible involvement in 1934 passport fraud concerning Leon Josephson and others," the report states, "his application for 1945 trip to Mexico was held up until Presidential Aide David Niles intervened."

Levy's activities are described: "In 1934, Levy was associated in business with William Manealoff and Julius Heiman, both suspected of Soviet espionage.

"Levy has been a 'pal' of Manealoff since early 1920.

"Levy stated in 1934 that because of poor business conditions he made a world survey of oil possibilities and formed a 'partnership' with J. J. Harvey under the style, Inter-Continent Oil Co., Ltd.

"Leon Josephson acted as attorney for the company, and Louis Josephson, his brother, was its agent.

"Shortly after Levy departed on his tour, Josephson obtained company credentials which were used as a cover for Soviet espionage by Nicholas Sherman, George Mink and Josephson in Denmark. Levy has denied guilty knowledge of the transaction in statement to the State Department."

Levy is charged with having been secretary of a company — Technological Laboratories, Inc.— "Used as a 'cover' to facilitate the entrance into the United States of Arthur Adams, "known Comintern agent." Adams, it states, was treasurer of the company.

In February 1946, according to the report, Levy "visited Beatrice Heiman, former secretary of Soviet Ambassador Oumansky."

About the 1945 Mexico trip, which, according to the report, Niles helped Levy clear, the report goes on: "The real purpose of the trip was not known but Levy stated he need not have gone 'if there were no censors on the line.' Subject (Levy) and his wife and many of their close friends seem to be definitely pro Soviet in their sympathies."

George W. Coleman, 90 Fenway, Boston, Mass., is authority for the allegation recording Niles' feelings for the woman who married Philip Levy.

"Niles became acquainted with Hannah Judith Smith (Mrs. Levy) and 'soon fell in love with her.' Coleman related that David K. Niles was still very friendly with Mrs. Levy and her husband."

The Arlington couple under suspicion in the report dated April 1, 1948, were Henry Bozhidar (Warren) Dunham, then a State Department employe, and his wife Vera, both of 5001 17th st. North, Arlington, Va., at that time.

The next-door neighbor who informed on them is Elvin Sill, 5005 17th st. North, Arlington.

On June 8, 1945, according to the report, Sill contacted the FBI and told them that Army and Navy officers up to the rank of colonel were visiting the Dunham home "under suspicious circumstances."

"They engaged in parties which lasted throughout the night and sometimes into the following morning," Sill is quoted as reporting.

"He stated that approximately once a month an unknown individual in civilian clothes, appearing to be a foreigner, attended the gatherings.

"When this individual appeared, great secrecy was maintained at the house and all curtains were drawn. Such precautions were not taken at other gatherings."

Sill said he believed the purpose of the meetings was "not purely social" but for "securing or furnishing information obtained from members of the armed forces."

He added, according to the report, that "on different occasions, Dunham and his wife were observed moving around the house in a nude state."

Once Sill's 11-year-old boy saw Dunham go out on the porch in the nude and get his newspaper.

Vera Dunham, the wife, was described in another FBI report as being the friend of a breath-taking character named Irina Efimovna Aleksander, who among other activities was said to have caused her first husband to be executed before coming to the U. S.: the husband was a Russian officer.

Irina Aleksander "maybe a Russian espionage agent," still another report stated.

There was a total of six separate reports mentioning Irina Aleksander's name—five made in New York, one in Washington.

One pictured her as conferring with Pavel Mikhailov at the Russian consulate in New York and telling him "she was always ready to help him as much as she could and in whatever way he might require."

Another report made in New York described her as a person of great influence:

"Milica Banac, a wealthy widow of Serbian descent who lives in Hampshire House, recently contacted the Croatian sculptor Mestrovic, endeavored to persuade him to return to Yugo.

"Banac allegedly informed Mestrovic that Irrina Aleksander has a big job here, is very powerful and that 'they all should be very careful not to get in trouble with her.'"

It is this "Irina" of whom Vera Dunham in Arlington is alleged to be a friend, in a report dated April 1, 1948.

Sill, who, according to the FBI, reported on the Dunhams, had "absolutely no comment" when reached last night at his home. He said he was preparing to leave town for the weekend.

His wife, however, said that she and her husband "didn't have anything more than suspicions" about the Dunhams—who have since left Arlington.

The heaviest mountain-range of FBI reports yet was presented yesterday to the court.

Hundreds of single-spaced pages from FBI secret files were put into the record.

By day's end the last of the reports back of the 34 "data slips" had found their way there.

It appeared possible that the prosecution early next week might rest its case against Miss Coplon, a Barnard cum laude graduate who was trailed by numerous FBI agents in trips to New York from here before her arrest.

The road was cleared as Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer finished presenting the FBI reports yesterday.

After having fought and won a flaming battle with the prosecution about presenting the full text of the documents to open court, he decided not to read them all. But all went into the record.

T. Scott Miller—FBI agent who helped watch Miss Coplon—filled in as reader to save the defense attorney's voice. Palmer had Miller read only random paragraphs from many of the reports.

The Government had sought strenuously to have 12 of the reports withheld in their entirely, claiming that they were so secret it would threaten the Nation's security to present them.

Judge Albert L. Reeves ruled that all the documents must be made public as "relevant" to the case.

In the documents drawn from the very sanctuary of bureau files, the FBI moved across this Nation and into others.

It went, through informants, into the living rooms of charged Communists and suspected Communists.

It delved, with detail piled on endless detail, into their business affairs, private letters, associates.

Scattered, fascinating bits shot like sudden flashes of a neon sign from portions read to jury and courtroom:

"In bed and half-doped with phenobarbitol," a woman describes how she has just learned that her five brothers and sisters have been "exterminated" in Europe.

"The Western Front was nothing . . . the Russian offensive was it," someone opines who hoped Russia would dictate peace terms because she "deserved" to do so.

"The atom bomb," someone is reported as contending, "is the best argument for socialism."

The seats in the courtroom were filled. Housewives in somber dresses and flower hats watched. . . . Girls, their jaws working furiously against wads of double mint, their bodies inclined forward, their eyes agape . . . as if they were watching the middle ring of Barnum & Bailey.

What they were watching was the strange, perhaps unique spectacle of secret FBI reports spread out to the world. Fact and fiction, as an FBI report consists of, tied up in one mass which no layman could ever separate; no one who did not have the background behind the background could separate falsity from truth.

One thing no one could deny: the FBI is able to assemble a mass of exhaustive detail on a very considerable number of persons—persons of well-known names and persons who in some cases may never before have found their way into newspapers.

Or into the courtroom.

One of the Nation's most celebrated personages was on hand as the trial resumed in the morning.

Harold Ickes had responded to a subpena by Defense Attorney Palmer, who wanted him to testify about the truth of one of the 34 data slips found in Miss Coplon's purse concerning Ruth Gruber.

Miss Gruber was identified on the slip as having been "secretary" to Ickes. "Gruber has been reported to have been a contact of F. A. Garanin of the Soviet Embassy, Washington," the slip said.

Actually, Miss Gruber, a writer, worked at the Interior Department, but not as Ickes' secretary. She has said she never was "a contact for anyone."

The "Old Curmudgeon" stood before Judge Reeves yesterday and said he was going to Chicago, but would be back Monday and could come to court anytime on half-hour's notice. He was excused for the time being.

But, he told reporters, he doesn't know "a damned thing" about the trial "except what I see in the papers."

Palmer also has a subpena out for J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, or one of his top assistants.

The most significant new thing in yesterday's trial was not the introduction into public court record of more named Communists row, which, she said, was a "pacifist magazine." She worked next in the same post for the magazine New Masses, and then was employed by Amtorg, Russian trade agency.

Chambers' Wife Supports His Story

Asked if she knew Chambers was a Communist when she married him in 1931, she replied firmly, "I did."

Sympathetic to Communists

Q. "Were you a Communist?"

A. "I was sympathetic with the Communists. I was never a member of the Communist Party."

At present, Mrs. Chambers said, she lives with her two teen-age children and Chambers on the farm at Westminster, Md., which Chambers said he purchased after he abandoned the Communists and joined Time magazine. There he eventually reached a post as a senior editor at $30,000 a year.

It was on this farm that Chambers last November suddenly produced some microfilms from inside a hollowed-out pumpkin, declaring the films showed some of the secret documents provided to him by Hiss.

Not Ill at Ease

Mrs. Chambers, who was Esther Schemitz before her marriage, did not appear at all ill at ease in the courtroom. She nodded pleasantly to Hiss as he stood up when she was asked to identify him, and she smiled at Mrs. Hiss. Neither of them showed any change of expression.

She first met Hiss in Baltimore in 1934, she said, when he was brought to their home at 903 St. Paul st. by Chambers.

"The next time," she said, "was when Mr. and Mrs. Hiss came to dinner."

While they lived at that address, Mrs. Chambers said, she often "met Mrs. Hiss in Vernon Square (Mount Vernon pl.)."

At other times, Mrs. Chambers said, she and Mrs. Hiss had lunch together in Baltimore, and, she interposed, "Mrs. Hiss, by the way, does not like ice cream."

Used Hiss Apartment

In 1935, she said, the Hisses, who were moving to a new residence on P st. in Georgetown, agreed to let the Chambers live in the former Hiss apartment at 2831 28th st. for about six weeks, until the lease ran out.

(Hiss has testified to this, saying the rent was $65 a month but he was never repaid by Chambers.)

At one time, she said, "Mrs. Hiss took both the baby and myself to Hains Point," and on another instance, "we went to Mount Vernon together."

Murphy encouraged similar testimony from Mrs. Chambers to establish the close relationship which the prosecution seeks to show between the two families.

Mrs. Chambers, apparently puzzled by frequent objections from defense counsel Lloyd Paul Stryker that such testimony is immaterial, often became inaudible as she spoke, and Judge Samuel H. Kaufman moved off the bench and into the court clerk's seat in order to hear her.

When Chambers moved to W. 4th st. in New York City, she said, without naming the year, Mr. and Mrs. Hiss "brought the child's bathtub . . . in their car to W. 4th st. for us."

Later, she said, the Chamberses spent some time at a cottage at Smithtown, on the Delaware River, "and Mrs. Hiss came to stay with us for about 10 days . . . Mr. Hiss came at the close of the 10 days to take her back to Washington."

During that period, said Mrs. Chambers, "Mrs. Hiss took care of the baby while I had a little time to do some painting on the Delaware."

Gave Mrs. Hiss a Painting

One of these paintings, a landscape, was given to Mrs. Hiss, and Mrs. Chambers said she later saw it in the Hiss home.

The Hisses, she said, once gave the Chambers a rug "with a patch in the middle"; a dining room table, and a "little table that Tim (Timothy, Mrs. Hiss' son by her first marriage) used to have," all of which are still in the Chambers' possession, plus "two bird books."

Asked if they ever gave anything to the Hisses, she reflected for several moments and then said, "yes, bird charts which Tim had in his room."

At one time, she said, they stayed three to five days in the Hiss home at 2905 P st. nw., where they occupied the top floor. (Hiss has stated this was while the Chamberses waited to move into the 28th st. home and was a favor to "sub-tenants.")

Memorandum Barred

During her testimony, Mrs. Chambers asked if she could look at a memorandum in her pocketbook which listed certain dates or addresses.

"I don't have to look at it," she declared. "If you have plenty of time to bear with me I can remember it."

She was not permitted to examine it. Asked by Murphy if she consulted with her husband prior to appearing before the FBI in Baltimore to make a statement there, she said she did, but "only in reference to various addresses and names . . . our own addresses, dates and names."

Testimony today appeared enmeshed in a welter of names, dates and addresses that caused confusion in more than one instance.

Had No Last Name

When Mrs. Chambers said her husband was known to the Hisses as "Carl," and she as "Liza," Judge Kaufman asked what surname they used. "We never had a last name," she replied.

"I don't quite understand," said the judge in puzzlement. "They didn't know you as 'Chambers'?" She said they did not, and said she did not know if the Hisses knew them by any last name.

(Chambers has stated he used the name "Carl" while dealing with Hiss, saying such pseudonyms are customary in the Communist underground. He said he also used a variety of other names.)

Asked if they used the name "Roy Cantwell," Mrs. Chambers said they did. "Did you use other names?" she was asked, and replied, "Oh, yes, indeed." Among these were "Dwyer," "Green" and "our own name Chambers, with variations."

Describes P St. House

Mrs. Chambers supplied a description of the Hisses' P st. house which had "a green painted sitting room . . . a terrace and a little garden" and "outside the bedroom was a gingko tree."

They and the Hisses used the kitchen while living at the P st. house, she said, but "we soon decided it would be better for us to have separate houses, as pleasant as it was being there."

The Hiss home at 1245 30th st. "in 1936 or '37" had a "pink living room and "the dining room was green." The Volta st. house where they later moved, she said, had one room with "purple-colored chintz curtains" and wallpaper in faded plum-colored pattern."

She said she was aided in remembering the 30th st. house by the fact that "my youngest baby wet the floor . . . and 'Pross' gave me a lovely old linen towel to use as a diaper."

Insists They Were Friends

"We were friends," she stated with conviction, at one point.

"I move to strike that out!" shouted Stryker, who had been pacing the floor near the witness stand. He was overruled.

"You were friends?" declared Murphy.

"Indeed we were," stated Mrs. Chambers with a positive shake of her head.

Stryker, in cross-examining her, asked sharply: "On October 4, 1937, was your husband an underground Communist, yes or no?"

"I believe so," she answered.

Stryker pressed for a definite answer and in the exchange she commented, "I don't know why you keep trying to stump me."

Later, Stryker asked for the date in which Chambers left the party and she replied she thought it was in 1937 or 1938, saying, "It was a long time in coming and after very careful thought . . . that particular moment of 'breaking' was unimportant in my life."

Lots of Work on Farm

For nearly 10 years, Mrs. Chambers said during her testimony, she has occupied herself with her family and her farm, where "I milk 18 cows and take care of 40 head of dairy cattle and 6 beef cattle and some chickens."

When the trial resumes on Monday, she will be recalled for further cross-examination, and it is likely Stryker will closely examine her statements on various dates mentioned today.

Two other witnesses appeared briefly today. Prof. Meyer Schapiro of Columbia University was recalled for further testimony about four rugs he said he had purchased for Chambers in 1936. Chambers said one of these rugs was sent to Hiss by the Russian people in "gratitude" for Hiss' service to communism.

Schapiro said he could not recall where the rugs were sent, except that they went to a man named "Silverman." An "Abraham George Silverman" was accused of being a key Washington Communist in testimony given before the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

The second witness, Francis D. O'Brien, FBI special agent, identified a statement introduced in the trial.

and Communist suspects from top-secret FBI documents.

It was rather the identification of names of persons who have done the informing.

It was not the first time FBI informants have ever been identified in trials.

In at least one other trial the Federal Bureau of Investigation has itself brought to the witness stand informants who testified on counterespionage among the Nation's Communists.

But yesterday a gas-company employe who surely never expected to be publicly identified when he got in touch with the FBI in 1945 and told of the doings of his next-door neighbors in Arlington, Va., found himself being called by newspaper reporters and asked what about it.

They reported all over the world what he had done.

The greater mass of FBI information about suspects, it is claimed, comes from such sources.

It is not by accident that one of the only six "important telephone numbers" listed on the inside cover of a city phone book is "FBI."

Aside from the endless—but crucial—argument of whether a man should in all cases be allowed to face his accusers, one clear fact did emerge from yesterday's trial: the fact that in the future more persons who might report observed activities to the FBI will hesitate before doing so.

Riverdale Boy Drowns at Beach

Norfolk, Va., June 10 (AP).—Johnnie Mack Brown, 12-year-old son of William R. Brown of Riverdale, Md., drowned this afternoon when he waded out too far while with playmates at Ocean View.

The body was recovered approximately 100 yards offshore by Andy Refelowski, Ocean Park lifeguard, some 30 minutes after playmates reported young Brown as missing.

Collisson Named Head Of German ECA Unit

Norman H. Collisson yesterday was named chief of Marshall Plan operations in Western Germany, ECA chief Paul C. Hoffman announced the appointment.

Collisson has been directing ECA activities in Western Germany for the past 10 months, working under Marshall Plan Ambassador W. Averell Harriman.

Under the new appointment, Collisson will be chief of the special mission to Western Germany, will have the rank of Minister, and will serve directly under John J. McCloy, recently appointed high commissioner for Germany.

Collisson is a Philadelphian who joined the recovery program last August. He was a captain in the Navy during World War II, and previously was an industrial power engineer for American Gas & Electric Service Corp., New York.

chairman of the congressional joint "watchdog" committee.

McCarran said he will go before the committee next week to propose a 780-million-dollar reduction in ECA appropriations. He said members of the watchdog committee staff will help him present his case but the recommendation will be his own, not the committee's.

But the Nevadan said he definitely "doesn't want to change administrators."

Praises Hoffman

"Mr. Hoffman has done as good a job as anyone could do," said McCarran. "No one could do a better job. But the program is so big some parts of it are bound to get away from the administrator."

Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.) told newsmen he would like to see some economies, but added:

"I'm not in favor of any crippling cut in ECA. I certainly have a high regard for Mr. Hoffman and hope we will not take such steps as will cause him to resign."

Senator Styles Bridges (N. H.), ranking Republican member of the committee, said he would like to see the program cut "but not enough to hurt its effectiveness." He said the question of where to cut should be left up to Hoffman.

Definite Figure Proposed

Bridges proposed the Senate cut to "a definite, 12-month figure," instead of following the House method. The House cut 1950 ECA funds from $4,198,200,000 to $3,568,470,000, but gave ECA authority to spend all the money in 10½ months if necessary.

Bridges said he wanted a program "Hoffman can administer. wouldn't like to see him go." He's done a good job and I

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, a ranking Democratic member, said:

"In making appropriations we've got to take into consideration our own economy. But we shouldn't cut enough to negate the program."

Hoffman, former president of Studebaker Corp., who left that $96,000-a-year post to take over the $20,000-a-year ECA helm, told newsmen Thursday he would "get my ducks and row home" if he felt at anytime the program could not be administered.

When he appeared before the committee yesterday, McKellar lit into him. He said members of Congress were not to be intimidated.

While Hoffman tried to get a word in, McKellar said the sooner he resigned the better, and accused him of using resignation "threats."

"You have attempted to do it before," said McKellar. "You are not going to do it this time."

Denies Threat

Hoffman finally broke in to say: "Nothing I said implied any threat. I said if I came to the conclusion I could not administer the program successfully, then I would resign."

When Ferguson came to Hoffman's defense, McKellar said, "Well, every man has a right to his own opinion."

Hoffman replied: "I'm here as a matter of public service just as you are, and I'll be here only as long as I can give service and am wanted."

ERP Gains Cited

He told the committee the foreign aid program "stopped the march of the Kremlin to the Atlantic Ocean." He repeated that recovery in Europe "is absolutely essential to peace."

If it came to the point of not balancing the budget or cutting the program too low, "I would take deficit spending," he said.

Hoffman told the committee he wished someone would recognize that ECA is not asking for an increase in funds but for 20 per cent less than the first year's program.

Vindication

In upsetting an important section of the Baltimore press-gag rule, the Maryland Court of Appeals has done far more than merely advance the freedom of newspapers and radio stations to report crime news. It has restored the balance between two relative rights, that of a fair trial and that of a free press, neither of which can be exclusive in a free society.

Rule 904 of the Baltimore Supreme Bench had badly warped one of those rights under the guise of protecting the other. It forbade, among other things, the publication of any confessions made by accused persons after their arrest, the issuance of statements by police or other officials about the accused or bearing on the matter to be tried, or the publication of any material that might interfere with the administration of justice. Three Baltimore radio stations and an individual newscaster had been found in contempt for broadcasting material obtained through violation of these prohibitions.

What the Court of Appeals has done is to chip away at a bad rule by removing the penalties for publication. It found invalid the section of the rule which banned publication of any matter obtained through violation of the rule itself. Previously Judge John B. Gray of the Circuit Court, while upholding the contempt, had declared that the section on possible interference with the administration of justice was too broad.

This newspaper does not in the least condone the excesses of sensationalism that sometimes attend criminal trials. But the cure for these abuses is not a blanket rule that penalizes all newspapers and radio stations in advance for something they might do, that deprives the public of its rightful check on the activities of police and the courts. In reporting the facts, such media are agents of society as a whole. The courts were not intended to be flimsy institutions insulated from the public; and judges have now, as always, the residual power to punish for contempt in cases of clear and present danger to the administration of justice.

Such a case was not present in the Baltimore convictions. As Judge William L. Henderson put it for the Circuit Court majority:

> Trials cannot be held in a vacuum hermetically sealed against rumor and report. If a mere disclosure of the general nature of the evidence relied on would vitiate a subsequent trial, few verdicts would stand.

The same logic applies with equal force against the remainder of a discriminatory rule which screens off an important area of activity from public scrutiny.

Teaching Communism

The National Education Association and The American Association of School Administrators have sponsored a report on educational policies that deals with a wide range of problems. Public interest in the document, however, will center on the question that is currently agitating a great many Americans: namely, how to provide the kind of instruction that enables young people to appreciate the value of democratic institutions and makes them loyal and responsible citizens, without denying them the opportunity to acquire knowledge of alien, anti-democratic theories of government—specifically communism.

The educators have resolved that difficulty by making a distinction between advocacy of communism and objective instruction about the principles and practices of totalitarianism, including those represented by the Soviet Union and the Communist Party in the United States. They take the position that an understanding of alien systems of government is more likely to result in rejection of all forms of totalitarianism than denial of the opportunity to learn about them. For it is the ignorant who fall easy prey to subversive propaganda.

Furthermore, as the report points out, patriotic citizenship "involves responsible action with respect to the international duties and commitments of the people of the United States. Obviously the coming generation of citizen leaders cannot discharge those responsibilities intelligently, if they lack knowledge of the mores and political institutions of other nations. Nor can we support the illusion that the educational system is intended to train men and women to think for themselves and feel free to express their opinions if educational objectives are too narrowly defined.

The N. E. A. report concludes that members of the Communist Party should not be employed as teachers because such membership involves adherence to doctrines inconsistent with the principles of freedom on which American education depends and entails a surrender of intellectual integrity. By that same token it is essential that our schools protect loyal teachers from the deadly influence of bigots who would so narrow the scope of instruction and restrict informed criticism of our own institutional defects as to deprive otherwise qualified teachers of freedom to think for themselves. The report ends with a note of warning to that effect, pointing out that the spirit of free education will be subverted if teachers are unjustly denounced as "Reds" or Communists, merely because their views differ from those of their accusers.

Cutting The Sinews

It has been our contention hitherto that the job of pruning the budget by congressional chipping at specific items in departmental appropriation bills is infeasible. It simply invites unintelligent and uneconomical penny pinching. An example is the Senate treatment of the State Department's educational and information program.

Contrary to past experience, the Senate was more ruthless than the House. The appropriation asked for was 36 million dollars. It had been sheared, of course, by the Budget Bureau before submission to Congress. The House lopped off a couple of million, and when the Senate this week examined it, the reduced House figure was further cut by 1.7 million dollars. This leaves 32.3 million dollars for the entire program.

Now at 36 million dollars the educational and information program amounts to one sixth of 1 per cent of the Federal budget. The military budget, by contrast, is 37 per cent. Where is the sense of values in Congress? The national security, to be sure, depends to a great extent upon the condition of the national preparedness. But the military machine is back of the lines in the present conflict. What is engaging the country right at this moment is a struggle for the minds of men and women the world over between the free and the Communist systems of government. What Moscow is spending is hidden in the Kremlin. But no data are necessary to gather from the events and circumstances of these times of ferment and propaganda that the sum is considerable. It is certainly more than one sixth of 1 per cent of the Soviet budget. It is just as poor economy, surely, to whittle down the ideological budget while the ideological war is raging as it would be to cut the military budget if the Nation were locked in shooting hostilities.

Or take another analogy. Any corporation would be lacking in a sense of proportion if it boggled at an expenditure of one sixth of 1 per cent of its budget on its public relations. At this ratio the company would soon find its sales drying up. The United States is likewise engaged in selling something. It is selling liberty and exposing its opposite in its radio programs, in the newspapers of the world, in educational institutions abroad. The Senate picked upon this last-named activity. Contributions to colleges in Athens, Beirut and Istanbul in the Near East and to institutes in Latin America were knocked out. The action amounts to nothing less than an American retreat in the cold war, to kicking through the American goal.

Much wiser to cut the over-all figure for the Nation's budget and leave the burden of its incidence to the actual administrators who know the facts and are able to appraise them with more knowledge and responsibility than Congress. We hope the conference committee will appreciate this.

Farm Surpluses

The Commodity Credit Corporation has promptly availed itself of its regained authority to provide additional storage space for surplus grain. It plans to increase its own storage space and make loans to farmers up to 85 per cent of cost to finance construction of storage facilities on the farm. The CCC has also agreed to make "distress" loans up to 75 per cent of the full support level on wheat lying in the open or improperly stored, provided farmers agree to provide satisfactory storage within 90 days. Thereafter the balance of the full support loan will be available.

Failure of the Eightieth Congress to respond to Administration appeals for authority to enlarge storage facilities, without which many farmers in the Midwest were unable to qualify for CCC support loans, is believed to have cost the Republicans a good many votes in the last election. Certainly President Truman and his supporters in the preelection campaign made political capital out of that omission. However, it was not merely a political blunder to ignore the complaints of farmers; it was the evasion of a clear duty to fulfill promises to support prices, as provided under existing law. Good faith required the Government to provide storage space so that farmers could qualify for loans instead of being forced, as some have been, to sell their grain at less than support prices, or incur losses resulting from deterioration and spoilage of unstored or inadequately protected supplies.

At the same time the fact that farm surpluses are so great as to necessitate emergency expansion of storage facilities indicates that something is very wrong with the price-support program. Although the record grain crops of last year have filled granaries to the bursting point, bumper wheat and corn crops are again in prospect. As a result the problem of surpluses, already serious, will become progressively worse. This storage deficiency dramatizes in striking fashion the maladjustments caused by Government attempts to maintain prices of farm products above levels at which demand and supply can be equated—levels, in other words, at which domestic and export demands are insufficient to absorb surpluses.

The present program is likely to cost many billions of dollars in money transferred from the pockets of taxpayers to farmers. Moreover, it is a tragic waste of labor and capital, as well as a misuse of land, to grow products that have to be hoarded in order to keep prices at artificially high levels when they might otherwise be used to satisfy the needs of millions of consumers unable or unwilling to pay such prices. It should be obvious by this time that radical changes in the present rigidly high system of support prices are essential both to prevent the system from breaking down under the impact of huge unsalable surpluses and to encourage farmers to adapt their crop production pattern to changing demands. These changes are contemplated under the Aiken law, which has not yet come into effect.

Even the more flexible price support plan called for by the Aiken law requires considerable regimentation of agriculture. Not that in present conditions and circumstances we take exception to Government aid to farmers of Government intervention in agriculture. The problem is one of degree. Moreover, all the implications need to be understood. Much more stringent and comprehensive controls will be necessary if the present system should be retained, or if the Brannan plan were to be adopted. Our farmers cannot have it both ways. That is to say, they cannot expect to enjoy all the advantages of free enterprise if they insist on Government protection against all the risks that other sellers have to assume in producing for free markets.

The price of protection against market vicissitudes is submission to production and marketing controls that will in varying degrees curtail the farmer's freedom of action. The higher and more inflexible the support levels, the more restrictive those control measures are bound to be.

Bomb Custody

While we welcome the statement, it should not have been necessary for Secretary Johnson to state that the military establishment intends to keep its hands off the atomic energy program. Civilian control of atomic energy is the principle clearly established in the McMahon Act three years ago. It has worked well. Mr. Johnson's reassurance became necessary, however, because of the veiled campaign, originating perhaps with scaremongers outside the military rather than within the defense establishment itself, to return atomic energy to the Army. Secretary Johnson's letter to Congress comes as a breath of fresh air—and sanity—in a time of great confusion of issues.

Another aspect of the relationship between the military and atomic energy remains, regrettably, more obscure. For some time an element in the Air Force has been itching for the military to take over custody of the stockpile of atomic bombs. Indeed, they converted the late Secretary Forrestal. Harold B. Hinton, who served as assistant for public information under Mr. Forrestal, has told in an article in the New York Times how Mr. Forrestal just prior to his resignation approached President Truman with such a proposal.

There is no reason to believe that liaison between the Atomic Energy Commission and the defense establishment is other than satisfactory, or that adequate supplies of bombs would not be immediately available to the military in the event of war. There are plenty of reasons, technical and otherwise, however, why turning the bombs over to the military now would be unwise. Such a move could not help but increase the trigger-happiness of the preventive war addicts, and it would constitute a needless aggravation to other nations at a time when the threat of war seems to have lessened. As a necessary corollary to his frank declaration on the atomic energy program itself, Secretary Johnson ought to make it clear that his policy also forbids any military monkeying with bomb custody.

Clapp-Trap

With all the character defamation chronicled on the front pages these days, the reported Army "security" ban on Gordon Clapp seemed right in context. Army Secretary Gray has acted promptly and commendably to rectify the smear. As Tennessee Valley Administrator, Mr. Clapp is probably as capable and loyal a man as there is in the Government. The "disclosure," in a news story from Frankfurt, that he had been declared ineligible for a special assignment with Military Government in Germany was a particularly outrageous slur because Mr. Clapp had sought no such assignment.

Military Government had requested the Army Civil Affairs Division to engage Mr. Clapp for a 90-day period as a specialist in the democratization branch. The first he knew of the whole business was when he saw himself smeared as "unemployable," presumably because of derogatory intelligence reports. Secretary Gray now has explained that an unfortunate misinterpretation of "unemployable" was responsible for the blunder, that the Army has not investigated Mr. Clapp and has no derogatory information about him. This clears the Army of any official part in the blunder, though it does not explain why the matter was leaked from Germany in the first place.

Apart from the temporary discomfiture of Mr. Clapp, however, the bumbling actually may serve a good purpose. The smear in this case was so transparently ridiculous that it can hardly help but cast in similar light some of the other character assaults that are the products of panicky or diseased minds.

Puerto Rico Schools

The Barden bill, H.R. 4643, is fairer to Puerto Rico and other island possessions in naming a specific and more generous amount of assistance than previous aid-to-education bills. Federal assistance to each State in this bill is based on a formula of need and population.

However, since it does not put Puerto Rico in the same category with the States, it is discriminatory and far from adequate to its needs. The stated amount is one-half of what the formula would provide for Puerto Rico if it were treated like a State.

In Puerto Rico the average family has far more school children than in the average State, but the wage-earner's income is only one half that of the average worker in our lowest-income State. The cost of living is surprisingly comparable to that in the United States. Only 4 per cent of the children of the island finish high school, from lack of funds, schools and teachers as compared with 42 per cent in the United States as a whole, and 22 per cent in Mississippi.

The island budget has been severely strained; using one third of its total expenditures for educators, it nevertheless can only provide an average schooling of four years. This inadequate schooling can be remedied only by outside aid. The leaders find lack of schooling a basic obstacle in their attempts to emancipate the island's economy from its chronic maladjustments. They cannot industrialize, improve agriculture, or send good workers to the mainland unless an adequate education is provided.

The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom urges the extension of the democratic principle of equality of opportunity for education for the school children of Puerto Rico—the future citizens of the United States.

Criticism Of Odlum

Drew Pearson in his June 1 column uses for attack Floyd Odlum, known in high financial circles, and recently offered (according to Mr. Pearson) the vitally important position of chairman of the National Security Resources Board.

He tells how "Odlum's Atlas Corp. got Chatham Phenix Allied Corp. for only $8,367,300," a deal by which stockholders lost on their investment. This was in 1933. Further, he states that in 1930 the Odlum Atlas Corp. "managed to absorb the all American General Corp."

Mr. Pearson neglects to remind his readers that during the years of 1929 to 1933, banks and businesses were failing or closing in almost wholesale numbers. In those years a man possessing anything of a gambling spirit, foresight, and business experience, and enough means to hang on to his gamble until business in general could get back on its feet, stood to make huge profits on his investment.

As for Mr. Pearson's constant criticism of the appointment, or the offering for appointment, of "Wall Street men" to important positions in Government, who should be given these appointments?

It is men of great business experience and knowledge in many fields, some steeped in the intricacies of finance, that are needed in Government if it is to be conducted from the business point, successfully. Also, these appointments are not for a specified period of time, incumbents not satisfactory may be removed at the discretion of authority.

In the same column it is insinuated that the Odlum campaign contribution was a bribe for party favors. The fact that many persons, interested in the political life of the Nation, gave good sized "bribes" to campaign funds, is overlooked.

Mr. Pearson finishes his criticism with, "The most dangerous thing about some of these gentlemen is that their backgrounds undermine confidence in national defense." The thing that undermines public confidence—if it is undermined—in defense or something else, is the method used—the unfair, prejudiced, and even vicious way in which some of the gentlemen have been played up to the public by those who have no responsibility in government and apparently feel no responsibility toward it.

Children's Fund

According to the New York Times of April 24, the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund was 28 million dollars short of minimum needs for 1949. Aid had been given to 4,500,000 children; 100 million in Europe, the Middle East and the Far East still needed outside help.

On June 30, the 21 million dollars still unmatched by other governments (at 28 cents to every United States 72 cents) of the United States appropriation of 75 million dollars, will or is supposed to be withdrawn. June 30 is the deadline for any "matching" funds; no private funds can be used for matching this money.

Neither the United States nor Great Britain nor France has plans for a national drive for funds this year. As of April 24, only Switzerland had begun its 1949 campaign to raise funds.

Washington's Weather

I enjoyed Herblock's June 7 cartoon, entitled "Terrible If They Had to Work in Warm Weather." This brings up the question of summer weather in Washington.

The records of the Weather Bureau show that the summer weather in Washington is very little, if any, warmer than in the other large cities on the East coast, including even Portland, Me.; yet on account of the fact that Washington is the National Capital and that the President and Senators and Representatives in Congress and nearly all the other high officials of the national Government are located here, it gets, what seems to be, all of the hurtful advertising about its summer climate.

I have no doubt that hundreds of tourists are kept away from Washington in the summertime by reason of the advertising we get from our own newspapers, to the loss of thousands of dollars by Washington businesses, including the newspapers, themselves.

Our newspapers have always been too "weather conscious." It is enough to publish the simple weather bulletin, as I notice the newspapers in the other large cities do.

We have beautiful spring and fall weather and only a couple of months in the winter and in the summer when the weather is unpleasant. A pretty good record.

Let's boost Washington. We can't change the weather.

Back To Maryland

Since one hears so much fuss about the District not being a State, why not incorporate it within the State of Maryland since it is contiguous to Maryland? By doing this you would have a bona fide city, with city, State and national representation. The name could be changed to Washington, Md., and the District of Columbia could comprise all the Federal buildings including the Capitol, subject to Federal jurisdiction.

Consistency In Soviet Aims

In an analysis of Soviet political moves, one basic assumption must govern the reasoning. The Politburo has not abandoned its original goal of world communism.

The progress of the Communist movement in western Europe depends upon gaining adherence to the party cause and upon engendering dissatisfaction and despair. The destruction of Europe's faith in American aims and integrity, and their loss of hope for an early peace are two of the best means of achieving the above ends. And they have been consistently exploited by Cominform tactics.

It has generally been a debatable question why the Russians chose to call the current Foreign Minister's Conference. One school of thought calls it one move in the latest Soviet "peace offensive." The Kremlin thus appears to the world as the ostensible initiator of new moves toward a settlement.

However, if, as it already begins to be apparent, this conference is abandoned as one more failure at agreement, there will result several effects most advantageous to the long-range policy of the Politburo.

The outstanding effect will be one of renewed depression in the European morale. Secondly, as they have already begun, the Soviet propaganda organs will once again be furnished excuses for demonstrating to the world America's lack of sincerity in working toward peace and understanding. Russian proposals at the conference—obviously highly unacceptable to the west (e.g., German unity) will be exploited in the proper places. The "big lie" will again degrade the anti-Soviet bloc as it has done before, and Soviet actions will be extolled.

The relaxation of the blockade—a seeming indication of Russia's genuine desire to set the field for understanding—it must be remembered, was actually an American-imposed condition prior to the conference. Originally, it was a Soviet move of much less than peaceful intent.

Ending the blockade served to end a condition that had engendered much anti-Soviet sentiment within Germany. It also permitted the resumption of east-west trade within Germany, which was becoming essential in order to arrest the serious decline of the east German economy.

We must continue to assure the constancy of Soviet foreign policy—the goal of world communism—which the Kremlin has yet to renounce. New Soviet political moves will continue as always, to serve Soviet policy—not necessarily world peace.

Man Under A Microscope

By Malvina Lindsay

Post-Machine Age

"IT CERTAINLY is a wonderful age," began the man who was conspicuous for not carrying a walkie-talkie.

"You mean," asked a companion, "this mechanical brain business?"

"No! Haven't you heard?"

"You don't mean they've rocketed to the moon?"

"The moon? Not that I know of. But they're going to try to put happiness under the microscope."

"Well-er-er I guess they're doing a lot now with disease."

"I said happiness! A professor at Harvard is going to study all the happy people he can round up to find out how they got that way. A foundation is sponsoring him."

"Well-er that's interesting. I see where they're about to double the size of the watermelon."

The man without the walkie-talkie gave the other a pitying look. "Another thing," he went on, "we may really get started at last on finding an answer to the big question of the day."

"You mean how can we keep the atom bomb?"

"No, how can we make Junior behave?"

"Well——er of course crime ——"

"I'M NOT talking about crime. What is it every parent in this country's asking—been asking for years? It's how to discipline children, whether to spank or not, how to bring them up so they'll keep out of trouble, be able to make their own way. What have we done about this? Put more money into laboratory study of how to raise better pigs and corn. Now at last there's a bill in Congress to provide research on kids."

"But after all we've made some progress. I understand we're an inch taller than a generation ago."

"You don't say!" the man without the walkie-talkie snorted. "What interests me, brother, is that at last we're doing something about what goes on inside our inches. We've found it's no use to develop a Hercules if he can't obey the law, get along with other people, make a living, bring up his offspring intelligently. That's why I say this is a wonderful age. Why, at the Senate hearings on the 7½-million-dollar bill for child research not a single witness appeared to say 'Now in my day we didn't need this.' Imagine living to see such a time!"

"Oh, this is a great country all right. Look at our production. By another generation our machines——"

"Say, by another generation our workers may have made greater progress than our machines, if we find out what lies behind the will to work. All this research going on in industry and universities as to what makes workers productive, bosses good or bad, ought to turn up something. At least we've caught on that the paycheck's not everything."

THE OTHER man sighed. "I'd have thought we'd have had helicopters on every roof by now. But maybe we'll see as wonderful things in the next half century as we did in the last."

"We'll see more wonderful things, my friend, but different from what you expect. Did you see what Stuart Chase said—that more dependable knowledge on how to live with everybody had been gathered in the last generation than in all history?"

"It sure is a wonderful age. Take the airplane——"

"No take medicine. Every day we hear more about how some disease is related to man's emotions. And take the medical discoveries coming out of man's explorations into the secrets of the universe."

"Yes and take television——"

"No, take the new emphasis in child training in settlement houses and clinics—that of building inner security in children instead of assuming all they need is food, clothes and schooling."

"Well, maybe it's not such a bad time to stick around in. And if we get atomic food and fuel——"

"If we get better children, parents, workers, bosses, officeholders, from all this study of intangibles getting under way, we may be on the road to civilizing ourselves."

"How long do you figure it'll take?"

"Long enough. But it's something to be sitting in at the start."

Government Pay

I have noted with interest, and approval, your indorsement of the military pay bill. In the light of what I consider to be your consistent fairness in such matters, your aid and editorial indorsement is solicited in behalf of a realistic pay increase for civil service employes.

The newspapers are replete with evidence of the need for a substantial increase, across the board for civil service employes. For example, a 2 per cent sales tax has been voted for the District; rents are being increased (mine is to be increased 10 per cent effective next month); the cost of meat and other groceries is on the rise; carpenters are on strike and will undoubtedly obtain a pay increase.

It occurs to me to be poor economy to not provide the Government employe with an adequate wage with which to meet the additional taxes which are being levied and the known cost of his actual living expenses.

Washington Calling

Arab Refugees And Point IV

NO ONE knows better than Dr. Ralph Bunche, the skilled United Nations trouble-shooter, that the present peace in Palestine is no more than a temporary truce so long as certain causes of friction exist in the explosive Middle East. That conviction is behind a confidential report Dr. Bunche made after his return from his successful mediation of the Palestine war.

Childs

There can be no permanent peace, he reported, until some solution is found for the problem of the 700,000 to 800,000 Arab refugees who fled from their homes during the war. These refugees are now being cared for with United Nations funds in temporary camps that are seriously overcrowded.

The same conclusion was reached by George McGee, new Assistant Secretary of State for Middle East Affairs. McGee has just returned from a month in the Middle East, much of his time having been spent in a study of the Arab refugees and what to do about them.

A plan is being worked out, as yet carefully shielded from publicity, to apply President Truman's now-famous Point IV to the problem of what to do about the Arab refugees. Point IV in the President's inaugural address, it will be recalled, proposed to apply America's advanced technical skill to retarded regions in order to raise living standards.

TRYGVE LIE, Secretary General of the United Nations, made a speech the other day intended to prepare the way for a Point IV plan for the Middle East. He was speaking at the University of Chattanooga in Tennessee and he took as his theme the great achievements of the Tennessee Valley Authority and the urgent need for the same approach in the impoverished Arab countries. Referring to Point IV and the presence of the refugees on the borders of Israel, Lie said:

"The interests of the new state of Israel, the newest member of the United Nations, coincide in respect to economic development with the interests of the neighbors with whom she has been in conflict. Lasting peace in Palestine—and in the whole Near East—cannot be achieved by any possible political settlement alone. It will require a comprehensive economic development plan that will harness the waters and other resources of the region for the benefit of all the people living there in the way that TVA has done for the people living in this valley."

Lie urged that with boldness and "the best speed possible," the valleys of the Jordan, the Tigris, the Euphrates and the Nile be developed with hydro-electric, irrigation, and flood-control projects. A somewhat similar proposal comes from the American Zionist Emergency Council in a memorandum prepared by Eliahu Ben-Horin urging the extensive development of Iraq as a home for the refugees.

A political issue arises here. Israeli officials until recently opposed the return of Arab refugees to communities within Israel from which they fled, making an exception for broken families—where the man of the household left behind his wife and children. They have just announced their willingness to restore a larger number in the framework of a general peace treaty.

THE ARAB countries insist that the refugees be returned to the villages from which they came. The deadlock might be broken by the kind of speedy action to restore the fertility of desert valleys that Trygve Lie called for.

But here, of course, you come up against politics in the United States. At the thought of going to Congress for a Point IV appropriation, which would either be part of a U. N. fund or spent directly under American supervision, State Department officials look unhappy.

With the request for arms for western Europe added to aid for Greece, Turkey and assorted trouble spots, the bill for foreign spending is already threatened with drastic economy cuts. But if a Middle East plan is not worked out and the drift continues, then trouble will follow.

Therefore, all possible ingenuity must be used. Perhaps private capital could be interested in some form of investment underwritten by U. N. authority, this to be combined with a small initiating fund provided directly by U. N.

The time is short. In August the fund now being spent to maintain the Arab refugees will be gone. Then at the very least a new relief fund will be necessary.

During the inflation it was argued that America could not spare equipment to be shipped abroad. Now in a deflationary period the economy argument is raised against any proposal to implement Point IV. But leadership—and tangible, practical assistance—can only come from this country.

Baldwin Cursed by Eastland, Ordered From Witness Stand

SENATOR EASTLAND
He explains

C. B. BALDWIN
. . . what he means

By the United Press

Senator James O. Eastland (D., Miss.) openly called a Senate committee witness an uncensored "S. O. B." yesterday and the witness in turn called the Senator a "narrow-minded bigot" and mouthpiece "for the cotton council."

The witness was C. B. Baldwin, secretary of Henry A. Wallace's leftist Progressive Party.

Neither Eastland nor Baldwin minced words in their outspoken exchange of insults.

The cross-fire occurred when Baldwin, appearing to testify on the Mundt-Nixon Communist control bill before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee headed by Eastland, refused to take an oath that he is not a Communist.

Orders Him From Chair

Eastland ordered Baldwin from the witness stand, calling him a "G-- D--- S-- of a B----."

Baldwin stalked angrily from the room shouting that he had no intention of being called names by a "narrow-minded bigot, regardless whether he is a member of the United States Senate."

Both issued statements later. Baldwin said he is not a Communist, but challenged the committee's authority to question him about his politics. Eastland said the uproar was a "Communist front publicity stunt." He said he also had called Baldwin "a liar."

The hearing broke up on the incident and was not resumed.

Baldwin never did get to read his prepared testimony in which he denounced the Mundt-Nixon bill as "a part of anti-Communist hysteria that has been whipped up since the end of the war."

Before permitting any testimony, Eastland insisted that Baldwin take the non-Communist oath.

Baldwin, former Farm Security Administrator, challenged the committee's authority to administer such an oath. He said he had been appearing before Senate committees for 15 years and "I have never been asked such an insulting question before."

Baldwin said he would take an oath of allegiance to the United States, but he said Eastland could not, "in good faith," swear to uphold the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the Constitution.

The fourteenth amendment guarantees citizenship rights and the fifteenth guarantees the right to vote regardless of race, color or previous servitude.

Baldwin said bluntly that he didn't think Eastland represented the people of Mississippi, but that he did represent the "cotton council."

Eastland flushed with anger, fired his profane epithet and ordered Baldwin out of the witness chair.

Baldwin hurled back his own insult and left the room shouting that anyone who supported the Mundt-Nixon bill "violates his oath of office."

Baldwin also told reporters he resented Judiciary Committee Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) branding the Progressive Party as a Communist front.

Gray Tenders Clapp Apology For 'Unemployable' Report

By The Associated Press

Reports that TVA Chairman Gordon Clapp had been ruled "unemployable" for a U. S. Army assignment in Germany brought a profound apology from the Army yesterday and an acknowledgment that an "error" had been made.

Secretary of the Army Gordon Gray did not say who made the mistake concerning the head of the Government's vast Tennessee Valley Authority, but announced that a full investigation is under way.

"The Department of the Army has never investigated Mr. Gordon R. Clapp and has absolutely no derogatory information about him which would warrant his not being employed by the Army for security or any other reasons," Gray said in a formal statement.

Clapp said he himself was mystified by the whole thing.

"Press reports were the first intimation I had of this," he said.

"I can't possibly conceive on what basis they would reach the conclusions they did on my unemployability.

"The fact is I am not available. I have my hands full with my present work."

Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.) telegraphed President Truman protesting "the smear of Gordon Clapp."

"This business of smearing the names of good citizens on unsubstantiated reports has gone too far," he said. "People dangerous to the Government should be ferreted out. Present practice being indulged in by certain Government agencies is defeating the legitimate purpose of investigation and is itself endangering our Constitution and Government."

He called Clapp "an outstanding public official of unimpeachable loyalty."

In additional telegrams to Secretary of Defense Johnson and Secretary Gray, Kefauver said:

"The story as reported in the New York Times this morning smearing the name of Gordon Clapp, whom I consider an outstanding citizen of unquestionable patriotism, is a gratuitous and most damaging insult to a worthy public official.

"I ask that full report be made public together with names of any persons making report or charges, and I am asking that the Committee on Armed Services make full inquiry. Your immediate cooperation will be appreciated.

Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee, later named Kefauver as head of a special investigating committee. Other members are Senators Hunt (D., Wyo.) and Knowland (R., Calif.).

[In Little Rock, Ark., where he is visiting with the President, Defense Secretary Louis Johnson said that Mr. Truman directed him to find out the facts in the Clapp incident.

["We still don't know how it happened," Johnson said. "We couldn't have sent him to Germany without the approval of the President anyway, but nobody even asked the President. Somebody at a lower echelon is responsible for this."—Editor's note.]

In a dispatch from Frankfurt, a Times correspondent said that the Army in Washington had declared Clapp ineligible for a special assignment with the Military Government in Germany. The story said the Military Government had been notified officially that Clapp was "unemployable."

According to the Times dispatch, military government officials had requested the Army's Civil Affairs Division to engage Clapp as a 90-day specialist in the democratization branch of the Civil Affairs Administration. He was to have explained the mechanics of TVA and the role of a citizen in public affairs administration. He was to have explained the mechanics of TVA and the role of a citizen in public affairs to German officials and public groups, the Times said.

Clapp, 43, succeeded David E. Lilienthal as chairman of TVA in 1946 when Lilienthal went to the Atomic Energy Commission.

In Frankfurt, David R. Hunter, chief of the democratization branch of the Military Government's Civil Administration Division, said "all we know here is that we requested Clapp and that the request was rejected by the Army in Washington."

Gray's formal statement apologizing to Clapp indicated that the mixup came through a misunderstanding of the word "unemployable."

He said:

"A preliminary investigation reveals that Mr. Clapp knew nothing about this matter and that the situation has developed from an unfortunate misinterpretation of the word 'unemployable' which was contained in a cable in March, 1949, from the Department to Army headquarters in Germany.

"Both personally and officially I most sincerely regret any aspersions upon the character or loyalty or integrity or ability of this outstanding citizen.

"The procedures which resulted in this error were changed in April, 1949. Had the present procedure been in effect in March, the error would not have occurred. The circumstances resulting in the error are being thoroughly investigated and all the pertinent facts will be made public as soon as they are available."

Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.) also jumped in quickly to say "there is absolutely no question in my mind as to his loyalty."

Atom Committee Votes Closed Hearings on Loyalty Charges

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Joint Committee on Atomic Energy voted 9 to 8 last night to hold closed-door hearings into charges that the Atomic Energy Commission has employed persons with "strong Communist leanings" on atomic energy projects.

The action was regarded as a defeat for Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), who had asked to consider part of the evidence in public hearings without identifying the 15 or 20 individuals into whose employment he wanted to inquire.

Hickenlooper, however, in accordance with a previously announced decision, was not present to vote. Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) cast his own vote in regular order as the ninth Democrat to favor closed sessions.

Hickenlooper denounced the committee's action as a "complete block on the personnel phase of my case." He said he was unable to agree with the majority, and that he had not decided what "course of action," he would follow.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) joined seven Republicans in voting to sustain Hickenlooper's request.

The committee plans to continue open hearings into other phases of Hickenlooper's charges against the commission.

Under the procedure adopted by the committee the commission's action on each of the loyalty cases will be carefully gone into in closed session. The commission will be given an opportunity to defend its actions.

McMahon explained that since the real issue was whether or not the commission had acted properly in respect to loyalty cases, evidence would in general be confined to the written record—FBI files and the transcripts and reports of AEC loyalty boards and loyalty reviewers.

The committee, he stressed, was acting as a judge of the administrative capacity of the commission, rather than as a judge of loyalty of any particular individual.

In a letter to Hickenlooper, McMahon said yesterday than in the handling of these 15 or 20 personnel cases seven objectives should be kept in mind:

1. Providing Hickenlooper with a ful and fair opportunity to present the indictment against the commission;
2. Furnishing the commission with a full and fair opportunity to answer the charges;
3. Protecting confidential FBI files;
4. Fairness to individuals involved in personnel security cases;
5. Avoidance of steps which would lower the morale of employees in the Nation's atomic project;
6. Conduct of the investigation in a way that will reflect credit upon the committee.
7. Enabling the Amercian people to arrive at balanced and correct judgement of the commission's record.

"I believe that discussion of your remaining personnel security cases in open hearing would negate each of these seven objectives. You, yourself, could not particularize, for fear of divulging the details of FBI files and identifying individuals. Therefore, you could not not make out the strongest possible case against the commission.

"While you personally may be willing to accept this handicap, I feel that the Committee cannot fairly pass judgment upon the merit of your grave charges unless it has the benefit of the most powerful and most documented indictment which you can present. Such an indictment, as regards personnel security, is feasible only in the privacy of executive session."

McMahon said he had given Hickenlooper a copy of the letter which he had mimeographed and distributed to the press, but Hickenlooper said he was denied an opportunity to read the letter personally until copies were given to all members.

McMahon said the committee had not yet decided upon procedure in connection with "Case A" who has asked to be heard. Hickenlooper identified him as "in charge" of a top-secret AEC document which has never been made public, but Lilienthal identified him as the author of the document, a quarterly secret report to the joint committee.

McMahon said that to his mind the individual had already been sufficiently identified to cause him "genuine embarrassment" among his coworkers although "Case A" has never been identified in the press or radio.

McMahon was also asked regarding Dr. Edward U. Condon of the Bureau of Standards, whose name has been mentioned as having been cleared by the Atomic Energy Commission.

He said he did not regard Dr. Condon's last letter to the committee as a request for a hearing. "He did not request to be heard," McMahon said.

In his letter to Hickenlooper, McMahon's aid, "I fear that an examination of security cases in public would produce the very confusion against which you warned in your original statement calling for the resignation of Mr. Lilienthal. So many collateral issues would be raised, so many doubts and suspicions would be cast upon various individuals, so much time would be consumed in hearing character witnesses and the like, and so many libel and perjury suits of the Hiss-Chambers variety might eventuate that the American people could hardly be expected to formulate an ordered opinion as to the commission's general record."

"However," McMahon continued, "it seems to me that the traditional procedure of handling this phase of the investigation in closed session would achieve all the desirable objectives which I have mentioned.

"You could document your criticism and the commission could document its defense without reserve; nevertheless, the committee's obligation to protect FBI files would be fulfilled. Likewise, the rights of individuals and the morale of atomic energy employes would remain unimpaired."

In favor of McMahon's proposal to close the hearings into loyalty procedures were Senators Richard Russell (D., Ga.), Tom Conally (D., Tex.), Millard Tydings (D., Md.), McMahon and Representatives Carl T. Durham (D., N. C.), Chet Holifield (D., Calif.), Melvin Price (D., Ill.), Paul J. Kilday (D., Tex.), Henry M. Jackson (D., Wash.).

McMahon said he cast the votes by proxy for Russell, Connally, Tydings, Price and Kilday. In fairness to these members, he said, however, that these discussions have been going on over a period of several days and the members are familiar with all the arguments.

World Bank To Assist Aid Program

John J. CeCloy told Senators yesterday that the International Bank will be used to help finance President Truman's program for aiding backward areas of the world and to continue European recovery after ECA ends in 1952.

McCloy, retiring president of the International Bank for reconstruction and development, appeared before a Senate Banking Subcommittee. He backed legislation that would make it easier for the bank to sell its securities "on the private investment markets" in this country.

Senator Robertson (D., Va.), subcommittee chairman, announced that a favorable report on the legislation will go to the full Banking Committee.

It would exempt the International Bank's bonds and securities from SEC listing and reporting requirements but allow SEC to disapprove any issues later.

McCloy explained the legislation "is intended to broaden the market for the bank's bonds and to facilitate its access to that market by enabling national banks and State member banks of the Federal Reserve System to deal in the bank's bonds."

At present national banks can buy the bonds of the International Bank for their own account up to 10 percent of their capital and surplus. The new measure would allow them to resell them and underwrite them.

Senator Maybank (D., S. C.) asked if the broader sale of International Bank securities would be used to carry out "Point 4 of President Truman's program."

This point is a proposal to aid backward areas and nations by providing American know-how as well as financial aid.

McCloy replied that the International Bank, which now has 48 member nations with $8,350,000,000 subscribed capital stock, is "very much interested in Point 4.

He added that the bank has been providing technicians, engineers and economists to assist on projects that may qualify later for loans.

McCloy said the bank now is concentrating on "development loans," with 150 million dollars in such deals made since 1947.

No loans have been made to England or the British Commonwealth, he said, but one is now under consideration for colonial development in Africa.

McCloy said the bank had 250 million dollars worth of bonds outstanding in July, 1947, and they have "an excellent market record."

William McChesney Martin, jr., assistant Secretary of the Treasury, also testified that the International Bank "will have an increasingly important role in the future development of the international capital market."

Earlier it was learned that the Administration has virtually decided to ask Congress to empower the Export-Import Bank to make limited guarantees of foreign investments by American capital.

Officials familiar with the project, still in secret preparation, said yesterday the aim is to stimulate exports of American capital in line with President Truman's plans for developing backward areas of the world.

Mr. Truman is expected to send to Congress in the immediate future his specific recommendations on what has come to be known as Point 4.

Atom Worker Joined Reds

at the Berkeley laboratory from about June, 1942, to September, 1943.

He acknowledged that he had known "A Mr. Robert Davis" and his wife, Charlotte. But he would not say whether he ever had asked either to join the party.

Davis, who now lives in New York, followed Lomanitz to the stand.

Then Louis J. Russell, the committee's senior investigator, asked Lomanitz to come forward once more.

As the two men stared at each other, Davis said:

"He looks familiar."

He said he believed this was the same man he knew at the laboratory, but he refused to make the identification positive, saying that it had been six years since he had seen him.

Davis said that near the end of March, 1943, he was transferred to the Los Alamos, N. Mex., atomic plant.

But before he left he burned the two Communist cards, his wife's and his own.

Never, Davis said, had he looked upon himself as a real Communist. He had joined out of curiosity, to see what went on, and he had found the meetings "very educational."

If he had known what it would lead to, he said, he wouldn't have joined.

He later was asked to resign at Los Alamos, he said, because the Atomic Energy Commission considered "my character and associations questionable."

Russell read testimony that Davis gave a subcommittee in New York earlier this year.

In it Davis gave this description of female Communists:

"Mostly girls with thick glasses and empty faces who looked like psychology students."

David Bohm, another Berkeley scientist and now an assistant professor at Princeton, was the day's third witness.

He, too, refused to say if he had been a Communist, but declared:

"I have been completely loyal to the United States during my lifetime, and if I had known of any disloyalty I would not have countenanced it."

Chairman Wood (D., Ga.) said he was disturbed by witnesses who say they are loyal but decline to answer questions which he said are intended to protect the United States.

"This is not a witch hunt," Wood said, "but we have been amazed at the laxity in the handling of very vital information. And it is the intention of this committee to introduce legislation to correct this."

Pound Devaluation Unlikely, London Hears

London, June 10 (AP).—The Financial Times said today it is convinced the government has no plan to devalue the pound.

The paper said, "During the past week there have been pronouncements from one public official after another, all couched in unequivocal terms." It added, "There can be no serious doubt about the sincerity" of the denials.

The Financial Times declared "Unhappily, the present state of unofficial strikes suggests that a large and important section of the working population has not even begun to understand the urgent need to produce more, and to produce it more cheaply."

New and Used Car Sales Here Spurt in May

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington sales of new cars in May totaled 2828, a substantial gain over the 2339 for the same 1948 month, the Washington Automotive Trade Association reported yesterday.

This brought sales for the first five months to 12,577, virtually the same as in the corresponding period last year when 12,579 new cars and trucks were titled here.

Sales lagged in the first three months this year, but a spurt in April and May have made up the decline. April sales of 3332 set a new postwar peak here.

The association noted yesterday that local sales of used cars also showed a sharp pickup in May. The total was 4792 last month, against 2876 in May 1948. This brought used car sales here for the first five months to above 1200 more than in the same period last year.

Sales trend for new cars and trucks here by months compared as follows with last year:

	1949	1948
May	2828	2339
April	3332	2770
March	2497	3151
February	1829	1973
January	2091	2346

DIVIDENDS: Suburban National Bank has declared the usual 5 per cent dividend on capital stock, payable June 30 to stock of record June 20. President Fred L. Lutes reported that directors had authorized the transfer of $25,000 from undivided profits to surplus, increasing the latter to $550,000 . . . Gordon Foods, Inc., has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 10 cents a share, payable July 7 to stock of record June 28.

ODD LOTS: John D. Rockefeller, jr., has pledged five million dollars toward the 20-million-dollar needs of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration . . . Walter L. Morgan of Philadelphia and Herbert R. Anderson of New York have been appointed to the Investment Trust Underwriters Committee of the National Association of Securities Dealers . . . American Ice Co. has been offered 65,593 shares of its common stock in response to its offer to buy up to 28,800 shares at not over $9 a share . . . Admiral John H. Towers (retired) and Harold E. Gray were elected vice presidents of Pan American Airways . . . Publicker Industries, Inc., has boosted prices of varying grades of industrial alcohol by 8½ to 11 cents a gallon, effective July 1 . . . The average price of a $1000 real estate bond dropped to $740 on May 31, as compared with $746 at the end of April, Amott-Baker & Co. reports.

TREND RESISTED: Washington department store sales in the week ended June 4 advanced 2 per cent over the same 1948 period, continuing to resist the lower trend throughout the country. For the four weeks ended June 4 local sales were 1 per cent improved. The Fifth Reserve District showed declines of 5 per cent for the week and 4 per cent for the four-week period. The figures were reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

BIGGER DIVIDENDS: Despite the decline in business this year, corporations are paying out bigger dividends than they did in boom time 1948, the Commerce Department said yesterday. Publicly reported cash dividends by corporations in April, totaling $474,400,000, were 3 per cent higher than in April, 1948. For February, March and April combined, they totaled $1,384,000,000 and were 8 per cent above the same three months of 1948. Chief explanation given for the higher dividend payments despite the economic downturn is that business no longer feels a need to set aside so much of its earnings to expand its capacity. The department estimated that total business inventories dropped $1,206,000,000 in April to an aggregate of $53,566,000,000 at the end of that month. It was the biggest postwar decline so far, although the inventory total was still $2,464,000,000 above the same point in 1948.

4th Marine Veterans Will Parade Today

More than 400 members of the Fourth Marine Division Association —veterans of Kwajalein, Saipan, Tinian and Iwo Jima—will parade along Constitution ave., from 4th to 16th st. nw., at 10 a. m. today.

Fleet Admiral William F. Halsey, jr., wartime commander of the Third and Fifth Fleets, will review the parade from the stands between 15th and 16th sts. nw., then address the contingent in the Sylvan Theater.

After the parade, the veterans will hold wreath-laying ceremonies in the amphitheater at Arlington Cemetery, at 2 p. m., in memory of the 17,722 leathernecks of the division killed in four major operations. Maj. Gen. Franklin Hart, USMC, outgoing association president, will lay a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The two-day, second annual reunion of the association will wind up tonight at 8 o'clock with a dinner in the Presidential Room of the Statler. Speaker will be Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.) whose son, Peter, a Marine, was killed at Guam in 1943, by a sniper's bullet.

Minelaying Report Closes Shanghai Port

Shanghai, June 10 (U.P.).—The port of Shanghai was effectively closed to shipping today as air raid fears and reports of minelaying in the Yangtze River indicated that the Communist-held city might have another taste of war.

One high-flying plane—believed to be a Nationalist fighter—was sighted over southwestern Shanghai late in the day.

The unofficial closing of the harbor, trapping one American and one British ship and a number of Chinese vessels, followed reports that two Nationalist naval vessels had been sighted in the lower Yangtze, apparently laying mines.

City authorities opened an official foreign exchange market, with the United States dollar quoted at 1800 "jen min piao" dollars.

Restoration Of Indonesia Seen Shortly

Batavia, Java, June 10 (U.P.).—The chairmen of the Republican and the Dutch delegations negotiating here predicted today that the Indonesian republic would be restored in 10 days.

Mohammed Rum and Jan Van Royen made the prediction in a joint interview with the Republican daily newspaper Merdeka.

Van Royen said he expected a roundtable conference on Indonesia to begin at The Hague, capital of the Netherlands, July 15.

Neutral sources described the statement as overly optimistic. They said such a timetable was "virtually impossible."

Rum and Van Royen said they hoped a cease-fire formula would be found this weekend and within another week Dutch troops could be withdrawn from Jogjakarta, the former republican capital.

Churches Set School Study

In many of the city's churches, the end of the public school year means the beginning of the vacation church school season.

These vacation schools last from one to four weeks and are usually held in the morning. Participants are children from nursery age through high school.

Guided by trained teachers the boys and girls join in a full program of arts and crafts, story-telling and dramatics, Bible study and worship. Some of the schools plan trips to nearby points and picnics or swimming parties.

Last summer nearly 21,000 children were enrolled in about 200 such vacation church schools, according to Mrs. Josephine H. Kyles, assistant executive secretary and director of children's work of the Washington Federation of Churches.

The federation is the area's center of church school activity. There pastors and school leaders may learn where to get material for use in their schools and may borrow slides, filmstrips and recordings.

During the winter, the federation conducted a four-week institute for leaders and teachers, with demonstration classes and training in arts and crafts. Yesterday there was a clinic at which the leaders of schools exchanged ideas for this summer and discussed plans and problems.

Chevy Chase Group Wins Church Award

One of three national awards in an "Adventures in Christian Fellowship" contest will be given the Fireside Group of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Chevy Chase pkwy., it was announced yesterday.

The contest was sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews and the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church, United States of America. Awards were presented to church groups for outstanding programs, during a two-month period, to better understanding of those of different racial, religious and cultural backgrounds.

Members of the Fireside Group, which is composed of high school-age boys and girls, will use their $40 scholarship award to help send delegates to youth conferences in this area during the summer.

Honorable Mention Award

An honorable mention award in the contest was given to the Young People's Group of Eastern Presbyterian Church, 609 Maryland ave. ne.

The Chevy Chase young people participated in a varied program in order to win the award. They attended interracial and interdenominational meetings at both white and Negro churches and met with high school students from the Chinese Community Church, 1011 L st. nw.

They went to a morning service at the Washington Hebrew Congregation, 822 8th st. nw., at which Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld explained some of the background of Jewish religious rituals and beliefs.

Constructed Two Tables

For a project, they constructed two badly-needed tables for one of the city's Negro churches. In addition, they corresponded with members of a church in Germany, which has been adopted by their church.

Dr. Seth R. Brooks, pastor of Universalist National Memorial Church and chairman of the clergy advisory committee of the Washington office of the NCCJ, will present the award to Dr. J. Hillman Hollister, pastor of Chevy Chase Church, at 7:30 p. m. on June 19.

The honorable mention award will be given to Dr. W. N. Vincent, pastor of Eastern Church, at 7 p. m., Sunday, by Miss Grace Mattingly, cochairman of the Young Adult Committee of NCCJ here.

House Put Up in One Hour

CONVEYOR BELT JOB—The three-bedroom house erected on Fort Worth dr., Alexandria, by Reliance Homes, was manufactured in Lester, Pa., and shipped here in seven sections by trailer

District Firm Erects Shell Of 3-Bedroom Home in Hour

By Conrad P. Harness
Post Reporter

A local building firm is erecting three-bedroom home shells here in one hour. For a garage and breezeway, you'll have to wait a half-hour longer.

"On-site erection of industralized housing" is what it is called. Prefab homes built on a factory conveyor belt system are trucked to the lot and placed on a prepared foundation site.

A huge crane transfers the seven sections from trailer to foundation as a four-man crew bolts each section to the foundation. The final result can be sen on Fort Worth dr., 3 miles past Alexandria out Duke st. extended. The builder is Reliance Homes of Washington, D. C. The factory is at Lester, Pa.

Two Weeks to Complete

Although the "shell" of the house can be put in place in one hour, explained Charles B. Lawrence, jr., president, it takes 10 days to two weeks to make all connections, paint, decorate and complete to the home for final delivery to the customer. The two-week period compares with 3 to 6 months with conventional construction techniques.

The three-bedroom homes, of which there are three models, cost $8500 erected on the owner's lot. A garage and breezeway cost an additional $975.

The unique prefabricated home is built of ribbed aluminum, painted to customer specification at the lot site. All interior framing is of channeled steel welded at the factory. The seven sections are bolted both to the foundation and to each other.

Home Insulated

The home has a utility room, kitchen with full equipment, three bedrooms, bath, dinette, living room and a small covered front porch. The home is both insulated and ventilated.

Lawrence said the homes were approved by the Veterans' Administration for $10,000 loans. Financing has been established at 4 per cent interest over a 25-year period, Lawrence said.

Seven homes have been erected in the Alexandria area, Lawrence declared, and one in Lanham, Md. Orders for 20 more in the area have been taken.

British Exports, Imports Increase

London, June 10 (U.P.).—Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, said today that British exports in May reached an all-time postwar high but imports increased, too.

Provisional figures showed exports of 606 million dollars and imports of 780 million dollars.

Wilson said that allowing for reexports, Britain's unfavorable trade balance in May was about 152 million dollars, compared with an unfavorable balance of $178,400,000 in April.

Representative John W. McCormack (D., Mass.), House majority leader, will discuss international affairs at the annual Communion Breakfast of the Holy Name Society of the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, Sunday at 9:30 a. m. at the Broadmoor, 3601 Connecticut ave. nw.

The Rev. E. Jerome Winter, newly installed pastor of the Shrine, and the Rev. R. Paul Repetti, spiritual director of the society, will also address the group.

Two Senators Urge Building Of Offices

Two Senators yesterday urged approval of funds to start the proposed new 20-million-dollar Senate Office Building.

The Senators, Theodore Francis Green (D., R. I.) and John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) made their appeal to the Senate Legislative Appropriations Subcommittee. Its chairman, Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.), has strongly protested the project.

Green and Sparkman testified as members of the Senate Office Building Commission set up to supervise the project. The House cut from the legislative money bill the 10 million asked as the first appropriation to start the new building.

Green Cites Comfort Need

In asking that the 10 million be restored to the bill, Senator Green said that because of the strain under which Senators work, they should be provided facilities to work in comfort, but not in luxury. He said there should be facilities too, to help busy Senators take care of their health.

Ellender suggested that 20 million was a high price for the proposed building. Green said he did not think the public would want to see a cheap office building put up.

Ellender asked if it were not true there had been no public hearings on the need for the new building. Green conceded that was so, suggesting that it was not a subject of general interest.

Hopes for Public Interest

Ellender said he hoped the public was interested because it was their money that would put up the new building.

Senator Green said he believed the public was more interested in seeing Senators get their work done, and "in getting the answers to their letters."

He said the new building was morse sensibly planned than the existing one, where, he said, there is serious waste of space.

Sparkman said he did not believe that in the interest of economy "we should sacrifice the dignity that ought to attend the Senate."

Gen. Marshall To Attend VMI Graduation Rites

Lexington, Va., June 10 (AP).—Gen. George C. Marshall, former United States Secretary of State, will return to Virginia Military Institute Saturday for the beginning of the school's 110th commencement exercises.

Marshall, also a former Army Chief of Staff, is a graduate of the institution's class of 1901. He was a cadet first captain and a star football tackle during his years at the school.

He is expected at VMI in time for the dress review of the cadet corps at 5 p. m. (EST).

The Rev. Randolph Lynn Gregory, pastor of the Franklin Baptist Church, will deliver the school's baccalaureate sermon in Jackson Memorial Hall on Sunday. After the sermon, the class of 1924 will hold its twenty-fifth reunion.

The alumni will review the cadet corps Monday morning. Virginia's Governor Tuck will review the regiment the same day, while a formal guard mount will take place Monday afternoon.

The school's graduation parade is set for 5 p. m., Monday afternoon.

New York, June 10 (U.P.).—John Santo, former director of organization for the CIO Transport Workers Union, who had been ordered deported as an alien Communist, left voluntarily for Europe today aboard the Dutch liner Nieuw Amsterdam.

Santo, accompanied by his wife, Lucy, said he would go directly to Rotterdam, the Netherlands, and then to Budapest, Hungary. He is a native of Romania.

Novena Planned At St. Stephen's

The annual Novena to the Sacred Heart will be held at St. Stephen's Church, 25th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., beginning Thursday, the Rev. Joseph F. Denges, newly installed pastor, has announced.

Services will be held at 5:20 and 7:45 p. m. each day, with masses at 6:30 and 7:30 a. m. The Rev. John Tracy, O.M.I., of Catholic University, will deliver the sermons.

Russia Prevents Success of U. N., Allen Declares

Grinnell, Iowa, June 10 (U.P.).—Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen said tonight that the United Nations can not be successful as long as Russia remains a dictatorship.

He delivered a prepared address before the Institute of International Affairs at Grinnell College.

"A successful world federation will not be achieved until governments responsible to the will of the people are established in all of the major countries of the globe," he said.

"Let us face the facts squarely and honestly. The U. N. with all its virtues, has not yet been able to achieve freedom from fear. The reason is easy to understand. Its second most powerful member is not a democracy. The Russian people are not free."

Allen said the Kremlin does not understand the meaning of the word "cooperation." Either it must dominate or it refuses to play on the team, he said.

Lone Citizen Urges Suburban Tax Rise

Fell Recently

Col. Barnwell Found Shot Dead in Home

Lieut. Col. William G. Barnwell, jr., 38, was found shot to death through the left temple, a .45-caliber automatic at his side, in his new Alexandria home last night.

Barnwell, who had been suffering severe headaches since a fall in a tub two months ago, left a note addressed to his wife, police said.

His wife, Mary, returned home with their two young children from a playground at about 5:30 p. m. and found his body sprawled on the floor of the bedroom of their apartment, at 200 Belle View blvd, New Alexandria.

Assigned to a Pentagon personnel record board, he was due to be transferred to Germany next month, police said.

Born in Georgia, he was graduated from West Point in 1934 and later attended the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga., and the Command and Staff School.

He was wounded in action in World War II and held the Purple Heart, the Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star Medal with two clusters.

Fairfax County coroner issued a certificate of suicide in the case.

The first of three scheduled budget hearings on the proposed 17 million dollar Montgomery County budget was highlighted last night by discussion of a proposal to reduce suburban taxes.

Debate on the question at the Rockville hearing, attended by about 50 citizens, was touched off by A. D. Farquhar, Sandy Spring insurance executive, who argued against the reduction.

The present additional suburban tax of 31 cents per assessed $100 valuation should be increased rather than reduced to 20 cents as proposed by County Manager I. G. McNayr, Farquhar said.

"It just does not make sense that 20 cents is enough suburban tax to carry its share of the load," he declared.

Stirs Indignant Protests

Lone citizen to express the view, Farquhar was immediately answered by several indignant suburban residents including Blair Lee 3d, a Silver Spring Board of Trade executive.

"More than 80 per cent of all county funds comes from the suburban area and I don't see why the surburban area should pay any additional tax," Lee said.

He was supported by McNayr, who told the group: "I feel that suburban taxpayers are more than paying their way and I could not justify retaining the 31-cent tax."

In addition to the basic county tax rate of $1.88, McNayr said, suburban property owners must pay 15 cents to the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, 10 cents to the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, plus front foot benefit charges for sewer and water service and an extra fee for refuse collection.

Better Sewers Asked

About a dozen citizens from Woodmoor subdivision, Silver Spring, asked for better storm water drainage. They were told $40,000 has been allocated in the proposed 1949-50 capital budget for the purpose.

Speaking for the county safety board, Stephen James urged retention of budget proposals to hire a traffic safety engineer, employ six additional policemen and expand the county legal department to provide for "clarification" of traffic laws.

John T. Moore, representing the county civic federation, told the county council his group had indorsed the budget as submitted with minor reservations.

Two other hearings are scheduled. One is set for Monday, on police, health and welfare items. The other is set for Wednesday on school appropriations. Both will be held at 7:30 p. m. in Montgomery County Courthouse at Rockville.

Venus Endangers Morals of Italy, Government Rules

Rome, June 10 (AP).—Botticelli's famed Venus has been banished to the somber confines of the museum and leftists in Parliament are gleefully making a political issue of it.

Reproductions of "the Birth of Venus," the fifteenth century artist's conception of the goddess standing nude in a giant seashell, appeared on posters proclaiming an art festival.

The interior ministry decided this endangered the people's morality. Police banned the posters.

Musicians Reelect Petrillo by Landslide

San Francisco, June 10 (U.P.).—James C. Petrillo was reelected to his ninth consecutive term as president of the American Federation of Musicians (AFL) today by a landslide vote of delegates attending the union's fifty-second annual convention here.

He won by a margin of 1391 to 75 over Everett Henne, Mattoon, Ill., who gave Petrillo his first opposition for the office.

That Statler 'Steno' Really Is Ann Blyth, Here 'On Location'

By John London
Post Reporter

Maybe it was a tribute to the rarefied beauty of Washington secretaries . . .

Or perhaps just the blind concentration of the stolid American businessman?

Anyway, this is a Hollywood-comes-to-Washington incident and it goes like this:

One Wally Fauqier, assistant Statler Hotel sales manager, beelines up to the secretary's desk. Business-like as Babbitt, he demands: "Is Mr. Blunck in?"

And the very special symphony of beauty and poise seated at the secretary's desk almost drops a lovely lower jaw.

That secretary really isn't a secretary, see? She's a movie star, name of Ann Blyth.

Miss Blyth was playing like she was a secretary because that's the part she'll play in a movie "Free For All" which is being filmed here, in part.

And newspaper photographers were just about to snap her making like a secretary in the office of Statler Manager Herbert C. Blunck. There because Miss Blyth is staying at the hotel.

Miss Blyth, a ripe 20, who can type, too, will polish her deskside facade by spending a night, maybe Monday, at the G-girl haven, Arlington Farms.

Today she and costar Robert Cummings will sally forth with a Universal-International Pictures crew, about 8 a. m., and shoot some scenes along Pennsylvania and Connecticut aves. and the Q Street Bridge. They'll be on location here till Wednesday—Georgetown on Sunday, Mount Vernon on Monday, Tidal Basin area Tuesday, Highway 240 near Germantown on Wednesday.

The film, Miss Blyth told reporters at a press conference, will be about a chap "who invents a pill that makes your car go." Of course there'll be such things in the movie as a car-helicopter race and a crash and amnesia—and Miss Blyth.

Fast to Talk on Red Trial

Howard Fast, writer, will discuss why he believes the current trial in New York of Communist leaders is a "basic affront to American traditions," tonight at 8:15 o'clock, in the Press Club auditorium, it was announced yesterday in a release signed by the "Joint Sponsoring Committee."

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—In the House of Commons recently a Laborite made a speech attacking Winston Churchill—a personal attack, replete with scurrilous phrases about the former Prime Minister, who was impatient to reply . . . "Don't answer him, Winston," a colleague advised. "Stand on your dignity. Just stand on your dignity" . . . Churchill arose to reply, pausing only long enough to whisper to his colleague: "I know of no case where a man added to his dignity by standing on it."

Celeste Holm, who just returned from a trip in which she entertained GI's in France, Morocco, Italy and Greece, met Justice William O. Douglas, who is flying to Europe and the Middle East next week. "I too am going to France, Morocco, Italy and Greece," said Justice Douglas. "I'll be in the same places you were" . . . "Yes," replied the screen star, "and I hope you get as many laughs."

Charles MacArthur was startled at the front-page reports from the Judith Coplon trial mentioning his wife, Helen Hayes, as a Communist fellow-traveler. Miss Hayes has been a Republican for at least the past 12 years. "They'll be going after Judge Medina next," said MacArthur yesterday. "It doesn't do you any good to be a Republican anymore. Nobody, incidentally, is more demonstrably red, white and blue than my bride" . . . When he was told that an investigation may result, MacArthur said: "In the words of Harold Ross, during a routine check on Robert E. Sherwood: 'You might as well investigate the American flag.'"

Jack Grumet, former head of the homicide bureau, once questioned "Kid Twist" Reles about the activities of Murder, Inc. Reles told the prosecutor, in fascinating detail, about a long series of killings in New York. "How can you remember so many details about so many murders?" the prosecutor asked him . . . "You're a lawyer. And when you get together with other lawyers, you talk about law, don't you?" replied Reles. "Well, we also talked shop."

During a conference in New York this week, among various businessmen who were negotiating a meeting, someone started to open the window after complaining of the heat. Leon Henderson, the former OPA administrator, told him to shut the window immediately. "We're using the old OPA method, in negotiating" Henderson explained. "We used to keep the room hot and smoke-filled. That helped reach an agreement quickly" . . . 15 minutes later, in the hot, smoke-filled room, the perspiring men reached an agreement.

One on the Aisle—

'Hellfire' Offers An Unusual Doll

By Richard L. Coe

IN THE EFFORTS to dish something new into the Western formula, odd things happen. Not the oddest, but peculiar enough, is the Metropolitan's "Hellfire."

William Elliott, an upright warhorse of the hoss operas, plays a Biblical sort of chap, a lay preacher who dropped gambling when a minister saved his life. He wants to pass along the faith his religion has brought. The girl—naturally, it's a girl—is a sort of hoss opera Sadie Thompson, though Somerset Maugham might be affronted at such an allusion. Albeit, she's a female bandit named Doll Brown, and both the law and rival bandits want her life.

This is a switch, of sorts, on the usual Western plot, though deeper students of the genre than I may well recall similar situations.

What I found most interesting about Doll Brown—played by a strange but sultry lady named Marie Windsor—is that she took to banditry because she just couldn't stand being one of those saloon entertainers without which no Western seems able to introduce a female in tights. I think this was a right spirited thing for Doll to figure out and I'm delighted to know that the girls of the Old West are tired of popping up in Westerns only as saloon babes who want to be schoolteachers or versa vice.

The script writers of "Hellfire" haven't been able to stick to their ideals, though, and before the picture is over you've seen Marie, her gams shimmering in black tights, chanting away while the boys down their likker. So it looks as though there's still no new way for the girls to be sexy in Westerns unless they're in one of those bars. Still, it's nice to hear one of them speak her mind.

The rest of the picture hasn't much to recommend it. It is photographed in that unfortunate process called Trucolor, a device firmly convinced that the world is all orange-hued and puce. The actors. Have that. Curious way. Of. Talking. In little words. Recited slowly. So that. All can catch. What. Is being. Said.

It ain't literary. But it's. In the. Western tradition.

MERIDIAN HLL PLAYS: Although the downtown box office site has not bet been determined, the Washington Theater Festival announces that it will accept mail orders for the engagement of Elisabeth Bergner in "Amphitryon 38" . . . Send checks, self-addressed, stamped return envelopes and other details to: Washington Theater Festival, Room 1017, Dupont Circle Building . . . "Amphitryon 38" will open Sunday night, June 26, and play nightly through Saturday, July 9 . . . Opening night prices will be $4.80, $3.60, $2.20 and $1.80 . . . Other nights will be $3.60, $2.20, $1.80 and $1.20.

"THE WINDOW," that excellent chiller from RKO, is makin. its rounds of the neighborhood houses . . . Hot F st. competition cut its downtown run, but this is a good one and it would be a fine idea to check the neighborhood ads these days to find it.

OLNEY'S latest to sign the dotted line is an old magnate for the country circuit. Edward ert Horton . . . The big news is that he's NOT playing "Springtime for Henry," certainly the strangest citronella item imaginable . . . Instead, you'll be seeing him the week of July 12 in Noel Coward's "Present Laughter," which Clifton Webb played at the National before going to Gotham.

THE LITTLE is devoting this month to a request season . . . At the instant, "You Can't Take It With You," is linked with "One Night of Love" . . . Hmmm . . . Wednesday begins a week of England with Charles Laughton, Vivien Leigh and Rex Harrison in "Sidewalks of London" and Ralph Richardson and Ann Todd in "South Riding." . . . Others set include "Carnival in Flanders," "Rubens," "Lost Horizon" and "An Ideal Husband."

THE AVC revue, "Sticks and Stones," will be revived this afternoon for a performance of its hits at the ADA garden party from 4 to 9 at the home of Columnist and Mrs. Marquis Childs, 501 Dorset st., Chevy Chase, Md. . . . Another reason for attending this fete is to watch The Washington Post's great Herblock receive an award for his provocative cartoons

"HELLFIRE"—Republic release produced by William J. O'Sullivan. Screen play by Dorell and Stuart McGowan. Photographed in Trucolor by Jack Marta. Songs by K. Shaw and G. A. Minor, B. Reeves and F. Campbell. Directed by R. G. Springsteen. At the Metropolitan.

Blue Plate Special:

BELMONT STAKES DEPT. None need apply for this one, except those who can go a mile and a half, with some expectancy of beating the Calumet Farm's Ponder, today. The Derby, at a mile and a quarter, and the Preakness at a mile and three-sixteenths, disposed of most of Ponder's opposition in the Belmont, but seven will nevertheless contest against the Derby winner.

The one colt that could take Ponder, it is agreed, is Isadore Bieber's Palestinian, which also has shown a liking for the killing route of the Belmont. But in Ponder's case, a new factor has entered the reckoning.

POVICH

Trainer Hersch Jacobs is fearful now that Palestinian left his Belmont race on the training track the other day when he whirled around the track in a mile workout in 1:38 and a fraction, under startling circumstances. Jacobs does not like to bring his charges along that fast.

Unknown to Jacobs, however, was the fact that the exercise boy up on Palestinian was lately suffering from broken ribs and lacked the strength to keep the colt in hand. Palestinian may have lost the Belmont to Ponder two days ago.

DETROIT TIGERS DEPT. All of a sudden, the Tigers, brushed off as a pennant contender in Florida last March, have become the team the league-leading Yankees must watch. The Tigers, with nine wins in their last 11 games as of yesterday, are the first team to take up the chase of the Yankees with any intensity, and were in second place only 3½ games out of it, as we went to press.

The evidence now is that Detroit, not the Yankees or Cleveland, has the top pitching staff in the American League. There is no club that can match the Tigers' four starting pitchers, Hal Newhouser, Virgil Trucks, Freddie Hutchinson and Al Houtteman. Trucks and Houtteman are the come-latelies for the Tigers.

Everybody knew that Trucks was a tremendous pitcher any time he could get squared away, and this apparently is the year. There is doubt that Newhouser or Feller, or anyone else at his best, can throw a harder fast ball than Trucks. And Houtteman, who won only two games against 16 defeats last year, never was rated that bad a pitcher. He had too much stuff and too much tough luck. The best evidence that he has recovered from his automobile accident skull-fracture of last March is his three wins for the Tigers in four starts.

NATS DEPT. The Washington Club got a break in the schedule when it encountered two off-days this week. The Nats could use 'em, after three straight defeats in which their pitching staff was exposed as overworked, and lacking in relief men.

The Nats were operating on a thin basis, anyway, with their lack of infield reserves, and the sprained ankle of Third Baseman Eddie Yost, at a time when he was beginning to collect the long hits that had been predicted for him, is a tremendous setback. With Yost out for three weeks, and Mark Christman called off the coaching lines as a replacement, the Nats are, well, in foul shape.

Two months ago in Florida, the Nats' lack of reserves was painfully apparent. When Buddy Lewis was hurt, Joe Kuhel had to install Second Baseman Sherry Robertson in right field. His pitching was so thin that in recent games he has used Scarborough and Masterson in relief. The front office was either deluding itself in those happy first six weeks of the season that injuries wouldn't happen to ball players, or was painfully negligent. It's adding up to hard times for the Nats.

FRANKIE FRISCH DEPT. The new manager of the Cubs, who signed a 3-year contract yesterday with the understanding that he would improve the fortunes of that seventh-place club, has been a sports-page figure since 1917. That's when Frankie Frisch, more famed as a halfback than a second baseman at Fordham University, was honored with a place on Walter Camp's second All-America team.

Frisch's father, a German-born linen importer in New York, always was baffled by his boy's exploits at Fordham, where he was not only scoring touchdowns every Saturday, but commanding the eyes of major league scouts with his .471 batting average and acrobatic stops in the infield.

"Yes," said Frisch, senior, "you send your boys to college and they play football and baseball."

Like Eddie Collins, who came out of another New York campus, Columbia, Frisch jumped directly from college into fame as a big league second baseman. John McGraw installed him in the lineup immediately, and he became the first player in history to bat more than .300 in four successive World Series. The Giants didn't win another pennant until years after McGraw, in an ill-guided decision, traded Frisch to the Cardinals. Frisch was the man the Giants wanted as manager after McGraw retired, but when the Cardinals wouldn't release him, they settled for Bill Terry.

Frisch Replaces Grimm as Cub Pilot

By Bill King

Boston, June 10 (AP). — Jolly Charlie Grimm quit the Chicago Cubs bench for its front office and Frankie Frisch became his managerial successor for a three-year term today.

That shakeup was described by Owner Philip K. Wrigley as "the best way to get the club ahead."

Wrigley said that Grimm, manager of the Cubs for about 14 years since 1932, suggested his own transfer as the club's vice president in charge of baseball operations and Frisch's appointment as his successor.

Frisch Managed, Cards, Pirates

Frisch, also a veteran pilot in the National League ranks, managed the St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates, between a Boston baseball broadcasting assignment, from 1933-1946.

Again vowing he was "through forever with managing," Frisch returned to the airways in New York in 1948. But this season he again was lured away from his microphone by Leo Durocher, who persuaded him to rejoin the New York Giants. He broke in with that club as the "Fordham Flash" in 1919.

Recently Frisch had a brief managerial fling when Durocher sat out his latest suspension.

"I felt the move was necessary to give the Cubs another baseball man in an executive position," Wrigley explained. "Charlie will live longer in his new job."

Durocher Okays Deal

Wrigley added that Frisch would take over the Cubs in Chicago next Monday and that Jimmy Gallagher, who has been general manager, would continue with the club as its vice president in charge of business matters.

"Charlie was the first to suggest this change," Wrigley continued. "We discussed it for several days in New York and then we contacted Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, to get Frisch. We never would have made this switch if Stoneham had been unable to persuade Durocher to give Frankie his release."

The wealthy Chicago owner explained that he was "not too happy about the way the Cubs have been going" but expressed confidence that his club would win with Frisch managing it and Grimm providing new player strength.

Rosecroft Trotter's Test Hints 'Doping'

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

The first hint of doping in Maryland's brief harness racing history broke into the open shortly before midnight last night at Rosecroft Raceway.

Presiding Judge Wayne Groves, representative of the Maryland Racing Commission, announced that a positive saliva reaction had been discovered on Miss Bonnie Lassie, winner of Thursday night's first race.

Pending a hearing by the racing commission, Judge Groves said the horse, owner and trainers are suspended.

The 4-year-old mare, which paid $4.80, was driven by Alan Myer, 24-year-old member of the Bridgeville, Del., harness clan. Alan and his brother, Jimmy, 30, are trainers for the horse. S. S. Mather, of Princeton, N. J., is owner. All are affected by the suspension order.

Young Alan has been one of the most active drivers at Rosecroft's initial meeting. He's driven in 32 races and has finished in the money 10 times, winning on four occasions.

Ironically, the news broke on the Oxon Hill track's thirteenth night. A banner crowd of 7762 wagered a new mutuel high, $270,037.

It was a night that saw form going out the window. Even in the featured Governor's Cup in which the same field competed twice, two distinct longshots won.

Snead Has 73 Again; Worsham 6 Off Pace

Chicago, June 10 (AP). — Al Brosch, a near-sighted pro from Garden City, N. Y., grabbed a halfway lead of one stroke in the 72-hole National Open Golf Championship today with a one-under-par 141.

His steady game staved off two spectacular second day rounds by a pair of veterans.

Six former open champions were eliminated as the field was narrowed to 51 for tomorrow's closing 36-hole rounds.

Brosch, who can't see the tee without his strong-lensed spectacles, plodded over Medinah's "graveyard of champions" No. 3 course today in par-matching 71.

Yesterday, the 37-year-old shooter whose most recent title was the Long Island, N. Y., Open he won last year, toured the torturously wooded 6981-yard layout in 70.

That took the zing out of a course-equalling 67-round by Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis golfing dentist, and a 68 by O'Neal (Buck) White of Greenwood, Miss., who taught Middlecoff most of the golf he knows.

Middlecoff, equaling the Medinah course record shared by Tommy Armour, Byron Nelson and Lloyd Mangrum, and White shot 75 and 74, respectively, yesterday to tie for second midway at 142.

Kennedy Loses Touch

The opening round leader, Les Kennedy, youthful pro from Pawtucket, R. I., today could only add a 2-over-par 74 to yesterday's 69 for a fourth spot tie with Claude Harmon, 1948 Masters Champion, and husky Clayton Heafner at 143.

Pretourney favorite Samuel Jackson Snead, the West Virginia gentleman, had trouble today and wound up at 146.

Lew Worsham, the 1947 Open Champion from Washington, D. C., had his share of trouble too, and soared to a 76 today giving him a two-day 147.

Snead, whose reformed putter which gave him the Masters' and National PGA crowns earlier this season, went suddenly sour on him has knitted together a pair of lackadaisical 73s.

Hurlers Alerted

Nats Send Masterson After Tigers

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Detroit, June 10.—Hoping that it won't be necessary to use them at all, Manager Joe Kuhel today, nevertheless, ordered every member of his hurling staff to be ready for action in the weekend series against Detroit.

Walter Masterson will start tomorrow's single game, with Ray Scarborough and Sid Hudson docketed for duty in Sunday's doubleheader.

The others—Mickey Haefner, Joe Haynes, Paul Calvert, Dick Welteroth, Dick Weik and Lloyd Hittle, if he reports in time, have been assigned to the bull pen for the weekend set.

An Emergency

Kuhel's change of tactics—assigning first-flight hurlers to the bull pen—is strictly an emergency measure, not one of preference. He'd like to see his starters—Haefner, Haynes and Calvert—rest, but with the Nat relief pitching situation being what it is, Kuhel had no choice.

He's determined that the fourth-place Nats, won't blow leads of 8-3 like they did in Cleveland Wednesday and 4-1 like they did against the White Sox Sunday.

The Nats should have won both of those games and boast an impressive record of six wins and two losses on the current journey instead of the 4-4 mark they now own.

The schedule idled the Nats for the second straight day today, but they didn't rest. Instead, they held a two-hour workout at Briggs Stadium, a drill which saw First Baseman Eddie Robinson park eight drives deep into the right-field bleachers in a long batting session.

Fred Hutchinson, Tiger right-hander who faces the Nats tomorrow, was one of the Detroiters who watched Robbie's display of power and gulped when Robinson unloaded his seventh batting practice homer.

"That ball is almost as far as Ted Williams hit one off me," Hutchinson remarked as Robinson drove a Mickey Haefner pitch into the remote recess of the right-field stands, over 400 feet from the plate.

Yanks Win 3 to 2 Over Cleveland

Cleveland, June 10 (AP).—Big Vic Raschi of the New York Yankees muffled a ninth-inning rally by Cleveland's Indians tonight and defeated the World Champs, 3 to 2.

Winning his ninth game against one loss for the season, Raschi had been coasting along

But in the ninth, with two men out, Larry Doby tripled to left center. That scored Thurman Tucker, who had walked. Joe Gordon then scored Doby with a single off Billy Johnson's glove, but Lou Boudreau's grounder to Jerry Coleman ended the game.

'Unbelievable,' Name Given to Citation's Brother

Lexington, Ky., June 10 (AP).—It's unbelievable!

Unbelievable is the name of the suckling full brother to Citation.

The name was selected by Mrs. Warren Wright, wife of the Calumet owner. More than 20,000 names were entered the last six weeks in a contest conducted by the Thoroughbred Record, Lexington horse breeding journal.

The winning name was sent in by Domingo Bures, Havana, Cuba. His nomination of Unbelievable was the only one of that name submitted in the contest.

D. C. Netters Face Richmond Today

Richmond, Va., June 10 (AP).—An unheralded Richmond team knocked off defending champion Baltimore, 5-4, in the Hotchkiss Cup tennis matches here today.

The Richmond netters will take on favored Washington in the finals at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Washington crushed Norfolk, 8-1, with the loss of only two sets. Led by Don Leavens, national junior champion Gil Bogley and University of Maryland tennis coach Doyle Royal, Washington had little more than a workout against Norfolk.

Chicago Beats Red Sox, 4-2

the fifth race at a mile, Lord Clinton responded handsomely, returning $37.60. Second was O. W. McKillop, 36 to 1 shot.

Next time around, in the seventh race at a mile and a sixteenth, Quick Reward set a track record, 2:14 4/5, and, what was more important to his backers, paid $39. o. Rena Gratton, holder of the mile track record, still retained a number of her supporters and went off at $1.40 to $1, but finished second.

But the $64 winner—and no change—was Edgar Hanover who paced to a mile triumph in the sixth race. Others providing the gasps when the prices were posted in the infield were Mike Bunter, $39.80 winner of the fourth, and Dark Helen, $19.60 victor in the eighth.

Only at the outset did the chalk players have their inning. A measly $21.60 daily double was posted when Dickie June, $8.60 and Yankee Vic, $5, formed the winning 2 and 4 combination.

$1380.40 Double At Narragansett Tops Belmont's

New York, June 10 (AP).—A daily double payoff of $1380.40 occurred at Narragansett Park, Pawtucket, Rhode Island, today when R. C. Adams' Whim Wise, a $347.40 for $2 longshot, captured the second race.

The bay daughter of Market Wise-Whimsical Miss paid $347.40, $93.80, $25.60 across the board for her victory in the $2500 claiming event for 2-year-olds. H. M. Stack's Micmas won the first race and returned $7.20 for $2.

Earlier, the biggest daily double of the New York season was chalked up at Belmont Park when Phantom Farm's Erosion, a first time starter, combined with S. D. Sidell's Polemic to make a $743.60 combination on which there were 106 holders of $2 tickets.

AT CHARLES TOWN

DEAR FOLKS:: Most race fans hereabouts remember the mare Highland Song who won more than a doen races for C. E. George of Washington. In recent years she has been raising a family and George has fashioned a formidable three-horse stable from her offspring. He has a 4-year-old colt, Chaffee Dee by Principal; a 3-year-old gelding, Arch Boy, by Boston Man, and a 2-year-old filly, Baby Song also by Boston Man. In addition, Highland Song dropped a foal this spring by Airflame. The weekend program here will be featured by the Frederick Purse, a test of 6½ furlongs for 3-year-olds and upward. G. S. Gladney's War Champ, the lone 3-year-old in the group, and Arthur Beall's Cy Dart are likely to draw the bulk of the betting. See you on the rail. BILL.

$4.20 Shot Barely Tops Harpstrings

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 10. Taking command directly after the break, La Vega, owned by Mrs. F. D. Christmas of Washington, D. C., turned in a front running victory in the Kearneysville, featuring the Friday program at this turf point.

The 4-year-old filly, however, could not loaf in the stretch. Jockey J. R. Hill was forced to go to the whip to save the decision by three parts of a length.

J. K. Wynkoop's Harpstrings was wearing down La Vega at the end and was six lengths in front of Cedar Brand. Five others competed in the battle of about seven furlongs under cloudy skies but over the usual, for here, fast racing strip.

La Vega, in winning for the second time in six tries this year, was a $4.20 favorite and won in 1:28 4/5.

Leads Easily

During the early stages, the race was a rather lonesome affair for La Vega. The daughter of Tintagel opened a wide lead going to the first turn and stretched it out along the back stretch with apparent ease. Big Moose was closest early but faded as Harpstrings finally developed momentum and became the chief threat.

Through the stretch, Hill found La Vega shortening her stride. He went into a strong drive and it was necessary. Harpstrings came with a bold rush, engineered by Patsy Grant, and would have been the winner in a few more jumps. Cedar Brand was well placed throughout but was tiring in the closing drive.

Mix Man Scores

The fifth race, the second best offering of the afternoon, brought a thrilling three-way photo finish. R. Finn's Mix Man, powerfully handled by Jockey Carty Meyerhoffer, was up in the last jump to win by a neck. Mrs. W. Selmi's Princess Irene was second and a nose in front of C. P. Chenoweth's Purity. Mix Man was a $5.20 favorite and was clocked in 1:29 3/5 for the about 7 furlongs.

The daily double on the 6 and 5 combination paid a healthy $158.80. N. Ledas' Grandma's Baby won the first at $22.40 and L. T. Davis' Wolfie annexed the second at $15.40. Jockey Harry Yongsma put up another of his strong efforts aboard Wolfie, getting the 4-year-old home by a neck margin.

Di Fazio Smashes Own Mark In Winning Masonic Marathon

Lou DiFazio, of Upper Darby, Pa., won the DCAAU 10-mile championship last night at the Masonic Night of Thrills at Griffith Stadium. DiFazio, defending champion, running unaffiliated, broke his own record for the distance by 30 seconds.

DiFazio, who set the record last year with a time of 55:31.9, lowered that mark to 55:00.6 last night and raced three of the field of 33 to record-smashing performances.

Lieut. George Cole ran the distance from Griffith Stadium to Mount Rainier and back in 55:09.0 to finish about 20 yards behind DiFazio. Cole competes for the White Horse Club of Baltimore. He also finished second behind DiFazio last year.

The third and fourth men, Don Heinicke and Stanley Lender finished in a driving sprint almost abreast with Heinicke getting the judges' nod for third place.

Last year's third-place winner, John Leiss, finished ninth. The Washington Track and Field Club veteran was the first local runner to cross the line.

Also on the sports program at the Night of Thrills, the Mailanders girl softball team upset Garvin's Grill girls, 3-1. Quantico Marines defeated Martin Bombers, 4-3, in the first of a double-header baseball game while Alexandria DeMolays beat the Silver Springs DeMolays, 5-2, in the second.

Quantico Wins Four Track Events

Quantico, Va., June 9.—Marines from all over the world got the second annual All-Marine Track and Field Meet off to a flying start here today with the Quantico Marine entrants taking four firsts out of seven final events.

The meet continues tomorrow.

Conner Hollingsworth, Quantico's all-events man, broke the tape in the 120-yard high hurdles and set a new record for the Butler Stadium track by leaping 23 feet 3½ inches in the broad jump. The old record of 22 feet 7¼ inches was set by Hollingsworth earlier this year.

Don Jamison, West Coast sprint man from the El Toro, Calif., Marine Air Station, tied the track record of 10 seconds flat in qualifying for the 100-yard dash, the finals of which will be run tomorrow.

The All-Marine Track and Field Meet was started last year as a part of the Marine Corps peacetime sports program.

The annual two-day affair brings together marines from posts and stations all over the world to participate. Track and field teams from Guam, Panama, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba and several Marine Corps installations within the United States are participating in this year's events. Maj. G. F. Russell, USMC, is the director of this year's meet.

tendent of Police Robert J. Barrett that they were responsible for the unsolved beating of Cab Driver James Rowell, which occurred a few minutes before Barnes' arrest.

Inspector William Cunningham headed the three-man board with Capts. Basil McAllister and Irvin Umbaugh. The board withheld its decision after a four-hour hearing.

Prosecutor Robert Doyle claimed the officers were paged on three occasions and failed to respond, the officers made no effort to contact any prosecutor of the case as required, and failed to make their whereabouts known once they left the courthouse.

Doyle told the board he could prove that before May 12, the officers had asked an assistant corporation counsel to have the case nolle prossed. But before he was allowed to do so, Ford objected vigorously on the grounds that what happened before May 12 was immaterial, and the board sustained his objection.

dress, that there is no 46th ave. in Colmar Manor and that there is no such place as 47th and Upshur sts. in any town.

'Theoretical' Corner

William G. Keyworth of the Maryland National Capital P'k and Planning Commission's Hyattsville office testified that there was a 4310 46th st., but that it was in Bladensburg, not Colmar Manor. He said 46th ave. started in Hyattsville, and that 47th and Upshur sts., was a theoretical corner that could be plotted on a map about one block from Lewis' headquarters.

Judge Curran, who had previously said in court he was not interested in the possibility that the address on the Lewis search warrant might be technically inaccurate, took all motions under advisement. He is expected to deliver a written opinion in the case, which has been argued on four different occasions, sometime next week. Defense lawyers have indicated they would appeal any decision that would not dismiss the Government's case.

Pretrial proceedings also were heard yesterday in the cases of two other indicted gamblers, Philip Samakow, alias Phil Harris, 50, 1360 Peabody st. nw., and Louis Lieberman, 1704 7th st. nw.

Samakow was indicted on charges of promoting a numbers lottery and setting up a gaming table for the purpose of betting on horse races. His case was continued.

Lieberman was indicted on a charge of setting up a gaming table for the purpose of betting on horse races. A motion to dismiss the Government's case against him was taken under advisement.

Fair In War, Icecapade Take Leads in Upperville Show

By Harry De Mawby, Jr.

Upperville, Va., June 10.—Morton W. Smith's Fair in War paced top field of young and green hunters to take the lead for 3-year-old and green hunter championship honors at the end of the first session of the famous Upperville Horse Show here today.

Fair In War, an odd-colored 3-year-old roan mare by Great War-Fair Isabel and ridden by her well-known show ring rider-owner, "Cappy" Smith, took the winning award in the lightweight green hunters and four straight third places in the 3-year-olds, lightweight 3-year-olds, green hack, and hotly contested open hunter class with 43 horses making the test.

Mrs. Page Jenning's grand gray mare, Icecapade, boasts a strong 3½-point lead for the coveted conformation hunter title, one of the most-sought-after tricolors in the country. Icecapade, ridden by her owner, has garnered a blue in the middle and heavyweight class, seconds in the important hunter stake and hunter hacks, and a fourth in the open hunters for a 11½-point tally.

Washington area horses have faired well in the first day's showing with Dr. and Mrs. Alvin I. Kay's famed Portmaker winning the richest class of the show, a $250 hunter stake and finishing fourth in the middle and heavy event.

The show continues today, starting at 9 a. m.

President Asks Congress to Extend WAA Another Year

The President yesterday asked Congress to continue the activities of the War Assets Administration for another year. He urged an appropriation of $26,500,000 for that purpose. WAA would have a 2500-man staff for at least six months if the request is approved.

WAA's legal life expires in about two weeks. A bill passed by the House would transfer it to a proposed new general services agency. In his message, the President said that WAA had to be continued in some form.

HEAT POLICY: The White House yesterday reaffirmed the heat policy which has been in effect in Federal agencies here for the past several years. Under it, there is to be no mass release of employes on hot days. Officials, however, may dismiss employes when they can be spared from those offices when the heat and humidity reach these levels:

Ninety degrees temperature and 70 per cent humidity; 92 and 63; 94 and 55; 96 and 45; 98 and 38, and 100 and 30. The heat policy is left to the discretion of agency officials who aren't compelled to follow it.

FEDERAL RECREATION Association has reelected Larry Zuch, of the Civil Aeronautics Board, and Eleanor Dmitrieff, of Internal Revenue, for fourth terms as president and recording secretary respectively. Other officers are Elizabeth Kimball, of the Army, vice president, and Lillian Brawner, of the Bureau of Mines, corresponding secretary . . . AFGE: John R. Wadden is president of the American Federation of Labor's new lodge at the Immigration and Naturalization Service. James Hassin is secretary, and M. L. Beattie is treasurer.

CENSUS has given cash awards for worthwhile suggestions to Richard H. Farmer, Walter H. Phillips, Michael J. Bartolomeo, Henry P. Cooper, George W. Kalm, Edwin G. Waters, and Johnna K. Whitney . . . INDIAN BUREAU: William B. Greenwood has transferred from the Budget Bureau to be its executive officer. William Zimmerman is the assistant in charge of resource management, and John H. Provinse is the assistant in charge of community services . . . FISH AND WILDLIFE: David R. Gascoyne will be transferred to Boston to be chief of its regional office there.

JOBS: Civil Service has exams for the following jobs which pay from $2350-to $3024 to start: Awning maker, blacksmith, cabinet maker, carpenter, electrician, refrigeration and air-conditioning mechanic, rubber stamp maker, sheet metal worker, tailor, roofer, steamfitter and pipefitter, upholsterer, welder and brazer, plumber, painter, plasterer, stone and brick mason, machinist, pipe coverer and insulator, pneumatic tube mechanic, and door check mechanic.

NOTES: To be eligible for Civil Service's new administrative intern program, employes must be in grades CAF-7 through CAF-11 or their equivalents . . . Ralph Dority is VA's new director of its insurance accounts service . . . AFGE's Adjutant General's Office has indorsed the military pay raise bill . . . Cyrus Eaton, the Cleveland financier, has asked the Senate Appropriations Committee to cut $3,350,000 from the $5,970,000 budget of the Securities & Exchange Commission . . . Representative Morrison (D., La.) has in a bill to give disabled veterans greater job security.

SLASH? The Council of State Chambers of Commerce has urged the Senate Appropriations to make an additional 10 per cent personnel cut—or about 30,000 employes—in the independent offices appropriation bill . . . CIVILIANS who return here from overseas assignments have a legitimate gripe. They aren't reassigned to other Federal jobs even though they have permanent status. Military people don't have that problem.

Representative Dingell (D., Mich.) has called for repeal of the Administrative Practices Act under which a number of trial examiners with long Federal service have been declared to be ineligible by Civil Service. On appeal, however, about 60 per cent of the examiners who were originally declared to be ineligible have been rate eligible. Dingell says Congress should "correct a dangerous innovation insidiously advanced by the paid spokesmen for special and pernicious interests."

Scheve Gets 16 Months in Woodley Pl. Dice Games

Son, 2 Others Given Year In Assault on $7500 Craps Loser; Bandit Sentenced

Joseph (Big Joe) Scheve, 50, was sentenced yesterday in District Court to serve 16 months to four years in prison for assault and for running a big-money dice game at 2730 Woodley pl. nw.

Three companions charged with setting up a gaming table with him were given one-to-three-year prison terms. They are his son, Theodore (Little Joe) Scheve, 30, of 2521 34th pl. se.; Hyman Rosen, 40, of 1616 Isherwood st. nw., and Herman (The Judge) Kadan of the Woodley pl. address.

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut, however, released the defendants under bail pending appeal. The question in the case, the judge indicated, is whether separate trials should have been granted on the assault and gaming charges.

The case arose after Robert E. Ricker, a 32-year-old businessman, said he lost $7500 in the craps game between October and January. Ricker testified that his wife went to Scheve, complained of the losses, and was pushed by Scheve. Ricker said he was slugged with the side of an automatic pistol by Scheve when the weapon failed to fire.

The two Scheves and Rosen were described by Ricker as "stickmen and changemen." Kaden served as lookout and doorman, according to testimony. None of the defendants had a criminal record, the court was told.

In another case, John L. Green, 25, of 48 Pierce st. nw., received 5 to 15 years in prison for a series of "toy-pistol" robberies here. The holdups occurred on the street and in stores. In one haul, $250 was taken by Green.

Willie H. Massey, 36, no address, was sentenced to 4 to 12 years for raping a 34-year-old woman and having carnal relations with a 14-year-old girl. He also was charged with attempting carnal relations with another 14-year-old.

Young Urged To Air Stand On Home Rule

Suffrage Group Asks Him to Tell House Unit He Favors Vote

John Russell Young, president of the District Board of Commissioners, was urged yesterday to "formally communicate his favorable attitude toward home rule" to the House District Committee.

The Home Rule Luncheon Committee of the Central Suffrage Conference adopted the resolution on Commissioner Young after members noted that the city head had told the Senate District Committee considering his reappointment that "he was in favor of home rule" here.

The committee consists of representatives of the District League of Women Voters, District Federation of Women's Clubs, Washington Home Rule Committee, Federation of Citizens Associations, Federation of Civic Associations, Americans for Democratic Action and the District Democratic Central Committee.

The action was taken at a strategy luncheon in the American Veterans Committee clubhouse, 1751 New Hampshire ave. nw.

Participants were urged to request members of the House District Committee, which now has the Senate-approved Kefauver home rule bill, to hold prompt and brief hearings so the House could act on the measure.

Plans were made for contacting local clergy to preach sermons on the home rule topic. James William Bryan was appointed by Chairman Culver B. Chamberlain to request Washington correspondents of out-of-town papers to discuss home rule and thereby arouse interest of constituents of various members of Congress.

Jewish Women Back Home Rule Measure

The Washington Section, National Council of Jewish Women, yesterday adopted unanimously a resolution indorsing the Kefauver home rule bill and urging the House District Committee to hold prompt hearings on it.

The group, at a luncheon in Alban Towers, also asked permission of the District Committee to testify in support of the measure, Mrs. Samuel Brown, first vice president, reported.

Elder Michaux To Supervise Housing Co-Op

A veterans' cooperative is being formed to purchase the 130-unit Dunbar and Carver homes in Arlington, Va., from the Government, it was announced yesterday.

Elder Lightfoot Solomon Michaux, pastor of the Church of God and president of the Mayfair housing project, will supervise management of the housing units, he said yesterday.

The veterans' group, to be known as the Veterans' Home Cooperative of Arlington, will replace a tenants' group known as the Dunbar and Carver Homes Mutual Association, Elder Michaux said.

The earlier group has been unable to arrange a loan necessary for the purchase, he explained. A spokesman for Walker & Dunlop, Inc., mortgage brokers, said yesterday his firm would be willing to extend a $345,600 mortgage commitment, provided Elder Michaux would supervise the cooperative project.

The veterans' group is giving every present tenant in the units the opportunity to become a member of the cooperative, and no nontenant veteran will be allowed to dispossess a tenant, Elder Michaux declared.

Arthur M. Chaite, former assistant general counsel of the Federal Housing Administration, has been engaged to set up the veterans' cooperative, whose chairman is Robert Hampton.

Cost of the apartments will average $3000 under present plans, and cooperative unit owners will be required to make 10 per cent down payments.

The units, built by the Government before the war, are of the row house type and of cinder block construction. The Carver Homes, containing 44 units, is located on S. Queen st. in Arlington, while the 86-family Dunbar Homes is on Seminary rd.

Man Gives Up To Answer $3000 Larceny Charge

Bryant Pierce, 33, 316 18th st. ne., gave himself up to police yesterday to answer a charge of larceny after trust placed against him on complaint of Thomas J. Cheve, 2521 34th st. se.

Police said Cheve complained that on June 3, he gave Pierce $3000 on Pierce's representation to him that he could purchase war surplus pen-and-pencil sets for $3 each.

The two agreed, Cheve told police, that they would buy 1000 sets, take them to New York for sale at $5 each, and split a $2000 profit. Instead, Cheve told officers, Pierce went ostensibly to get the sets and did not reappear.

The defendant was released under $2000 bond for appearance in Municipal Court today.

Five Invalids Graduated by High Schools

Graduation exercises were held yesterday for five District students who completed their education at home or in hospitals.

Ceremonies took place at three centers because the students were unable to get together.

Dr. Carl F. Hansen, associate superintendent of schools, and Miss Bertha E. Taylor, director of special classes for exceptional children, delivered the commencement addresses. Diplomas were presented by Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger, member of the Board of Education.

Robert Baruch, 18, who has been a patient in the crippled children's ward at Gallinger Hospital for nearly two years, was graduated in exercises held on the hospital lawn. Gallinger officials, doctors, nurses and children in the special ward, formed the audience.

The youth, paralyzed as the result of a diving accident, played the harmonica.

Margaret Elizabeth Shepherd, 18, 6424 2nd pl. nw., and Priscilla Alden Winslow, 18, 3411 Volta pl. nw., were graduated from high school, and Sara Gross Wood, 15, 2509 Q st. nw., from junior high school in ceremonies at the Oyster School.

Leonard Moll, 15, 1973 Biltmore st. nw., received his diploma at his home where he is confined to a wheel chair.

Landon Graduates 19, Bound For 14 Colleges

Nineteen boys, bound for 14 different colleges in the next school year, received diplomas yesterday at commencement exercises of the Landon School for Boys, Wilson lane, Bethesda.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, delivered the commencement address, and the Rev. Albert H. Lucas, headmaster of St. Alban's School, pronounced invocation and benediction.

Stephen Cady Coy, son of Wayne Coy, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, and Mrs. Coy, was the valedictorian. The Landon Glee Club and the lower school chorus sang.

Father's Lessons In Life to His 6 Sons Are Cited

O. L. Steidel of RFD Route 5, Alexandria, Va., father of six boys ranging from 6 years to 22, was nominated yesterday as the Ideal Father because he has taught them "the love of the woods and the love for God and their fellow man."

"He has taught his boys the things that boys want to learn from their fathers," wrote a friend of the family, Donald L. Clark of 2124 H st. nw., "—to hunt, to swim, to fish and to grow up and be respected men."

Steidel is but one of many nominated in The Washington Post's Ideal Father Contest. Entries should be sent to the Ideal Father Editor, Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C., and must be received by close of business June 16. Any father in the Washington area is eligible and anyone can enter him. The winner and his family will be treated to dinner and a show.

Frank Meenehan, third vice president; Louis H. Hoelman, secretary; Theodore R. Hill, treasurer; William M. Porter, tail twister, and Henry T. Boswell, lion tamer.

New board members are G. Ernest Knapp, Melvin T. Young, John Martin Derrick and Theodore P. Cowgill.

Bratburd Numbers Conviction Is Upheld by Maryland Court

Annapolis, Md., June 10 (Spl.).—The Maryland Court of Appeals today upheld the Montgomery County conviction of Eddie Bratburd, 50, on a charge of illegal possession of numbers slips.

Bratburd, who lives at 8869 Piney Branch rd., Takoma Park, operates the Takoma Decorators at 313 Cedar ave., Takoma Park.

He was fined $1000 and sentenced to serve six months in the Maryland House of Correction in the County Circuit Court.

The court held valid the warrant used by police to search Bratburd and his automobile last July. More than 200 numbered yellow slips that police discovered "were properly admitted in evidence," the court ruled.

Judge Charles Markell brushed aside Bratburd's argument that interior decorators have to make regular visits to places they are decorating, carry money in their pockets and colored slips of paper as samples of wallpaper and paint.

"All this (except the size and appearance of the 'samples') may be abstractly imaginable and physically possible," the judge said, "but has too little semblance of real life, or relation to the facts set out in the search warrant, to require consideration."

Judge Markell in his written opinion observed that the appellate court jurists have more than an inkling of the operations of the numbers racket.

"From the reported opinions of this court we might almost profess a superficial quas-expert knowledge of some of the indicia of the 'numbers' game and other gambling," he stated. The jurists also can call on "the experience and special knowledge" of police.

Odessa Madre Arrested in Narcotics Case

Special Grand Jury's Gaming Witness Freed In $3000 Bond

Odessa Madre, 41, a witness before the special gaming grand jury, was freed yesterday in $3000 bond after police arrested her at her home for alleged violation of the Harrison Narcotics Act.

She lives at 1719 1st st. nw., where members of the Police Narcotics squad called with a warrant Thursday night. They said the paper was based on four purchases of narcotics made from her recently by an undercover operative.

When they knocked at the door, officers said, the defendant called to them to come to the second floor. When they arrived, they said, they found paper packets lying on a bed, and a scrub bucket, partly full of water and some powdery substance. They confiscated that for analysis. U. S. Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence continued hearing in the case to June 23.

Miss Madre was last in the news when on May 24 and 25 she was called before the special grand jury investigating gambling in Washington. In July, 1945, she paid a $150 fine on a conviction of conspiring to operate a lottery.

Her record of arrests goes back to 1935. She was once convicted of operating a disorderly house. Also in May, she figured in a hearing before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board on charges that liquor was sold after hours in the Club Madre, 2204 14th st. nw. At that time, witnesses testified she owned and leased that property but was not concerned with its operation.

Convicted Pair Now Asks for Trial by Jury

Two Baltimoreans who were convicted recently in a 9th st. nw. shooting over winnings in a roving craps game testified yesterday they were unaware they had ever waived their right to a jury trial.

They are John Joseph Bruno, 38, and James T. (Skinner) Skeens, 28. Skeens received 16 months to four years in prison for assault with a dangerous weapon. Bruno received a year for assault and six months for carryng a deadly weapon.

Both men now want a new trial based on the lack of a jury trial. They had been tried before Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut in District Court. Schweinhaut yesterday ordered the new trial motion to be heard by another judge.

Judge Schweinhaut said he wishes to give testimony in the hearing. He said he has a "clear recollection" that the two defendants did not "arise" and waive their jury right. But Schweinhaut said he has a similar recollection that Denny Hughes, their former lawyer, filled out a form which the men signed in open court.

The Government contends this form was the jury trial waiver. Skeens and Bruno say they signed the form in blank and that it was later filled in with the jury waiver.

Since their conviction the two defendants hired James J. Laughlin as their attorney. Laughlin has raised the question as to the constitutionality of the trial without jury.

Woman Ordered Not to Annoy Ex-Boy Friend

Judge Armond W. Scott of Municipal Court suspended sentence after finding that over several months Miss Grant has threatened Stevens and on one occasion promised to hound him into suicide.

"This man should have relief from these actions. Something serious may come of it all," commented the jurist.

Wells Corner, Md., Mishap Kills Sailor; D. C Trio Injured Near Indian Head

Three persons were injured, one fatally, in a two-car head-on collision yesterday afternoon on Route 301, near Wells Corner in Prince Georges County.

Edward Buggs, 19, a sailor stationed at the Naval Air Station, Patuxent, Md., died in Casualty Hospital last night of his injuries. He suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

In Casualty in an undetermined condition with multiple fractures, cuts and bruises are Woodrow Mitchell, also a Naval Air Station sailor, who was in the automobile with Buggs, and Hugh Luck, 28, of Glen Allen, Va., driver of the other vehicle.

Carom Into Bank

After colliding in the center of the road, both vehicles turned headon into a 6-foot bank, Chief Oron Herbert, of the Marlboro Rescue Squad, said.

Mitchell was thrown completely over the bank for a distance of 25 feet, he said. Buggs and Luck were lying partially out of their autos.

In another Greater Washington traffic accident three Washington residents were seriously injured a quarter mile east of Indian Head, Md.

They are:

Walter M. Perry, 4931 46th st. nw., whose forty-first birthday was yesterday. He is at Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, with concussions and multiple fractures.

Mrs. Jessie May Dwiggins, 1420 U st. se., employe at the Fort Dupont public golf course, at Gallinger Hospital with severe lacerations of the hands and face, multiple bruises and undetermined head injuries.

May Have Fracture

Her 3-year-old son, John P. Dwiggins, also at Gallinger Hospital, concussion and possible skull fracture.

Details of the accident were not available last night from Maryland state police. First reports said at least four persons, including the three hospitalized, were thrown out in the crash of an auto and a truck and that the auto was wrecked.

Mrs. Dwiggins and her son were taken by a passerby to the dispensary of the Navy powder plant at Indian Head, where they were given emergency treatment and then transported to Gallinger Hospital in a Navy ambulance.

Prince Georges County and Washington police sought the operator of a green panel truck who was reported to have struck Danny Sheriff, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Sheriff, 6262 Livingston rd., near Oxon Hill, Md., yesterday, and then left the scene. The boy was playing in front of his home when struck, county police said. He was treated at Casualty Hospital for cuts about the face, and released.

ANNE O'BEIRNE, of Arlington, daughter of the American air attache in London, who died Thursday of injuries suffered in a swimming accident

Anne O'Beirne, 18-year-old District AAU diving champion, died Thursday night at Neuchatel, Switzerland, of injuries suffered in a bathing accident, friends in Washington were notified yesterday.

The daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Frank O'Beirne, formerly of 2342 South Meade st., Arlington, Miss O'Beirne was injured Wednesday when she slipped and fell into a shallow lake, striking her head, while swimming with friends. Death was due to a cerebral hemorrhage, police reported.

Her parents flew to the Swiss town from London where Captain O'Beirne is now assistant naval air attache.

They ordered her body cremated and said they would take the ashes to London.

Miss O'Beirne was graduated from Washington-Lee High School a year ago and had been studying French at a boarding school near Neuchatel preparing to enter the Sorbonne at Paris in the fall. A talented artist, she planned to continue studies in that field.

Friends here said that a few weeks ago she had visited her parents in London and had been presented at court. A sister, Karen, 14, and a brother, Mickey, 12, are attending school in London where Captain O'Beirne has been stationed since last September.

Miss O'Beirne was a member of the Ambassador Hotel Swimming Club and won the annual Army Navy Country Club high board champion in 1947 as well as the AAU championship in 1948.

Counterfeit $20 Notes Circulate Here

The Secret Service yesterday advised Greater Washington residents to scrutinize any $20 bills they may receive.

"Poorly printed, faded appearing" counterfeits of Federal Reserve notes on the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank have appeared locally, according to the Secret Service.

The most quickly identified feature of a note on the San Francisco branch, an agent said, is the large capital L in the center of the bank symbol on the left side of the note's face. Most notes in use here bear the E of the Richmond bank.

The bogus notes bear the symbol D63 at the right side of the face of the note and the figure 588 in the lower right corner of the back side.

The reproduction of the White House on the back of the bogus bills shows the new balcony, as do all notes printed in the last four or five months.

The notes contain no outstanding errors, the agent said, but are generally of poor workmanship. Andrew Jackson's portrait is quite faded and the over-all lighter appearance is "quite noticeable."

Truman Asks 2 Million for Developing Marshall Hts.

Plan for Capital's 1st Postwar Slum Clearance Subject Of Controversy

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday asked Congress to grant $2,180,000 for Washington's first post-war slum clearance and redevelopment project.

The money would be used by the District Redevelopment Land Agency to buy property in the Marshall Heights area of east Washington, for redevelopment. The area is bounded by East Capitol st., Central and Southern aves., Benning rd. and 49th st. It is near the District line, mostly in the southeast, with a small part in the northeast.

Supplemental Request

The President's request for the money, the White House said, was included in a 92 million dollar estimate of supplemental appropriations for the year starting July 1.

Of the slum clearance money, District officials said $2,075,000 would be used for buying and developing the property, and $105,000 for administrative expenses of the land agency.

Plans for the Marshal Heights area have been the subject of controversy. Some residents have protested. The project was worked out by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, cleared with the District Commissioners, and if the money is granted would be carried forward by the land agency.

No Monies Received

Chairman of the Land Agency is Mark Lansburgh, prominent Washington merchant. Since it was formed under the law of 1946, the agency has received none of the 20 million authorized for its work.

The new request for redevelopment funds represents about a one-third cut in previous requests for starting the agency's work. Those requests were refused by Congress, but this year leaders on both sides of the Capitol have shown new interest in clearing Washington slums.

Man Believed Killed by Auto While Asleep

A 53-year-old Laurel, Md., laborer who was found dead Wednesday under mysterious circumstances on a Berwyn razing project apparently was run over by a truck employed on the job, Prince Georges County Police said yesterday.

Detective Earl Huber, assigned to investigate the death of John Dill, said his investigation indicated Dill was crushed by the truck as he lay asleep in a field of deep grass alongside the Old Town Hall Shopping Center, which is being razed to pave the way for new construction.

Huber, quoted the truck driver, Henry Paul Scovich., 30, of N. Laurel, Md., as saying he was unaware of the accident, although he admitted his truck passed several times over the spot where Dill's body was found around 1 p. m. Wednesday. The detective said the grass in the field was from two to three feet high, and probably concealed the sleeping man.

According to Huber, Dill reported for work on the job Wednesday morning, but was told by a foreman that he was in no condition to work because he had been drinking. No one apparently saw him lie down in the grass, and there appeared to be no witnesses to the accident, according to the report.

When Dill's body was found, police first thought he had died of natural causes. An autopsy Wedesday night, however, revealed he had suffered a crushed chest, lacerated liver and 11 broken ribs.

No charges had been placed against Scovich last night. Huber said Assistant State's Attorney Hervey G. Machen was studying the death report.

Gambler at Russian Roulette Loses Game and Life by Bullet

The fatalistic game of Russian roulette, played with one live cartridge in an otherwise empty pistol, was a fatal game yesterday for William J. Delaney, 26, 1433 T st. nw., according to police.

Police said Delaney and a friend, Willis C. Washington, 23, 1024 8th st. nw., attended a movie Thursday night, then with other friends went to a room in the Dunbar Hotel, 15th and U sts. nw., where a card game, some drinking, and finally a discussion of movies took place.

About 4 a. m. yesterday, police said, Delaney spoke of the Russian roulette game and produced a .22-caliber pistol for a demonstration. Police said he did something with the cylinder of the gun. Then, officers said, Washington seized it and asked to make the demonstration. Delaney took it back insisting that he do so. With seven chambers in the pistol, police said, odds were 6 to 1 in favor of Delaney—but he lost.

Customary ground rules for Russian roulette are for the player to leave one cartridge in the gun, spin the cylinder rapidly, then put the weapon to his head and pull the trigger.

He gambles that the cartridge won't be under the hammer.

Delaney put the gun to his head and pulled the trigger, police said. The cartridge was under the hammer. They said six other live cartridges were in his trousers pocket. He was taken to Freedmen's Hospital where he died at 9:45 a. m. Police said there were powder burns on his forehead and the gun was clutched in his hand when they arrived.

'Expert' Yeggs Get $200, But Drop $50

Safe robbers, described by park police as "experts," obtained $200 and dropped a bag containing $50 more when they punched the strong box at a restaurant at the East Potomac Park Golf Course early yesterday.

They passed up another safe in the nearby golf concession that contained several hundred dollars.

Park police said the robbers entered by cutting a screen in a rest room. They left behind a hammer and meat tenderizer, which officers said they apparently used to knock the dial from the safe before punching it.

In Garrett Case

Therapy May Be Confusing, Witness Says

Mrs. Finis J. Garrett, 69, may have been in a state of "confusion" resulting from electric-shock therapy when she fractured her hip March 1, 1947, at Doctors Hospital, District Court testimony indicated yesterday.

Mrs. Garrett and her husband, the chief judge of the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, have sued the hospital and Dr. Robert H. Groh, psychoneurologist, for $200,000 damages. The Garretts charged that negligence caused the hip fracture.

Called as a witness for the plaintiff, Dr. Groh acknowledged that "confusion" of the patient lasts for up to 90 minutes after the therapy. Mrs. Garrett was suffering from depression and melancholia at the time, it was stated.

Mrs. Garrett was found in her hospital room lying on the floor less than an hour after the third of a series of shock treatments.

Other testimony showed that an 18-year-old nurse's aid with little experience had been assigned to attend Mrs. Garrett for part of the interim between the therapy and the fall.

The case is to continue Monday before a jury and Judge T. Alan Goldsborough.

Lexington, Va., June 10 (AP).—Washington and Lee University graduated its bicentennial class, the largest in the school's history, today when 217 students received degrees. Degrees went to an additional 55 graduates in February.

The majority of the university's "the '49ers," graduates of the bicentennial year, are war veterans.

Among 66 men receiving the bachelor of science degree in commerce was Robert E. Lee 4th, great-grandson of the Confederate leader who came to Lexington after the War Between the States to serve as president of Washington College, forerunner of Washington and Lee.

Young Lee, the son of the late Dr. George Bolling Lee and Mrs. Lee of New York, came to Washington and Lee with his own war record. As a combat infantryman in World War II he was decorated for services in action in the European fighting.

Atom Measures Temperature of Prehistoric Age

Oak Ridge, Tenn., June 10 (AP).—The temperature of the ocean at the north end of Scotland 125 million years ago was 70 degrees F.

This compares with the present approximately 50 degrees.

These figures were given by Dr. Harold C. Urey, University of Chicago. Dr. Urey said the temperature reading is a by-product of atomic energy studies.

A super-sensitive isotopic thermometer, which detects differences in amounts of various atoms, was used in studying the belemnite, prehistoric relative of the octopus.

From it, Dr. Urey said, it was learned that the climate in northern Scotland 125 million years ago was "something like Hawaii today."

Gray himself replied "not guilty" to the second indictment.

McCutcheon Dies; Famed Cartoonist

Chicago, June 10 (AP).—John T. McCutcheon, whose front page cartoons were a hallmark of the Chicago Tribune for 43 years, died today. He was 79.

Mr. McCutcheon

He had been ill since 1946 when he retired.

McCutcheon started with the old Chicago Record after his graduation from Purdue University in 1889. He abandoned drawing temporarily to cover the Pacific fleet actions in the Spanish-American War. In 1903, he joined the Tribune and began his thousands of picture editorials.

McCutcheon's cartoons won him the Pulitzer Prize in 1931. The majority of his works were on political issues of the day, but the picture story for which he was perhaps best known was just an imaginative picture of the farm on an autumn evening.

It is his "Injun Summer," first printed in the Tribune September 30, 1907, and reprinted annually since 1912. It shows a boy and an old codger dreaming up an Indian camp in full war dance activity out of the dusky haze, sheaves and a rising harvest moon over the cornfield.

Tito Would End Joint Ownership With Russians

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, June 10 (U.P.).—A usually reliable informant reported today that the Yugoslav government had called for the liquidation of the two companies which it jointly owns with Russia.

The companies are "Justa," the Yugoslav-Russian Air Transport Co., and "Juspad," the Yugoslav-Russian River Navigation Co. They were founded in 1947 and are the only ones in the country owned jointly with Russia.

It is assumed they are like others Russia has formed in satellite and occupied countries since the war, and hence that she owns a 51 per cent interest.

D. C. Opposes Tax Exemption Asked for 2 Patriotic Groups

A House District Subcommittee was asked yesterday to approve District property-tax exemptions for the National Society of Colonial Dames of America and for the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

But the Commissioners, through Corporation Counsel Vernon R. West, strongly opposed the legislation. West said they had uniformly opposed institutional tax exemptions through special acts.

The subcommittee, headed by Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) deferred action on the bills until a later meeting.

Representative Karl Stefan (R., Neb.) joined with Mrs. Gilbert M. Hitchcock in asking that the Colonial Dames building at 2715 Q st. nw., be exempted. West said it involved about $1700 in taxes. Mrs. Hitchcock is the widow of the late Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock (D., Neb.).

Representative James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) with Robert H. McNeill, Washington attorney, urged exemption for the furnishings of the Sons of the American Revolution building at 1227 16th st. nw. The building is now exempt from the District property tax.

Wadsworth said the law exempting the building was at first regarded as exempting the furnishings, but that District officials had ruled the furnishings are subject to the tax. McNeill said the District has called for payment of $1194 in taxes and interest for the years 1945 to 1949. Wadsworth said the District has not yet collected, but has accepted a lien on the property, which would be canceled if the bill were approved.

Two Million Cut In Prince Georges Schools Approved

Economy steps to lop off about $2,000,000 in Prince Georges County school construction costs were agreed on yesterday at a conference between school officials and the County Commissioners.

Meeting at Upper Marlboro, the conferees agreed tentatively to a revision of plans which would exclude auditoriums from four projected senior high schools and eliminate cafeteria-dining rooms from the four high schools as well as two proposed new elementary schools.

The move, school officials hope, will bring the cost of new construction to within the approximate $8,000,000 which will be available this year in State loans and grants, and would eliminate the necessity of a local bond issue.

Sigrid Undset, Nobel Prize Novelist, Dies

Oslo, Norway, June 10 (NYHT). Sigrid Undset, 67, winner of the 1928 Nobel Prize for literature died today at Lillehammer.

Sigrid Undset

Depth was the word that critics used for the probing works by which Mrs. Undset commanded the world's attention — massive novels like the trilogy "Kristin Lavransdatter," which detailed the magnetic love and lashing resentments of a fourteenth century Norwegian woman.

Mrs. Undset was born in Kalundborg, Denmark, daughter of a Danish mother and a famed Norwegian archeologist, Dr. Ingvald Martin Undset. He died when she was 11, and she went to commercial school, turning into an office stenographer and secretary from 1898 to 1909.

First Book at 25

She wrote after office hours. At 25, she published her first novel, "Fru Marta Oulie," story of a marriage. In 1911 her first success came with "Jenny," on the loves of art students in Rome.

"Kristin Lavransdatter" appeared between 1920 and 1922, and Mrs. Undset was launched as a world-famous writer. Her researches into old Christendom converted her to a dramatic Roman Catholicism.

In April, 1940, the Nazis swarmed over Norway. Mrs. Undset's daughter, Maren Charlotte, had died just before; a son, Anders, 26, died defending a valley bridge; another son, Hans, 21, served with an ambulance corps. She had been amicably divorced from her husband, A. C. Svarstad, painter, in 1925.

Fled Nazi Invaders

Mrs. Undset, whose works had come under Nazi press fire for repudiating Aryan race supremacy, fled. For hours she crouched in the snow, to escape airplane fire. By boat, she reached the Arctic Circle. At 58, she skied into Sweden, and so by way of Russia and Japan, arrived in San Francisco Aug. 26, 1940.

For five years in the United States she lectured and wrote for the cause of exiled Norway and the Zionists.

In 1945, Mrs. Undset went back home.

CHALKLEY, HENRY E. In loving memory of HENRY E. CHALKLEY, who departed this life a year ago today.
You lived a life that all might envy,
Loved and loving, gentle, kind;
And in death, your blessed memory,

Your loving wife,

Alexandria Charter Revisions Supported

Changes in the Alexandria city charter ranging from splitting the city into several taxing districts to elimination of lame-duck city councilmen were urged last night at a public hearing before the Alexandria Charter Commission.

It was the second hearing this week at which the commission has sampled public views on revising the city's 17-year-old charter. About 35 persons attended, some representing various community organizations.

The commission will now draft tentative changes which Chairman Stanley King said will probably be submitted to further public hearings later in the summer.

Division of the city into "improvement districts," each of which would finance its own capital improvements was recommended by Lesley B. Mayer, Government employe and city council candidate.

Under Mayer's plan persons would pay only for capital improvements in their district rather than share equally the burden of bond redemption for capital improvements throughout the city.

He suggested a new interest and bond redemption tax which would be levied on taxpayers in each district according to the amount of capital improvements made.

Mayer also suggested limiting unbudgeted appropriations to 5 per cent of the city's operating budget; delegating all zoning authority to the planning commission with an appeal board, and changing the city manager's tenure from at will of the council to a fixed period.

James E. Moriarty recommended a retirement plan for city employes and nonpartisan local elections.

POSTLUDE

GWU Girls, AAF Orchestra Score Success in Mikado

By Paul Hume

Titipu-on-the-Potomac brought thousands to the Watergate last night.

The boys of the Army Air Force Orchestra and chorus and the girls of George Washington University's Glee Club sang and talked their way through "The Mikado" before an audience whose enthusiasm grew as the evening progressed.

The stage was handsomely, though simply, set. The costumes were all Gilbert and Sullivan could want. And there were all the tunes and lines lovers of G. and S. operettas wait for. Even without programs it was a pleasure to identify Judith Callander as Yum-Yum. She does the role sweetly, which it needs.

Abrasha Robofsky and Ivan Genuchi as Pooh-Bah and Ko-Ko were a nasty pair of schemesters. Robofsky has all the tricks of the part in his fingers, and shows his experience by controling the stage whenever he appears.

The orchestra played its part with sparkle and finish, led by Director Robert Landers, who obviously likes the music and all its traditions.

If the men's chorus had had a bit more tone and bite to their singing, it would have been a roaring success. As it was, it sent the large crowd of listeners home humming familiar and famous tunes. Future dramatic productions at the Watergate should insure somewhat more distinct reproduction of the spoken lines. Many last night were lost.

How to Launder Corduroy Suit

Will you tell me the best way to launder a small boy's dark green corduroy suit? Should it be pressed or steamed and how can I put the crease in the trousers? I have been told that they should be pressed on a needle board, but can not find such an article in the stores where I have inquired. J. T. McN.

Wash the suit in lukewarm water with mild soap. When clean, rinse several times until the rinse water remains clear. It would be better to put the suit flat through a machine wringer than to wring it by hand to avoid extra wrinkles. When wrung, shake vigorously several times to remove as many of the wrinkles as possible and to fluff the pile. To dry, hang the coat on a well-padded hanger, pulling the collar, front and paddings into shape as it hangs on the hanger. The trousers could be placed on a trouser drying frame to dry or fold them so the two trouser seams in each leg are together and fasten them to the line that way. When the trouser seams are exactly together the crease at the front and back of the trouser will be right. Allow to dry thoroughly.

If any pressing is necessary to remove wrinkles, do it from the wrong side of the material on a well padded board. Sections which are inaccessable because of lining or padding could be steam pressed from the right side by placing a damp cloth over them and lightly pressing. Do not press until the pressing cloth is dry. When pressed, brush the corduroy from the right side to bring up the nap.

Because of the softness of the fabric, a crease is very difficult to put into and keep in corduroy trousers. An appearance of a crease can be achieved by laying the seams together as described above so that you are sure the crease is in the right place. Now, while the trousers lay flat in this position, baste the creases in. With all four creases basted, stitch them on the machine in matching thread to form a very tiny tuck where the crease is. It is surprising how this tiny tuck in the crease position will give a sharpness to corduroy trousers not obtainable by pressing.

Is it possible to remove blood stains from upholstery? I have tried soap and water, two cleaning fluids and bleach and have had no success with any of these. The bleach has removed some of the color and has also left a stain. H. P.

Fresh blood stains are soluble in cold water and can sometimes be removed by sponging with just cold water. Or, moistening corn starch with water and working it into the fabric would probably loosen the fresh stain. However, since you have tried so many things on the stain, it is probably set and only bleaching can be expected to remove it. Sodium perborate is a mild bleach, but may also affect the color in the upholstery so before using it try it on an inconspicuous spot. If you decide to try it on the stain, dampen the stain with water and dust solium perborate onto it. Rub the perborate into the stain, allow to stand for 30 minutes and brush away. This treatment can be repeated as long as you see improvement. When the stain is gone be sure to completely rinse the area to remove every trace of the bleach.

Two years ago, I purchased a pair of grey lizard shoes and a bag to match. The grey has now turned to an ugly off-color beige. Is there any bleach I can use to return the shoes and bag to their original pale grey shade? Or, is there any store in town that can do it for me? D. M. H.

I know of no bleach which would be safe to use on the shoes and bag at home. Your best chance of refurbishing the shoes is to take them to one of the reliable firms listed under "shoes-repairing" in the yellow pages of the telephone book. When an experienced repair man sees them he will be able to tell you what your chances are of restoring them to their original color.

What is the proper men's attire for an early September afternoon church wedding. My question applies as to the bridegroom, bride's father, best man and ushers. The affair is to be formal, though not pretentious.

A STEADY READER.

For a strictly formal daytime wedding the groom would wear white dress shirt, stand-up wing collar, light gray ascot tie, patterned or striped; light gray, buff or white waistcoat, single or double-breasted; black or Oxford gray morning coat; medium-gray striped trousers, black shoes and white or gray gloves.

However, for a less formal daytime wedding it is considered perfectly proper for all the men in the wedding party to appear in all-white summer suits, white coat and dark trousers, or dark business suits. All men should be dressed in the same type suit, and to further carry out the uniformity of their costumes they could choose plain ties in a color to match their boutonnairs.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

With the end of school almost in sight, many a mother has started worrying about how she can keep the youngsters from running so wild that they won't get all the rest they need.

Naps are a good idea but pretty hard to "put across" with youngsters over 6 years of age. And if none of the other youngsters in the neighborhood rests after lunch, it's even harder.

Here's an idea that has worked very well in a number of places. Let it be known that there will be stories—either told or read—every afternoon at a particular time in your backyard, out on the front lawn, or in the cool living room. If you don't tell stories too well, get a book that your youngster and his friends will enjoy and give it to them in installments.

If you choose the book correctly and have a comfortable place for the youngsters to gather, you can be pretty sure that you'll have most of the kids in the neighborhood following the daily installment. Indeed, your biggest problem may very well be one of stopping. The youngsters will see to that.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Buying an Encyclopedia Can Provide Quite An 'Education'

Complaints have come in from several quarters about a slick book salesman who is operating in this vicinity.

He gets into the house by describing himself as a representative of a "radio survey."

In short order he has worked the conversation around to an encyclopedia he is selling. A $2 deposit will secure the deal until the lady of the house has had a chance to talk things over with her husband. "If your husband doesn't approve," he says, "it's no deal." The housewife's "receipt" is a small slip of paper which SHE signs, in duplicate.

When the old man comes home, he reads the small print and discovers that his missus has contracted for an expensive set of books, and that "no changes in the terms of this order, verbal or written, will be recognized. No refunds will be made; no returns will be accepted; the order is not subject to cancellation."

The Better Business Bureau sighs when it hears such stories, and reminds you that people who sign contracts without reading them lay themselves open to all sorts of sharp practices.

You can get corroboration of that advice from my favorite wife. She answered the door one morning several years ago and was confronted with a delivery-man bearing a large package. "Does Mary Soandso work here?" he asked. "Sign here." She signed.

You guessed it. Mary was so proud of her dollar-down coat that she thereupon quit her job and skipped town, and what had appeared to be a delivery receipt turned out to be a cognovit note for the unpaid balance.

We got a brief legal course in "negotiable instruments" for only $48.95.

PIED TYPE DEPT.

Mrs. Henry Whelan of 3220 17th st. nw. notes that her favorite newspaper recently ran a story which said, in part:

"Dean Acheson told the committee that in 1491, when he was named Assistant Secretary of State, he appointed Donald Hiss as his special assistant."

Quips Mrs. Whelan: "If Mr. Acheson has been in the State Department that long, he should know what he's doing by now."

HE'S NO FOOL

Bill Keull, one of the printers who helps keep this column relatively free of typographical errors, puts a new twist on an old story to good effect.

It's the one about the fellow who asks the bartender if he can have a free drink if he shows the barkeep a good trick. The answer is "yes," so the trickster pulls a mouse and a toy piano from his pocket, sets them on the bar, and says "play."

The mouse thereupon begins to play the piano—and the popeyed bartender gladly furnishes a free drink.

"If I show you an even better trick, will you give me another drink?" asks the thirsty one. "Sure, sure," says the bartender. "Lets see it."

The fellow pulls a canary out of his pocket, perches it on the piano, and says "sing."

With that, the mouse plays the accompaniment, and the canary sings.

The bartender is very much impressed. "I'll give you a hundred dollars for that act," he says.

"Okay," says the thirsty one—and the barkeep goes off to get the money out of the safe in the back room.

While he's gone, an interested bystander offers some unsolicited counsel. "You're crazy to sell that act for a hundred dollars," he says. "You could make thousands with it." The thirsty guy laughs.

"Fooled you, too, huh? Well, I'm not as dumb as I look. He's gonna get stuck on this deal, because that canary can't sing a note. The mouse is a ventriloquist."

NEWSPAPER TERMS LOST IN ANTIQUITY

I've been asked to explain the meanings and origins of two newspaper terms: "bulldog edition" and "lobster trick."

The meanings are easy. The "bulldog" is the first (morning) edition of an afternoon paper or, more often, the first (evening) edition of a morning paper.

For example, The Washington Post's bulldog is on the street at around 8:30 p. m. on the night prior to its publication date. (Advt.)

The "lobster trick," or shift, takes over a morning paper's newsroom after the final edition has gone to press, and holds the fort during the hours required to complete the press run. When late news developments warrant, the lobster trick "replates" pages, and brings the edition up to date.

Inasmuch as this crew usually works in the dead of night, it is sometimes also known as the "graveyard shift," and both terms have been borrowed by manufacturing plants, with their meanings unchanged.

However, when it comes to the origin of these terms, we hit a snag. Both are lost in antiquity.

Even the Library of Congress admits that no authentic information seems to be available. But the library never admits defeat. It's still digging.

Meantime it cites an interesting theory included in George Stimpson's "A Book About a Thousand Things." It's the story that, back in the '90s, two New York papers were "fighting like bulldogs" for circulation in suburban areas, which were served with the early editions.

And as for the lobster shift, the best we can find is the old wisecrack that "at that hour of the morning, the only things moving about that are worthwhile noticing are newspapermen and lobsters." That also seems a bit far-fetched. Who'd want to notice a newspaperman?

"Ma" Berry of our composing room says it's simpler than that. "A lobster is a low form of fish, and who but a poor fish would be caught working on the late shift?"

If any of you old-timers can offer a better explanation, I'd like to hear from you. It's your chance to have the Library of Congress quote you as an authority.

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. Louise A. Baldwin, 1605 E st. ne.: You're right. Two of your items appeared here, qualifying you for membership in the District Liners. Undoubtedly the club's organizers inadvertently overlooked your name (and possibly others) in their tabulations, but I'm sure that they'll be happy to get corrections from all interested parties. I'm forwarding your letter to the club.

HMMM! I THINK I'VE EATEN THERE, TOO

G. L. Payne of Garrett Park, Md., says we can stop wondering what happens to the northern half of the chicken in that restaurant whose menu offers "Southern Half Fried Chicken."

District Liner Payne, who seems to know the restaurant well, says that it's not a question of northern half versus southern half. He explains:

"They're too busy. They don't have time to finish frying their chickens."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

British Defer Nod to China Reds

By Drew Pearson

Doing Business With Communists—Despite one bad eye, Ambassador Lew Douglas has concluded a long wrangling with the British for joint American recognition of the Chinese Communists. It won't be admitted officially, but the British wanted to recognize the Communists within two weks after they had taken Shanghai. Motive: to save Hongkong. Ambassador Douglas, however, acting on direct orders from Secretary Acheson, opposed and has succeeded in persuading the British to delay recognition until after the fall of Canton. The British have agreed to wait—with this proviso: they will be allowed to recognize the Chinese Communist regime a day or two ahead of the United States.

Douglas

Ku Klux Klan Minutes—Klavern No. 1, Atlanta, meets at 198½ Whitehall st., Atlanta, in the quarters of the AFL Steamfitters and Plumbers Union . . . At a recent meeting, Klansman Ira Jett, an organizer of the American Bilbo Club which goes even further than the Klan in race hatred, got irate against Grand Dragon Green, wanted him to give an accounting of Klan funds . . . Klan members have no knowledge of how much money is being taken in or being spent. Jett and other rebellious members claimed . . . The Grand Dragon's friends squelched the rebellion, but tension between the anti-Green and the pro-Green factions simmers beneath the surface . . . The Grand Dragon already has been through one rebellion, when the original Southern Klan broke away from him, setting up headquarters in Columbus, Ga. . . . Green now calls them: "A bunch of Bolsheviks."

British Depression—Averell Harriman, Marshall Plan administrator for Europe, has been instructed to see what he can do to head off the British financial crisis, now jeopardizing European recovery . . . Harriman has orders to get the British to devalue the pound, to get tough if necessary . . . Sir Stafford Cripps is dead set against devaluation, feels it is a mere temporary stopgap, in the end will raise prices for British consumers. But Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder seems anxious to guide British finances from this side of the Atlantic . . . Note. John is right about one thing. The 1929 slump first started in England.

Mr. Truman Worships—President Truman's pastor, the Rev. Edward H. Pruden, was a little worried that a recent story in this column about Mr. Truman's not liking a lot of to-do in church was meant to imply such to-do existed in the First Baptist Church, where the President frequently worships . . . Such is not the case. Services are routine when the President attends and most of the congregation don't know whether Truman is present until the very end, when the Rev. Pruden asks that all remain seated until the President has departed. Then he escorts Mr. Truman down the center aisle to the door of the church.

Money to Franco?—Generalissimo Franco of Spain is getting set to apply for a big American loan all over again . . . For some strange reason the American Embassy in Madrid has convinced Franco the Export-Import Bank really didn't mean it when it turned down Spain's request a couple of weeks ago. So Franco has ordered his financial experts to dust off the application and try again . . . The man behind this move is Paul Culbertson, United States Charge d'Affaires in Madrid, who seemed almost as crushed as Franco when Export-Import said no . . . Sparks may fly when President Truman hears this, because he just finished announcing he is dead set against any American loan to Dictator Franco.

Crisis in Czechoslovakia—Secretary Acheson has summoned Joseph E. Jacobs, United States Ambassador to Czechoslovakia, back home for consultations on the critical situation there. Prediction: Jacobs will be replaced by Ellis O. Briggs, United States Ambassador to Uruguay, a tough talker who has battled against Peron in South America. More trouble is expected in Czechoslovakia soon.

General Vaughan's Bauble—Congress still seems to take a dim view of giving foreign medals to poor Gen. Harry Vaughan. In fact, they are now blocking foreign medals to anybody.

Ever since George Washington's healthy precedent, Americans have been discouraged from accepting foreign medals — until quite recently. During the war, however, it became a fad in some Army-Navy circles — though it takes an act of Congress before an American citizen can actually accept a foreign decoration.

Not long ago the Army tried to slip through a bill granting Vaughan and others permission to wear foreign medals. But when Vaughan's name was discovered in the list, the House Armed Services Committee dropped the medals like hot pennies.

The other day, as a trial balloon, a bill came before the Senate authorizing some United States scientists to accept some British awards. This time they were civilians. But the debate lasted exactly two minutes. General Vaughan's name ended it all.

Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, had stood up to explain the bill.

"Congress," he droned, "passed a special act, applying only during the length of the war, which permitted military and other decorations during the war. But since that act has expired, it becomes necessary in each case, military or civilian, to have special legislation."

"Is the war over?" boomed out Ohio's Senator Robert Taft.

"I should say some phases of it seem to be going on with increased intensity," retorted Tyding, with a sardonic grin.

"Does this bill cover the general who is connected with the White House?" asked New Hampshire's Senator Charles Tobey.

"No, it does not," snapped Tydings. "It has nothing to do with any military personnel."

But though Vaughan's medal was not on the list, a motion by Republican Leader Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska set the bill aside "temporarily." Meanwhile, the State Department, as present custodian for all these medals, is turning into a glorified pawn shop.

1000 Farm Women Going to Md. U.

The twenty-third annual Rural Women's Short Course at the University of Maryland next week is expected to draw more than 1000 Maryland farm women from their home chores to the campus.

After registration and other preliminary details on Monday, the group will plunge into such topics as foods and nutrition, public speaking, personality development, landscape gardening, modern crafts, art in the home, family life and radio, a new subject this year.

Among those scheduled to address the farm women between Tuesday and Saturday, inclusive, are Chen Chih-mai, Chinese Embassy counselor, who will discuss communism in Asia at the first general assembly at 10:15 a. m. on Tuesday, and Representatives Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) and Ed Gossett (D., Tex.).

The theme for the short course this year will be "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World."
